NO KNIVES: ALLMAND

VANCOUVER (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand says he has walked the streets of Vancouver and been unable to find the knife-carrying panhandlers he has been getting complaints about.

He said knife-carrying has never been part of the Criminal Code of Canada but he has received requests to put the anti-knife law back in the code.

Interviewed while he was in Vancouver attending the liberal conference on western objectives, Allmand said there is a "misconception that the carrying of knives, especially hunting knives, by some young people on the streets, is something new."

He said apparently a lot of British Columbians thought that an anti-knife law was removed when the vagrancy section was dropped from the code.

He said the knife-carrying which is causing so much concern has never been part of the code.

QUICK-DRAW BOB STANFIELD was a little slow in slapping leather Sunday afternoon when the Tory leader matched gunsmanship with Carol Van Weerdenburg at a Toronto Island picnic. The blonde beauty had Stanfield dead in her sights before his six-shooter even cleared its holster, so it's back to verbal shootouts for Stanfield.

VC Thought 2 Canadians Spies for U.S.

Times News Services

SAIGON — Two Canadian officers freed after 18 days as captives of the Viet Cong said today they were captured because the Communists thought they were American spies.

Capt. Ian Patten, 31, of Toronto, and Fletcher Thomson, 25, of Ottawa, were released Sunday along with two captured South Vietnamese drivers. They appeared healthy and fit.

They were flown by helicopter to Saigon and described their experiences at a news conference today.

"We were told we were recognized as Americans on an intelligence mission," Patten said. "They could not distinguish us from Americans.

"Upon my approach a pistol was put to my head and the adventure really began," said Patten.

Patten and Thomson told of trekking jungle trails while bound and of being hit by rifle butts on more than one occasion. They were in the Xuan Loc area, 45 miles northeast of Saigon.

They told of daily "conversations," one five hours long after an eight-hour trek, and sleepless nights as the the Viet Cong sought to make them confess they were not connected with the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

The Canadians said they were on a trip to show the ICCS presence and get to know the countryside when they were taken.

They said they were visiting an area where they had been before and where they were convinced it was safe to travel.

They said their captors had orders to "apprehend" ICCS personnel and told of secret signals designed to keep their morale up when they were separated.

Patten said he was not only "rifle butted" and pushed around occasionally, but also kept bound for 1½ days when he refused to co-operate.

However, through the whole news conference, the men declined to condemn the Viet Cong or its Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG).

Patten mentioned only "certain personalities" and both said they were fed as well as the Viet Cong themselves and were treated humanely by most of the men.

"We were bound on a number of occasions, particularly on the march," Patten said. "On other occasions we did without a great deal of sleep — in other words we had no sleep. After an eight-hour march on one occasion we spent over five hours going through what I will call a conversation.

"Whenever we travelled through the jungle, we were bound with our arms behind our back and a noose around out neck so when we moved our arms the noose would tightens around our necks."

The two said they handed over Canadian citizenship papers and Canadian Armed Forces identity tags immediately. They did not have ICCS identity cards because these were not issued until after June 28.

Ambassador Michel Gauvin, chairman of the Canadian ICCS delegation, said Thomson and

IRA-BOUND ARMS SEIZED

DUBLIN (AP) — Police and troops swooped on a British freighter today and seized eight cases of arms and ammunition bound from Montreal to embattled Northern Ireland.

Police said the "fairly large" consignment of weapons was destined for the Irish Republican Army, which is fighting to oust Britain from Northern Ireland and to unite it with the republic.

The weapons were seized aboard the freighter Manchester Vigour which docked Sunday night. The owners said the ship made no other stops en route from Montreal.

One man was arrested. His identity was not made public.

Police said they acted on a tip. When they went aboard the ship they went straight to one of the 51 containers to be unloaded here. It contained the 11 cases of arms.

Pact Ratified, Fishing On

The B.C. net salmon fleet resumed fishing Sunday night as a nine-day strike ended.

Fishermen, shoreworkers and tendermen, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, voted Saturday by more than 80 per cent to approve new contracts and fish prices with the Fisheries Association of B.C.

The three groups, with a combined membership of 7,000, went on strike July 6.

Tendermen were also back at sea but union secretary-treasurer Jack Nichol said it would be later in the week before fish plants are in full operation when the first catches of salmon are brought in.

The shoreworkers agreement calls for a basic wage increase of $1.50 an hour in two stages of a two-year contract. Previous wages ranged from $2.82 to $3.87 an hour.

On top of the $1.50 wage increase, women will receive adjustments of 37 to 51 cents an hour to eliminate pay discrimination and some job categories will receive adjustments of 10 to 37 cents an hour.

Nichol said washers in cannery operations will get a total raise of $1.94 an hour, or a 68.8-per cent increase. Filleters, predominantly women, will get an extra $2 an hour, or 63.3 per cent above their former wage.

The new contract also provides for double time for Sunday work and overtime beyond three hours Monday to Friday.

Tendermen will receive a basic wage increase of $140 a month this year and $120 a month next year. Their old pay rates ranged from $583 a month to $785. They also obtained increased leave time and assurance that days off will be in home ports.

Fishermen will receive 50 cents a pound for sockeye this year and 52 cents next year; 40 cents a pound for coho this year and 42 cents next year; 20 cents and 22 cents respectively for pinks and 26 cents and 27 cents respectively for chums.

Paint Blaze Frees Chemical Poisons

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tests were being conducted today to determine both the cause of a fire at a Canadian Industries Ltd. paint warehouse and the exact penetration of chemicals released into False Creek during the blaze.

Residents of about 40 blocks in Vancouver's East End had an evacuation scare Sunday as a five-alarm blaze ripped through the CIL plant.

The six-hour fire was brought under control without the necessity of moving people, although firemen had to stay on duty through the night to douse occasional flare-ups that reappeared in the smoldering building.

Residents were warned to be ready to evacuate in case cyanide or other toxic substances were released into the air by the fire.

Federal environment officials called to the scene expressed fears that large quantities of phenols — chemicals used in the manufacture of paints and other substances — might enter tidewater with the runoff from the firehoses and result in a fish kill.

There were no serious injuries in the blaze, although four firemen — three suffering smoke inhalation and one who fell from the one-storey building — were sent briefly to hospital.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started with an explosion, but they couldn't pinpoint immediately the cause or location of the blast.

Chris Hatfield, environmental emergency co-ordinator with the federal environmental service, said his service was notified soon after the fire broke out.

"We were concerned at the possibility of air toxicity in the beginning," he said. "Once we were sure there was no people danger, we could start thinking of marine life."

Hatfield said undetermined quantities of phenols, estimated to be considerable, apparently entered the storm sewers and were washed into False Creek.

"These chemicals are soluble in water and quite persistant — they might last a number of days," he said.

"They are quite toxic to marine life and they could be dispersed over a wide area."

Hatfield said he expected the federal labs to determine today the extent of contamination in the immediate area, but it would be some time before the effect on sea life would be known.

"When it flushes out into English Bay, we are hoping that the chemical will be diluted enough that it won't cause much harm."

Company officials estimated damage at about $1 million to the building and an equal loss to tons of inflammable liquids and chemicals stored there.

U.S. Lied Over Cambodia Bombs

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. defence department acknowledged today that B-52 strikes were made in Cambodia prior to 1970 despite public assertions at the time of U.S. respect for the neutrality of Cambodia.

Defence Secretary James Schlesinger, in a letter to the Senate armed services committee, said raids "had been conducted for some period of time and were fully authorized" before the United States publicly announced attacks in May, 1970, into so-called sanctuary areas of Cambodia near the South Vietnamese border.

"At this period of time, you will remember, over one half million men were stationed in South Vietnam," Schlesinger said.

"Because of the sensitive operational and diplomatic situation, special security precautions were taken to ensure that the operations would not be compromised."

Schlesinger sent the letter to the Senate panel as former air force Maj. Hal Knight testified under oath that he falsified records of B-52 strikes in early 1970.

He said he acted under orders from superiors that he burn all documents, computer tapes and other materials that would expose the strikes in Cambodia.

Knight was asked if he ever questioned the procedure. "I asked who authorized this procedure," he replied.

"I was told not to ask."

He said there always was a cover target with "a strike order in Vietnam" to account for the actual mission in Cambodia.

Nixon Office Bugged

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — On President Nixon's orders, sophisticated electronic listening devices—or bugs—have been in operation on his own telephones and in his offices since 1970, testified an ex-presidential aide today.

Alexander Butterfield testified that the devices were installed "for historical purposes, to record the president's business. . . ."

He said there were such devices in the Oval office of the president and in Nixon's office in the Executive Office building.

Butterfield said the tape recording equipment was installed between April or May of 1970 and the end of that summer or early in the fall.

Butterfield, who said he took the witness stand with only three hours' notice, was called to testify before the scheduled appearance of Herbert Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer.

Butterfield is a former White House aide. He now serves as administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency.

Kalmbach acknowledged today he raised funds to pay the original seven Watergate defendants but denied any prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in or its later cover-up.

Kalmbach is to follow him to the witness table.

Kalmbach said:

"My actions in the period immediately following the break-in which involved the raising of funds to provide for the legal defence of the Watergate defendants and for the support of their families were prompted in the belief that it was proper and necessary to discharge what I assumed to be a moral obligation that had arisen in some manner unknown to me by reason of earlier events.

"The fact that I had been directed to undertake these actions by the No. 2 and No. 3

2 Die in Shootout

GIBSONS (CP) — Two men are dead following a Sunday shootout between neighboring in-laws near here.

Dead are Donald Parke, 33, and Rudolph Shcrenko, 70, both of Harvey Road at Grantham's Landing.

RCMP said Parke and his father, Warden, were repairing their roof when Schrenko, the younger Parke's father-in-law, began shooting with a rifle, killing Donald.

The elder Parke jumped from the roof and ran inside with his wife, grabbing another rifle, said police. Schrenko was killed while pointing his rifle at the elder Parke, RCMP said.

RCMP said no charges have been laid.

An inquest has been ordered.

Restful Night For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon spent a restful night and the chest pains caused by his bout with pneumonia are now down to a minimum, his doctor reported today.

Nixon awoke at 8 a.m. after a good night's sleep, Dr. Walter Tkach said. The president was given four chest therapy treatments Sunday.

The treatment resulted in "considerable improvement in his chest congestion and chest discomfort is now at a minimum," Tkach said in his morning medical bulletin.

Cherry War Court Bound Following Sale of 50 Tons

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia cherry war is expected to move into court this week following the sale of more than 50 tons of outlaw cherries Sunday.

A convoy of 23 trucks brought the fruit down from the Okanagan to Vancouver Saturday, following the seizure of two truckloads of cherries by B.C. Fruit Board inspectors and RCMP.

"I suspect this thing is coming to a close," board chairman Nigel Taylor said Sunday in Kelowna.

Taylor, who came here to watch part of the sale in the Gastown district, said the board is taking further steps to bring the dispute into court, following an exchange of injunctions last week with Okanagan Growers Ltd. of Okanagan Centre, B.C.

"We knew it would bring legal action," said Allied chairman Bert Hume. "For the first time we will be able to get this into the courts and get it decided in proper ways.

"We are challenging the validity of the very foundation of the Fruit Board's marketing scheme and we can only do that in the Supreme Court, and this we are prepared to do."

Hans Rhenisch, president of United Fruit Growers Ltd., the second breakaway group to organize illegal sales here, said the rebel growers want a new fruit marketing association.

Hume and Rhenisch said they want to replace the Fruit Board's control of the production and sale of B.C. fruit with a fruit marketing association made up of growers, wholesalers, consumers, the B.C. Government and Union representatives.

Under current B.C. legislation, the Fruit Board, the sole agent for the B.C. Fruit Growers Association, controls all cherry sales through its marketing arm, B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd.

The legislation empowers the board to seize and dispose of any fruit sold outside its marketing structure.

CP Air Strike Looms

VANCOUVER (CP) — A union spokesman says about 1,300 members of the International Association of Machinists employed by CP Air will be ready to strike in about 10 days.

Tony Steele, chief negotiator for IAM Local 764, said a meeting with the company here Sunday was unsuccessful and "there is no reason to delay the strike date."

Both parties in the dispute are free to strike or lock-out seven days after a conciliation board report reaches federal Labor Minister John Munro in Ottawa.

Steele said it is hoped Munro will indicate he has received the report early this week and then a strike date will be set.

The CP Air workers, he said, are determined not to settle for less than the 19.6 per cent wage hike over two years that company negotiators tentatively offered several months ago, but then withdrew.

In the meantime 6,500 members of the union working for Air Canada voted to accept a 16 per cent increase following a series of rotating strikes last month.

DOLLAR WEAK

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar opened weak in Frankfurt and Zurich today, and there was virtually no demand.

The price of gold also eased to $119.75 an ounce in London from Friday's $121 and to $119.25 in Zurich from $120.75 on Friday.

The dollar opened at 2.3750 marks in Frankfurt down half a pfennig from Friday, and then eased further to 2.3720 marks. In Zurich, there was a similar pattern with the dollar opening at 2.8487 Swiss francs, nearly two centimes below Friday's close, and then sliding to 2.8475 francs.

The dollar showed some strength in Paris and London, however. It opened in Paris at 4.0875 francs, down from 4.10, then soon moved up to 4.0950.

In London, the pound opened at $2.5425, up a fraction from $2.54285 at the close Friday.

Mortgage Rates Up One-Quarter

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Conventional mortgage rates for homes jumped a quarter point over the weekend to 9.75-10 per cent, with 9.75 per cent being the more common figure in Victoria.

One Victoria bank manager said anybody getting a mortgage at less than 9.75 per cent this week would "be getting a bargain."

A Times survey of 14 Victoria financial institutions this morning showed 13 of them putting out money at 9.75-10. The 14th, a trust company, was up to 10.5 per cent but had been at 10 per cent for at least a month.

Other banks and the trust companies quoted 9.75 to 10 with the higher figure applying to less desirable homes and to houses in outlying areas.

Demand was brisk for money at 9.5 per cent and bank managers expected demand to continue to be strong at 9.75 per cent.

"When the prime rate hits 10 per cent, it may be a different matter," one bank manager said this morning.

"There is something psychological about 10 per cent that acts as a barrier. At that level, people do the arithmetic and discover that they will be paying almost nothing on the principal in the first five years of a 25-year mortgage at 10 per cent."

Another banker agreed that 10 per cent money might cool the demand for mortgage loans.

But in the tight-money squeeze of 1969, interest rates soared to an all-time high of 10.75 per cent for prime mortgages. First sign of resistance then was 10.5 per cent.

Most trust companies were able to meet the new prime mortgage rate of the banks at 9.75 per cent as long as they were taking money in at 8.5 per cent for five-year term deposits. Trust companies offering 8.75 per cent on five-year term deposits, however, would be under a cost-squeeze pressure to charge 10 per cent for prime mortgages.

The B.C. Teachers Federation Co-operative Association, which had not altered its rates with fluctuations in past months, had to move its rates up as well.

It had set a long-term rate of 9.5 per cent for residences anywhere in B.C., when conventional rates were 9 per cent.

However, at last it was forced to alter its rates to 9.75 per cent and would continue upwards with the fluctuations in the prime rate.

The upward pressure on mortgages was pushing commercial and industrial rates up to levels one financier called "scary."

Conventional rates for commercial and industrial mortgages have jumped half a point in six weeks and now are in the range of 10.25 to 10.75 per cent.

One trust company official said 11 per cent would act as a psychological barrier to the outflow of money in commercial and industrial mortgages.

At present levels, demand was still brisk.

Patten's return was a memorable occasion and praised them for coming through their difficult ordeal with courage and dignity.

Lt.-Col. Lew West of Winnipeg, senior Canadian officer on the recovery team, said the Viet Cong wanted him to sign documents which he said stated Viet Cong opinions of what had happened and were "basically inaccurate."

The Viet Cong documents stated Patten and Thomson were not on ICCS business and had entered Viet Cong-controlled territory illegally.

However, West said, the only document he signed was a receipt for Patten and Thomson, the two South Vietnamese employees and their equipment.

3,000 March in Britain Against Portuguese Premier

LONDON (UPI) — About 3,000 persons chanting protest slogans marched through the centre of London Sunday in the first in a series of demonstrations planned against a four-day visit by Portuguese Prime Minister Marcello Caetano.

Demonstrators, ranging from anti-colonial groups to Communists, said they will protest at every stop Caetano makes while in Britain. His official visit starts later today.

One of the major causes for the protests was a recent allegation that Portugal has allowed its troops in the African territory of Mozambique to carry out "My Lai-type" massacres there.

Portugal denied the allgations.

The first major demonstration involved about 3,000 persons who marched through central London to a rally in Hyde Park, shouting "Caetano out." Organizers said that possibly 15,000 would take part, but heavy rain apparently cut the size of the crowd.

Caetano's visit is part of the celebrations of the 600th anniversary of the Anglo-Portuguese alliance. Protection for him was called the most stringent for a visiting dignitary in recent ears.

About 100 detectives, some of them armed, will guard Caetano during his stay, Scotland Yard sources said.

men on the White House staff made it absolutely incomprehensible to me that my actions in this regard could have been regarded in any way as improper or unethical."

Kalmback's prepared statement did not identify by name the persons he referred to as No. 2 and No. 3 men on the White House staff.

Kalmbach was a trustee from January of 1968 to early February, 1972, of an estimated $1.8 million in surplus funds from Nixon's 1968 campaign.

Kalmbach testified in his statement he dispersed portions of that sum "only at the express direction of H. R. Haldeman or others clearly having the authority to direct such disbursements."

Kalmbach was fired by Nixon on May 1 after it was disclosed that he had paid between $30,000 and $40,000 to Donald Segretti, the "dirty tricks" lawyer accused of attempting to sabotage Sen. Edmund Muskie's 1972 campaign for the democratic presidential nomination.

Moore said that on instructions of John Ehrlichman, former chief presidential domestic adviser, or possibly Haldeman, he asked Mitchell to raise money.

Moore says he was ignorant of the purpose of the money, but former presidential counsel John Mitchell and Dean both testified they knew it was intended to buy silence from the Watergate defendants.

Mitchell refused to raise it and eventually a secret White House campaign fund of $350,000 was used for the purpose testimony has shown.

Senator Joseph Montoya (Dem.—N. M.) questioned Moore closely. Moore conceded he knew the Nixon campaign committee had plenty of money.

"What did you conceive your mission to be?" Montoya asked.

"I didn'tknow," Moore said.

"As a lawyer, can you conceive any person going to see another person and saying 'Please raise some money. I don't know what it's for?'" Montoya asked.

"I can conceive it because that's exactly what happened," Moore insisted.

Mineral Production Hits B.C. Record

Mineral production in B.C. in 1972 reached record proportions, the Department of Mines and Petroleum Resources reported today, with total production reaching a value of more than $637 million.

The record year was highlighted by an "enormous gain" in the value of coal produced in the province, the department said.

Value of coal production increased from a 1971 figure of $45.8 million to last year's level of $66 million.

Leading all production was that of copper, valued at $209.4 million in 1972, compared to value of $131 million in 1971.

Production of metals in general brought in $372.9 million in 1972, up from the 1971 figure of $301 million.

Industrial mineral production last year was $25.7 million, up from $21.9 million the year before.

Structural minerals produced a value of $66.7 million, up from $59.9 million and were highlighted by a $7.5 million gain in the production of sand and gravel.

Fuels accounted for $171.6 million in production in 1972. up from the 1971 level of $145 million. Natural gas production was up considerably to $41.6 million from the 1971 figure of $31.9 million.

Both production and value of crude oil were down from 1971 figures.

Total production of all minerals was $637,168,940, an increase of $109.2 million over the 1971 figure of $527,963,145. The increase works out to about 20.7 per cent for the year.

The 1972 production was the 11th year in a row that a record has been set in the province. The cumulative value of minerals produced to date is now $8.8 billion.

50 Years Service Honored

Miss Evellyn Gwynne, an active community worker in North Saanich for more than 50 years, was presented Sunday with Victoria's Good Citizen Award Medal.

The annual award was presented in Beacon Hill Park's Cameron Bandshell by Jack Fouracre, chief factor of the Victoria post of the Native Sons of B.C.

Miss Gwynne, 78, of 9149 West Saanich Road, spearheaded the organization of Meals on Wheels in the Sidney and North Saanich area three years ago.

She is still active in arranging the service to shut-ins, visiting recipients monthly and driving to Victoria to collect the meals at least twice a week.

Always active in the community, Miss Gwynne was president of the Anglican Church Auxiliary for 25 years as well as teaching Sunday school and acting as a youth leader.

During the Second World War Miss Gwynne organized work parties for the Red Cross and opened her home to hundreds of service people from Pat Bay Airport.

She has captained and worked for the Ardmore Golf Club and is still an active golfer.

2 Killed In 50-Ton TNT Blast

GREENWOOD, Mo. (AP) — Fifty tons of dynamite exploded near this Kansas City suburb Sunday, killing two persons in a blast felt miles away, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

Police said the explosion of two dynamite storage facilities left a crater 30 feet deep and 80 feet wide.

Two driver's licences and parts of two bodies were found. The licences belonged to Gary Henke, 19, and David Stower, 18, both of Raytown, Mo., police said. Trooper Robert Place said no positive identification could be made because the fragments were so small.

The youths' parents said they had planned to spend the afternoon shooting at targets in the area and were driving a 1969 Plymouth. Bits of a Plymouth were found near the blast site.

Cause of the blast was not immediately known, but one policeman speculated the hunters may have shot the dynamite magazines and set off the explosion.

French Flurry N-Test Hint

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — A flurry of French military activity in the South Pacific suggested today that France was on the verge of beginning its controversial series of atmospheric nuclear tests above Mururoa Atoll.

French officials here continued to decline comment on the exact date of the beginning of the tests, which had been expected to start during the weekend.

The tests will be staged in defiance of a temporary injunction issued by the World Court in The Hague at the request of Australia, New Zealand and other South Pacific territories concerned about the danger of radioactive fallout.

The New Zealand frigate Otago is sailing in the area of the tests in a show of protest, and it reported a sudden increase in activity on its radar screens over the weekend.

Officers and newsmen aboard the ship said the increased activity was most likely French planes and helicopters rehearsing procedures for recovery of radioactive waste samples.

A French air force KC135 jet plane, an American-built long-range aircraft used in past tests to follow the radioactive cloud from the nuclear blast, arrived at Tahiti's airport.

The commander of the French Pacific test centre, Adm. Christian Claverie, was absent from continuing Bastille Day holiday festivals although he was present when they began Saturday.

SMOKING BLAMED

A fire which caused an estimated $8,000 damage to the home of Anker Trones, 534 Tait, Saturday was caused by careless smoking, the Saanich fire department reports.

Trones was asleep when fire broke out in the living room and a neighbor made the call to the fire department.

UVic Camp

University of Victoria's summer camp for children, ages 10 to 12, opened today with more than 100 children registered.

More children are on a waiting list but couldn't be fitted into the program because of limited facilities.

The three-week camp, being held for the third summer by the physical education department, involves activities on campus, several day trips and a week camping at Shawnigan Lake.

UVic's new Adventure Experience camp for 13 to 15-year-olds, a new semi-wilderness program that runs from Aug. 3 to 13, has also registered the maximum 40 children it can take.

Indian Aid Doubled

OTTAWA (CP) — The British Columbia Indian fisherman's assistance program will carry on for another five years with a $10 million budget, nearly double that of the previous five years.

The Indian Affairs Department announced in a news release that loans and grants totalling $8.1 million will be available for building, buying, and modifying fishing boats, equipment and shore facilities under the beefed-up program.

The remainingn money will be used for capital cost and administrative purposes.

Since 1968, the program operated on about $5.1 million, broken roughly in half between grants and loans.

The department said the revised program will emphasize job training and makes provision for loan counsellors to provide advisory services.

the weather

Warm, sunny conditions are expected to highlight the B.C. weather scene for at least another two days. A major feature of the pattern is a ridge of high pressure over the Eastern Pacific that will continue to steer weak Pacific disturbances into Southern Alaska. At the same time it will maintain brisk northwest winds along the coast of B.C.

Trudeau Vows Push for West

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau closed the Liberal conference on western objectives Sunday with an admission that he was "a little bit ashamed that it took us so long to get around to finding some of the solutions to western problems" and a pledge that federal action is on the way. (See also Page 33).

He said the federal government will go into the western economic opportunities conference in Calgary later this month with "concrete solutions to concrete problems."

Trudeau said the cabinet would carefully study resolutions and ideas from the three-day think session on Liberal failings in western Canada.

The meeting was billed by organizers as "part of the listening process in understanding the message of last Oct. 30."

In the October federal election, the Liberals won only seven of the 68 seats in the four western provinces.

Trudeau promised federal action to ensure that more western resources are developed. He said there would be import-export controls to help western industry; the transportation system would be reformed; financial institutions would be decentralized and a pacific environmental institute would be established on the Pacific coast.

He said the federal government's announcements were not intended as "goodies" to pacify the West but admitted that any additional support would be welcome.

Senator Richard Stanbury told the 180 delegates at the closing session Sunday that a positive result of the election was a new determination to tackle root causes of discontent.

"It is essential now for him (the prime minister) to devote his great talents and energies to removing the root causes of western alienation."

Senator Stanbury said the problems of the West had finally "come into the government field of vision."

ROBIN SLAUGHTER PREDICTED

WASHINGTON (AP) — An organization called The Fund for Animals says the Canadian government is considering requests that would allow blueberry farmers to conduct "a massive slaughter" of robins.

The group says the robins gather in Canada's Maritime provinces on their way to the United States, and that the birds have been turning to blueberries for food as pesticide spraying programs kill insects, their natural food.

New York Tanker Fear

NEW YORK (AP)— The spectre of giant tankers bursting into floating torches in the United States' leading port has coast guard officials worried about vessel collisions.

"The volume of shipping is increasing all the time and our need for fuel is increasing all the time," said Edward Oliver, the captain of the port for New York harbor.

Several recent crashes focused new attention on the annual rate of about 18,000 ship arrivals and departures. Flammable petroleum products account for one-third of all cargoes.

On June 22, the U.S. freighter Sea Witch, crippled by a steering failure, slammed into the Belgian tanker Esso Brussels. The fiery toll was 10 crew members killed and six missing.

Three other collisions in little more than two months produced varied damages to tankers but no deaths.

"The only absolute answer is close the port to tankers and we are not going to do that," Oliver said.

Coast guard figures disclose that more than 500 tanker collisions have taken place around the world within the last 10 years and 80 per cent occurred at harbor locations.

The 1,500-square mile Port of New York and New Jersey within a 25-mile radius of the Statue of Liberty has critical physical limitations. Water depth requirements affect a ship's ability to manoeuvre.

"Large liquid bulk vessels arriving with drafts in excess of the 35-foot channels through which they pass to receiving facilities must lighter off to reduce draft before proceeding," a coast guard traffic study says.

A major federal anchorage is near Staten Island's northeast shore at Stapleton, adjacent to the busy shipping lanes in the 6,000-foot Narrows. The Esso Brussels was struck there.

Paintings Found

ROME (Reuter) — Police recovered a painting of Christ by the Italian master Mattia Preti Friday, and two other works that had been hidden aboard a fruit van. The Preti was stolen in Catanzaro, Italy, in May, 1972.

SEATTLE CRUISER TOPS LOG RACE

Sixty boats from the Pacific Northwest steamed into Royal Victoria Yacht Club about 2:30 p.m. after a two-day cruise from Shilshole Marina in Seattle.

The contest, sponsored by the International Power Boat Association, is a predicted log race in which boat owners estimate the time it will take them to complete the course and the boat finishing closest to its predicted time wins.

Alaska Hunter's error was 1.1946 per cent.

Winner in the novice class was Seabelle Three from Meydenbauer Yacht Club with an error of 2.5483 per cent. Her skipper was Keith Abell.

Each of the boats, which ranged in size from 25 to 120 feet, carried an observer who recorded the time at a series of checkpoints along the way. Total error was calculated at the end of the race.

Other winners were:

Bomb Warning

NEW YORK (AP) — The 30,000 members of New York's police force have been warned to watch out for letter-bombs mailed to their homes in plain brown envelopes. The police department was said to have learned that the revolutionary Black Liberation Army has sought to obtain the addresses of police and federal agents in order to mail them explosives.

New Atlantis Hunt Begins

CADIZ, Spain (UPI) — A team of scuba divers set out today to search the floor of the Gulf of Cadiz for Atlantis, a continent that legend says sank under the sea thousands of years ago.

"We expect to find an entire city or at least evidence of ruined buildings," said Jacques Mayal, the team leader and a veteran seeker of Atlantis.

"But our first task is photographing and surveying. We will not pull out any artefacts or fragments of buildings."

The divers are part of a 70-member expedition of U.S. students, teachers and adventurers who arrived a week ago to study the area off southwest Spain — and to search for what legend describes as the cradle of a supercivilization that once spanned the Atlantic Ocean.

"It looks hopeful," said Phil Farrell, a diving instructor from California and one of the six divers going down today.

"Diving off local beaches last week, we saw a Roman column and amphora. If we can find a 2,000-year old amphora close to shore, we can find many interesting remains out in the ocean."

Archaeologists have dismissed previous reports of ruins off the Spanish coast. But Mrs. Maxine Asher, co-director of the project, said she believes she and other spiritualists have psychic proofs of Atlantis' existence.

"I simply know we will find it because I am psychic and the highly civilised people of Atlantis were very psychic," she said. "How strong the vibrations are these days!"

As evidence that Atlantis once existed, Mrs. Asher cited the dialogue of the Greek philosopher Plato, who in the fourth century before Christ described an idyllic civilization beyond what is now the straits of Gibraltar. It reputedly sank into the sea 13,000 years ago after a cataclysm of undetermined origin.

"Scholars have found proof of Inoan and Roman civilizations that were once considered mythical," said Julius Bava, a professor of history at California State University.

"The same Greek stories that refer to those civilizations also refer to Atlantis. So at face value, it is no less credible."

Get the Homework Done First

The controversy over Causeway parking for tour buses has left the public in what is becoming a permanent state of perplexity in regard to city council actions. There can have been few eras in which there was more confusion in City Hall about basic objectives for the city. It is not unusual for a city council to differ with the opinions or actions of its immediate predecessors, and move to alter or reverse decisions that were previously made. But there seem to be numerous occasions under the present regime when second thoughts have replaced earlier ideas, and aldermanic positions have been reversed.

That is not to say that the current city council has not done some excellent work this year. It has run into some formidable legal and planning problems but important steps have been taken in the direction of forming a workable concept of what the city should become. There is an immense amount of work still to be done in this regard, but at least progress is being made.

The Causeway hassle, however, is a minor example of the sort of situation into which we seem to be continually stumbling. Earlier this year, according to Ald. Tindall, the council gave assurance that bus parking along the Causeway would be tolerated, and the tour lines accordingly took up their places. This was a matter of agreement among the participants, rather than a contract with the city. But the arrangement was accepted. When one tour line changed hands —becoming the property of B.C. Hydro for reasons difficult to fathom — the claim to an established parking space naturally went along with the bus property.

In these circumstances, Council was on shaky ground when at the height of the tourist season it sought to ban parking on the west side of the Causeway. It was in the position of saying yes at one time and a few weeks later saying no. But within days Council had to reverse itself again — on a tie vote broken by Mayor Pollen — and permit west-side parking.

The provincial government — through B.C. Hydro — apparently had the legal right to continue to park on the west side despite the fact that the city's traffic committee had put up no-parking signs, because Council had not yet passed the new regulation. This was a case of premature action that put the city in a weak position. But at the same time, Municipal Affairs Minister Lorimer demonstrated a ham-handed manner in dealing with the situation when he bluntly ordered the bus line to ignore the signs. Such an action pointedly reminded the city of its duties, but it did nothing to aid the general respect for law.

City Council is on the right track in wanting to free the west side of the Causeway of a huckstering atmosphere. With all the money now being spent on a lower promenade, and plans for other Inner Harbor improvements, it is ridiculous to permit noisy commercial intrusion on what should be a pleasant area for strolling. But controls should be drawn up and announced well in advance so that existing arrangements or agreements will not be infringed. Steps should be taken now to see that the Causeway hullabaloo will end with this season, and that this will be understood by all the bus tour lines concerned, including — and how did we ever get into socialized sight-seeing tours? — the B.C. Hydro.

Land Is the First Priority

Saanich council has much to think about following the release recently of an imaginative indoor recreation study prepared by a private firm and updated by the municipality's planning staff. Among the major recommendations: an outdoor swimming pool, a second senior citizens' activity centre and a second ice surface. There is also a degree of urgency in the plan's priorities since a capital projects referendum will be included in the municipal election a little more than three months hence.

As the Greater Victoria area begins to fill up Saanich will undoubtedly feel the brunt of the influx by virtue of its relatively wide open spaces. This suggests that council should keep a careful eye on its land acquisition programs to ensure that space is available for future recreation expansion.

To implement all of the report's suggestions immediately is clearly impossible, nor is it necessary. As Mayor Hugh Curtis said, it is a very helpful working document. And the report's suggestion to provide for less formal community recreation by setting up small neighborhood centres with kitchens and activity rooms would give the municipality a cheap flexible means of adjusting to area population changes. But Council should first have in reserve the land for such projects.

With feasible sites in its possession Saanich would be far ahead of most municipalities in ability to adjust to swiftly changing population patterns.

Names

The names chosen by parents and staff for Victoria's 'L' and 'M' schools certainly provide food for thought. Sentinel, the name given the more structured school, has connotations of insurance company advertisements and anti-ballistic missile systems. Conversely the name Sundance, which the less structured school has been christened, conjures visions of freedom, light and joy.

Since both schools are only concepts at this stage we certainly are in no position to judge their relative merits. But on names alone it would seem that modern students are more attuned to dancing in the sun than standing guard. The monikers guarantee healthy inter-school sports rivalry; that is if students can take time out from guarding and dancing.

"... do you still think 'you've come a long way, Baby'...?"

Discrimination and the Law

OTTAWA — The decision of Mr. Justice Osler in the Six Nations case creates so many uncertainties over such a vast area that clarification will have to be sought from the Supreme Court of Canada. In finding that the Indian Act is inoperative, the Ontario judge has struck a blow at discrimination but also at protections which have existed for generations and to which many Indians still attach much importance. This was, in fact, the immediate reaction of John Gasson, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada.

The case has produced the ruling that the Six Nations Indian reserve near Brantford has no legal basis for being a reserve. An offshoot of this decision is that the legal title to the land on which the city of Brantford is built may be in question.

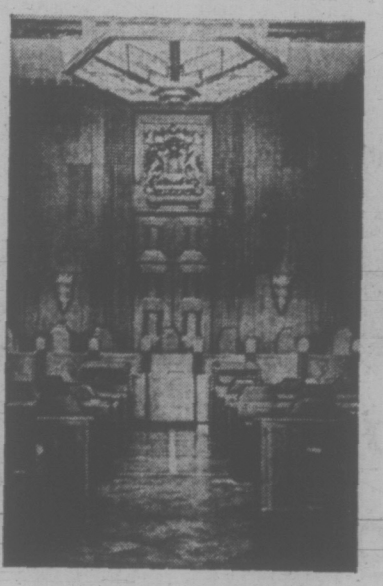
Creates Problem

In the light of the history of the Six Nations and their special relationship to the Crown, Mr. Justice Osler could probably have based a ruling in favor of the hereditary chiefs on narrower grounds. By calling the Act into question, he has created a problem that concerns the Indian people generally. His reasoning is that the Supreme Court has already found certain sections invalid on grounds of discrimination and that this in fact is the basis of the whole Act.

There cannot be much argument that the Act does discriminate; we do not have separate Acts governing the various peoples of assorted pigmentations who came here as immigrants. But this discrimination was deliberately imbedded in the constitution by the Fathers of Confederation. It was an explicit recognition of the inherited duty of the federal government to protect "Indians and Indian lands." The Indian Act, however outdated it may now be, was built on this provision.

What is probably needed, as the government suggested in its 1969 policy statement, is repeal with the enactment, at the same time, of transitional legislation. But a new problem is now posed. Both for the government and the Indians. If Mr. Justice Osler is right about discrimination, how is legislation to be written which will cover the Indian people as a special case without being as vulnerable as its obsolete predecessor to the condemnation of the courts?

At least part of the trouble may originate in the fact that the word "discrimination" is used rather loosely. In some cases it has a clear meaning. Thus it is manifestly unjust to say that a white man may drink but an Indian may not. But it may be considered eminently just that an Eskimo should be permitted to take game for food, although that right is denied to his white neighbor. In other words rights may be acquired through a variety of circumstances and in these cases they're not universal.



SUPREME COURT OF CANADA
... guidance needed

This is true of the whole society in property matters for some own, others do not, still others have lease rights and so on. It is true also of taxation in all systems for legislators, on the basis not of eternal verities but of value judgments, prescribe rates of taxation based on income categories or marital status, sometimes with special allowances for age groups, occupational groups, peculiarly disadvantaged citizens and others.

Most of the protections of the Indian Act have to do with property rights, for example, safeguards against the alienation of reserve lands, and others are related to them, although perhaps not exclusively. Thus the question of status is a sensitive one, partly because many reserves are already overcrowded. What has to be found and what the government has long since recognized as a long-term goal is a means of ending legal distinctions while at the same time guaranteeing these special property rights.

Again, however, there is a problem for the legislation must in some way define the beneficiaries. In the case of the reserves the government has indicated a desire to convey full ownership. To what owners, if not the people who are identifiably Indians and who, until now, have been governed by a special Act?

Special Legislation

Moreover, not all the Indians benefit from lands now held in trust. Conceivably, there might be legislation covering not Indian but aboriginal entitlement. But the government, although recognizing a responsibility to all the Indian people, has yet to recognize aboriginal rights and it cannot very well convey what it has yet to perceive.

In all these circumstances, and whatever its immediate consequences for the litigants of the Six Nations and perhaps for apprehensive citizens of Brantford, the general finding of Mr. Justice Osler does not appear to be of immediate help to the government or parliament or to Indian leaders seeking a way forward. What is needed is further guidance from the Supreme Court — by way of clear and not split decisions.

TOM WICKER

Invading Homes and Rights

NEW YORK—The chance to say, "I told you so," doesn't come often and usually ought to be passed up. But to make a necessary point, let it be recalled that in Feb. 1970, I wrote that the Senate's passage of a "no-knock entry" provision in a drug-control bill was clearly "a flagrant legislative example of the philosophy that the end justifies the means — catching the criminal validates any invasion of the rights supposedly guaranteed to all of us."

On the same occasion, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. — just then beginning to show himself a civil libertarian — declared more colorfully that his colleagues were "... so zealous in their efforts to enforce the law that they would emulate the example set by Samson in his blindness and destroy the pillars upon which the temple of justice itself rests."

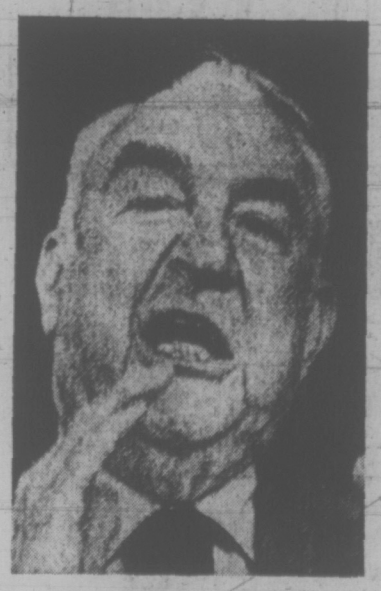
Another warning voiced then by some opponents of the measure was that legitimating no-knock entry (granting police the right to burst into any premises without warning if a judge could be persuaded that such a warning would result in the destruction of evidence) inevitably would result in policemen and others being killed.

Prediction Fulfilled

Well, since then, a Norfolk, Va., woman terrified by an attempted no-knock entry fired through her door at what she though was a burglar and killed a patrolman looking for heroin; but there wasn't any heroin. In Eureka, Calif., it was the other way around, a narcotics agent shot and killed a man fleeing from a no-knock raid on his cabin. No drugs were found in it, either.

Practically everyone now has read or heard about the sudden raids by officers in search of drugs on the homes of the Giglottos and the Askews of Collinsville, Ill., and the William Pines of Winthrop, Mass. — nationally publicized cases in which no drugs were found but in which innocent Americans were terrorized, threatened, insulted and damaged — mentally, physically, socially and financially — by officers of the law who in some cases did not have even no-knock warrants.

It may not be so widely known that these events were only part of a pattern discovered in a two-month survey by The New York Times; it disclosed that "scores of agents, in their zeal to crush illicit drug trafficking have mistakenly broken into the homes and apartments of dozens of innocent families, terrorizing the occupants and heavily damaging property." Typically, the attitude of these officers has been shockingly callous; when police broke down doors of the James R. Herman home in Rochester, N.Y., last September, only to find that they had the wrong address, an officer said later that this was only an "insignificant detail."



SEN. SAM ERVIN
... championed liberty

Thus, the narcotics officer who shot the man in Eureka, Calif., has been indicted, since his agency regulations specifically prohibited shooting at fleeing suspects; but he continues on duty. The agents who terrorized the Giglottos — ultimately causing them to move out of Collinsville to escape various harassments — are still on the Federal payroll and are reported to have been active in other raids, although grand jury action in their cases is pending.

Has this caused any second thoughts in Washington? There is no visible effort in Congress to take a new look at no-knock enrty, or at any of the other "war on crime" short cuts recently enacted. As for Mules Ambrose, the retiring Assistant Attorney General in charge of drug prosecutions, he predictably referred to the horrendous record of incidents uncovered by The Times as "minimal."

Worse, he attempted to compare this "minimal" number of abuses to the 527,000 narcotis arrests he said had been made in 1972. Not only does this overlook the question how many of those arrested may ultimately have been found guilty; but it is also another case of justifying means by ends — so many arrests justify so many abuses.

Bureaucracy

But never fear, citizens, all may yet be well, since Ambrose pointed out that he had already sent out instructions that "great care and judgement" be used in future raids, and had even scheduled a discussion of the whole matter among regional directors of the drug-control program. Bureaucracy smothers all.

Even so, Ambrose warned that there was no way he could eliminate all the "knuckleheads who might go off half-cocked on their own to conduct raids." And there probably isn't, as long as no-knock entry is authorized by law, as long as from the President on down the idea is propagated of a "war on crime" with its war-time mentality, as long as the notion is inculcated among officers (many of them young and inexperienced), and supported by the public that anything goes in the effort to catch criminals — particularly the drug offenders that Ambrose has referred to as "the very vermin of humanity."

The problem is not with knuckleheads, who will always be with us. The problem is with people who ought to know better, like Mules Ambrose, President Nixon and the members of Congress who first opened such fatal cracks in the Bill of Rights.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Well Supplied

In the Times about May 1 you printed an article to the effect that dandelions were becoming extinct in Kew Gardens and the surrounding English countryside. Feeling we could share our wealth with them, I sent a generous package of seeds to them. I thought you would be interested in the reply I received:

Dear Mrs. Brown:

The Director has asked me to thank you for your thoughtful action in sending us seeds of "Dandelion" Taraxacum, and to point out that there is no truth whatever in any part of the press report you enclosed.

Dandelions are as common as they ever were in England and no "Kew spokesman" has ever said otherwise. — V. O. Clark (Mrs.), for Director, Royal Botanic Gardens. — Mrs. T. A. Brown, 2535 Cotswold Rd.

East-West

The July 3 edition of the Victoria Times carried a letter entitled "Voice From The East." Please grant another ex-easterner the opportunity to answer that letter with some facts, rather than rambling statements.

In the past 16 years it has been my priyilege to live and travel extensively in the east, primarily Nova Scotia, Quebec, and Ontario. During that period never once did I hear an easterner speak with contempt about the west. On the other hand, not once since I came to B.C. have I heard one westerner complain about the east!

R. J. Austin stated in his letter that the west was economically dominated by the east, and went on to defy one to prove otherwise by visiting any western store to show where the west was represented in material goods. My answer: how far west can one go, when the majority of the stores in Canada carry the words "Made in Japan" tatooed on the hind-side of a high percentage of the articles for sale? As for the statements that the Maritimes have history; Quebec, culture; and Ontario, power, please allow me to state some first-hand observations.

Nova Scotia for example, has a fine history. Unfortunately, until recently, its historical edifices — including Halifax's famous Citadel — lay under tons of earth, where the lack of interest of the Nova Scotians in their own history had plowed them.

Now, with government aid — Canadian tax-payers — these historical sites are being restored for all Canadians to enjoy.

This federal aid is also extended to such areas as fisheries, agriculture and industry. Who can forget the Glace-Bay heavy water, or the Clairetone fiascos?

My seven years spent in various areas of Quebec, proved one thing: That province's sole claim to culture lies in its complete refusal to admit that bilingualism means TWO tongues- In Quebec, it means one thing: French speak French — others learn French.

Ontario's song praises it as a place to grow, and it is a big, powerful, prosperous province. BUT, one whose industry is primarily based on cheap energy from the west, and is protected from competition by tariffs!

I have three questions to ask R. J. Austin: If, according to him, the east were so superior to the west, would it require the following:

1. Equalization subsidies, in the form of federal grants, paid in part, by two western provinces?

2. Cultural support, in the form of federal legislation, e.g. 'B and B'?

3. Industrial monopoly, protected by federal tariffs and freight rates?

From my own first-hand experience, R. J. Austin's complainers lie, not in the west, but the east (Voice From The East is a perfect example). The westerners I have met here, show a marked interest in the east and the way of life there. In the east exists a defnite lack of interest in the west, unless it concerns the almighty dollar. —Elizabeth Graham, Cabin No. 11, Fort Victoria Trailer Park, Island Highway.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 16, 1913:

WASHINGTON — A fund of $500,000 to $700,000 a year raised by the National Council of Industrial Defence — an adjunct of the National Association of Manufacturers — for opposing legislation that the manufacturers do not favor, was described to the Senate lobby committee today by Martin Mulhall. Mulhall testified he had no personal knowledge of the existence of such a fund, but declared that a collector for the organization had recently given those figures to a reporter from the New York World. Mulhall swore that money had been paid to him from the fund for political purposes but he did not specify what the purposes were.

Marc Lalonde: A Quick Rise to Top

By WILLIAM JOHNSON
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA — Marc Lalonde is already heir-apparent to the federal Liberal power base in Quebec and the talk has begun that he could be a future prime minister.

The Minister of National Health and Welfare has been in the Commons less than a year and his seniority in the cabinet is so low that he does not rate a seat in the front benches of the government of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

But in terms of power, the rise of Lalonde in the past eight months has been phenomenal. His feat has been to impose himself immediately upon all segments of the Liberal caucus. He has the strong support of his long-time friends who control the Quebec caucus (56 out of 109 Liberal seats), but at the same time he has won respect from MPs from outside Quebec.

Major Contender

"Within two years he will have emerged as a major contender to succeed the Prime Minister," says an Ontario MP who did not want his name used. Questions of leadership within a party, especially a party in power, are always ultra delicate.

A Montreal-area MP believes that Lalonde has his eye on the leadership, not after Trudeau steps down—Liberal tradition requires an English-speaking successor—but the time after. Mr. Lalonde, now 43, is young enough to bide his time.

"Marc Lalonde hates any pomp and superfluities," says Jacques Olivier, the Longueuil Liberal member. "I own a big car, an Oldsmobile, and he always teases me about it."

Olivier shares an Ottawa apartment with Mr. Lalonde. Until last summer both worked in the Prime Minister's office. Lalonde was Pierre Trudeau's long-time political alter-ego and the chief of his staff. Olivier was a labor expert reporting to Lalonde.

Olivier says his former boss is a man without a front. "The first time you meet him he's all there, and he doesn't change".

Though both came to prominence in the counter-struggle against Quebec nationalism in the past decade, Lalonde is only now, since becoming an MP and a minister, emerging as his own man, quite different in style and personality from his leader.

"He's a well-educated farmer and his values are down to earth," says a long-time collaborator. "There is no pretence about him."

"Mr. Lalonde is possessed of enormous energy," says Gordon Gibson, a former executive assistant to Mr. Trudeau and a colleague of both since the rise of Mr. Trudeau to the Liberal leadership in 1968.

"He's become a much more publicly engaging person since he's been active in politics. I receive the warmest words about him wherever he's been in the West."

The men who know the minister best speak of his habitual good humor, his calm in the midst of stress, his wide-ranging curiousity and openness to new ideas.

Lalonde describes himself as a pragmatist, but he bristles at the suggestion that his views are right-wing.

"Your reputation is of being a conservative," he was told by the hostess of an open-line radio program in Vancouver. The hostess was Judy LaMarsh, herself a former minister of Health and Welfare in the cabinet of Lester Pearson.

"That may be my reputation," Lalonde replied, "But I think the important thing is to judge me on the facts and on what I'm trying to do and what I've done since becoming a minister."

His reputation, in fact, is based on the assumption that his views and the positions taken by the Trudeau regime from 1968 to 1972 are one and the same.

Rejects Ideology

"What kind of advice I was giving before I became a minister is not on the record, it's unknown, and people who branded me as conservative were doing it on the strength of something they didn't know."

In an interview he explained his view that ideologies can outlive their usefulness and become blinkers, impediments for finding the best solutions to a given social problem.

Even the backlash against welfare can be used to promote reform, he said. He pointed out the paradox that, in the United States, it was right-wing economist Milton Friedman, an adviser to Senator Barry Goldwater, who had proposed the negative income tax as a means of bringing the income of all citizens up to a minimum standard.

On the outcome of the welfare and health-care reforms Lalonde's prestige and future in the Liberal party are likely to hinge. He is spoken of already by his fellow MPs as a future leadership candidate. Miss LaMarsh introduced him as "the second most powerful man in government."

As a political adviser to Prime Minister Lester Pearson in 1967 and 1968, Lalonde was among a small group of people who turned the Liberal Party around on its constitutional position and set it firmly against special status for Quebec. He was also among the group who engineered the rise of Justice Minister Trudeau to the Liberal leadership and the job of Prime Minister.

Means to an End

The inner circle includes the Prime Minister, Transport Minister Jean Marchand, Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier and a few people who hold non-elective offices such as Michael Pitfield, a senior civil servant, and Jim Davey, a special adviser to Marchand who was with Lalonde in the prime minister's office until the last election.

"There's been very much an equality of relationships," says one member of the group. "Positions have always been a means to an end."

Lalonde is quick to reject higher ambitions. The political lifespan has shortened in Canada, he says, and there will be no more John Diefenbakers or Paul Martins. "If I have not made my contribution within seven years, then I don't think I will have much to offer after that."

But Marchand and Pelletier are now 54 and Trudeau is 53. They have been in Parliament for eight years. Lalonde is a decade younger and a fresh face.

The undisputed political leader of the Quebec caucus is Marchand, who has the fierce loyalty of most of its members. But Marchand, once considered for the leadership by the Quebec members before their choice fell on Trudeau, has many critics among the Liberal MPs from outside Quebec who feel that his performance as minister of transport is unequal to the demands of his job.

Even a strong supporter such as Marcel Prud'homme, MP for St. Denis, admits that Marchand has a streak of combativeness left over from his days as a union leader that sometimes lands him in trouble.

"Marchand appears to be a regional figure, Lalonde appears to be a national figure," says Mark MacGuigan, the MP for Windsor-Walkerville.

Lalonde, like the senior Quebec Liberal ministers, came to Ottawa to head off separatism and change the federal government so that it could accommodate French Canadians on their terms. Like the others, he wished to prove that French Canadians could play a major role in governing the country and do it competently.

Unlike Trudeau and Marchand, he has not spoken out publicly to complain of a backlash against French Canadians in the 1972 election. Unlike Pelletier, he has travelled a great deal recently to speak outside Quebec and seems at home whether it's wandering the streets of Vancouver's Gastown district at night, addressing a Liberal meeting in Calgary or speaking to a convention of pharmacists in Ottawa.

But privately, Mr. Lalonde feels that the language question is far from settled.

"I am convinced that, to succeed, a French Canadian must work 20 per cent harder and have 20 per cent greater competence to do a job," he said in an interview.

He was critical of the provincial governments, and particularly of Ontario's Premier William Davis, for attaching little importance to French culture outside Quebec. "I see no signs at the present time of any real awareness in Ontario, any sense that Francophones in Ontario are something that is considered a matter of much importance."

Davis, he said, had acted to safeguard French culture in Ontario only when pressured to do so, for instance in the matter of ensuring for Franco-Ontarians an education in French.

Concern After Vote

But Davis's foot-dragging, according to Lalonde, is not much different from the attitude of his predecessor, Premier John Robarts (who announced in 1967 that Ontario would grant Franco-Ontarians education in their own language). "I think Mr. Robarts was worried about the country breaking up, that's the only difference," he said.

The results of the Oct. 30 election dismayed Lalonde and left him pessimistic about Canada's future—until he was named minister in November and had no time for brooding. The election could easily have led to a serious crisis, he believes.

"If Trudeau had decided to pack his bags and go the day after the election, I think we would be in the midst of enormous difficulties today. If he had returned home I think that there would have been an awful lot of people who would have left with him. It wasn't far from the mind of many of us at that time."

Lack of Awareness

Now, he feels, it would be different if Trudeau stepped down. But in the immediate aftermath of the election it would have meant in Qubec an "unhooking" from the federal government.

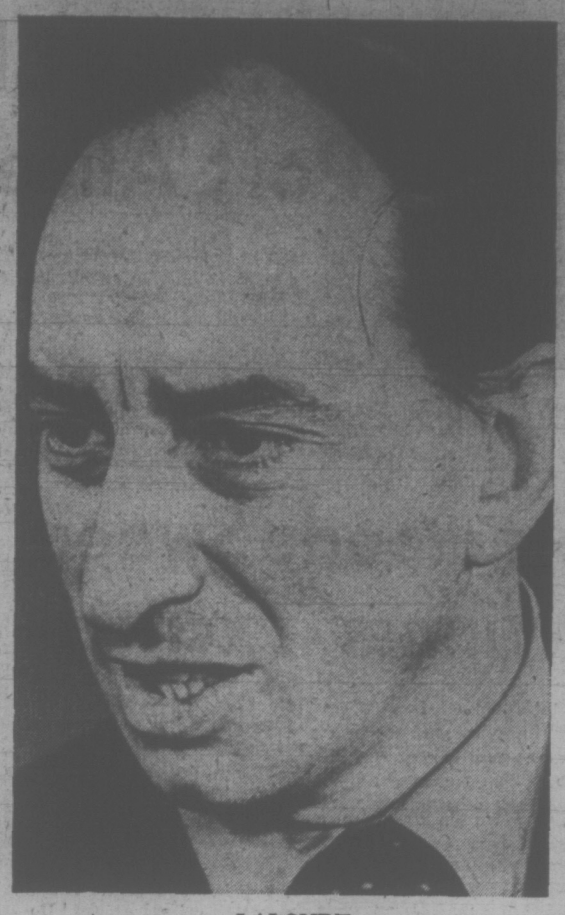
He does not think that anti-French backlash was the single major cause of Liberal reverses, but he believes that it did play an important part. "And even where it did not play a part, I was struck by the disquieting lack of awareness of what we were trying to do."

He gave as an example of insensitivity the comment of Stanley Knowles, the NDP member for Winnipeg North Centre, who had said of Trudeau's cabinet shuffle in November that he had moved three ministers who had been an embarrassment to him, namely Marchand, Pelletier and Jean-Pierre Goyer, formerly Solicitor-General and now Minister of Public Works.

It just so happened that the ministers singled out by Knowles were French-Canadians. Lalonde comments that he finds it hard to believe that of all the ministers involved in the shuffle, there was not a single English-speaking one who was notably incompetent. He does not suggest that Knowles is a racist, just that he suffers from a common blind spot.

The Toronto Star, he said, repudiated the Liberals over the issue of foreign ownership of the economy, because the paper found the Liberals showed insufficent zeal for controlling the flow of foreign investment.

"To me it seems almost beyond belief that for them this is the most serious problem in Canada." It showed an unawareness of the seriousness of the language cleavage in the country.



LALONDE
. . . out of PM's shadow

The Friends of the President

By CHARLES FOLEY
The London Observer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — For the first time in his presidency, Mr. Nixon's name is being linked, though at one remove, with leaders of organized crime in the United States. It is part of the Watergate fall-out which his aides at this West coast summer hideaway call "appalling". And it is only one of several new embarrassments looming on the presidential horizon.

Questions are being asked about his new friendship with Frank Fitzsimmons, portly chief of the corrupt, politically powerful Teamsters — the biggest labor union in the country. Why has Fitzsimmons become one of Mr. Nixon's closest pals, a guest at this Western White House and a fellow-traveller from Washington on the presidential plane, Air Force One?

Is there any connection between the Teamstrs' electoral support last year and the president's intervention on behalf of Fitzsimmons's predecessor, James Hoffa, who was sprung from jail by "executive clemency" in time for the 1972 election? A parole board had rejected the appeals by Hoffa, who was serving a sentence for helping himself to the union's $900 million pension fund, and for then trying to bribe the jury hearing his case.

The president, we are assured, has been too busy working in what he calls his "den" to watch the Watergate television spectacle. He is "shocked" by "attempts to associate him with wrong-doing". Nor can he find comfort in the pages of the Los Angeles Times, which is running a series ("The Mob Muscles In") on Nixon's alliance with the Teamsters, and the Teamsters' with the Mafia.

This campaign has been pressed with racket-busting fervor by a former aide to ex-Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, now national editor of the Los Angeles Times, Edwin Guthman, who was Number Three on the famous White House enemies list. A note beside his name read: "It's time to give him the message."

It is Guthman, however, who has delivered the message, based in part on leaks from four federal grand jury inquiries into Mafia-Teamster connections.

It was at the height of the fund-raising spree of the Committee to Re-elect the President (CREEP) that Nixon's old friend former Attorney General John Mitchell, and White House counsellor Charles Colson, recommended release for Hoffa. When Colson later joined a private law firm, the Teamsters transferred to that firm their $100,000-a-year legal business.

Another Teamster ex-President, Dave Beck, owed $1,250,000 in back taxes. The then-Secretary of the Treasury, John Connally, approved a moratorium on the debt and when Connally became chairman of the CREEP-funded "Democrats for Nixon", his national vice-chairman was Fitzsimmons, who delivered up the two million-strong Teamster vote.

Now a Los Angeles-based federal Organized Crime Strike Force says that Fitzsimmons has been meeting in Palm Springs with Sam Sciortino, Peter Milano and Joe Lamandi, who are identified by the FBI as Mafia figures in California. Yet both Fitzsimmons and his wife have won presidential appointments to national boards. And when all other representatives of organized labor resigned recently from the Wages and Prices Board in protest at Nixon's Policies, Fitzsimmons stayed on. A criminal charge against Fitzsimmons's son, Richard, a Teamsters official, has been dropped.

At San Clemente, Press aide Ron Ziegler denied that all this was part of a deal: "Untrue. Absolutely absurd." But federal investigators say they are struggling to resist interference with grand jury inquiries.

FITZSIMMONS
. . . Mafia pals

Another of Nixon's friends who is being "associated with wrong-doing", is Arnholt Smith, head of a business empire that covers much of the South-West. Together they watched the 1968 Nixon election victory on television. Smith contributed $200,000 to that campaign, but his 1972 handout had to be returned to avoid "conflict of interest." Now 74-year-old Smith is accused by the Securities and Exchange Commission of systematically looting some $100 million from the assets of the U.S. National Bank, one of California's largest, and a huge conglomerate called Westage-California. Charges that Smith-controlled firms have contributed heavily to CREEP, despite a legal bar on corporate contributions, are also being probed.

Smith's chief accuser, David Stutz, claims that when, as a member of a federal team, he found such contributions were being funnelled into campaign coffers, Washington halted the inquiry. "We got one look at the books — then finish." Stutz also says the White House stopped him from testifying at the bribery trial of San Diego Mayor Frank Curran, a friend of the president, and other business leaders involved in the scandal. All but one of the defendants were acquitted. They included Curran, who received a congratulatory call from Nixon.

A business partner of Arnholt Smith, Alessio has just completed a three-year tax evasion sentence. While serving it, he was taken to dine with friends and visit women in seaside motels. Now that Alessio is out, the prison director is in — convicted of accepting bribes.

Hunting Pack Journalism

By JOHN CROSBY
The London Observer

The Times of London has recently been quite upset over the way the American press has been hounding poor President Nixon and published a strong leader which said the American press wasn't showing the proper reverence for "due process of law."

This so bemused the Americans that they invited The Times editor, Mr. William Rees-Mogg, across the Atlantic to light into them at one of their National Press Club luncheons. (American newsmen find strong criticism as bracing as a cold shower—and it has about the same permanent effect.)

Mr. Rees-Mogg duly appeared and denounced the Amican press for acting like "a hunting pack" snapping at the heels of poor Mr. Nixon who, he said, had been a "good vice-president" (I wish he'd explain what makes a good vice-president. No one in America, including the occupants of the office, have ever known), "a good party leader" (well, he wanted to be president and he got it) and "a man of remarkable achievements." All very entertaining.

If I might be forgiven a few criticisms of Mr. Rees-Mogg's criticisms, I should just like to express the opinion that he — and the British press in general — spend far too much time and energy worrying about "due process" and far too little acting like a hunting pack.

There is much to be said for hunting-pack journalism. Let the lawyers uphold due process. It's what they are for. They are very good at it, very long-winded, and very highly paid to do just that. It is far more important for the press to kick the lawyers in their backsides for failing in their duties, as they so frequently do, than to try to do their work for them.

The fact is, Mr. Rees-Mogg, the Watergate mess has been in the hands of the justice department, which is awash with lawyers, for a year and a half during which time they almost succeeded in whitewashing everyone except a few duly appointed scapegoats. The lawyers had almost buried Watergate in due process and only the hunting pack prevented them.

It's a very great mistake for the press to fall into a coma of admiration for the courts or due process or for the English legal system, which I, alone in the world, think is not all that hot. The press's job is to keep the legal eagles on their toes, and for God's sake stop worrying about stepping on them. In fact, since we're letting our hair down about each other's habits, Mr. Rees-Mogg, I find the British press overly worshipful about office-holders in general.

In every American reporter there lurks the suspicion that all holders of public office are knaves, scoundrels or imbeciles. In the very few cases where the working press has substituted idolatry for iconoclasm (as in the case of John F. Kennedy) the end result has been disillusionment.

Working habits are very different over there. The idea of a newspaperman waiting hat in hand outside the Home Office while the home secretary tries to make up his tiny mind — or some oaf in the civil service makes it up for him — as to just what should or should not be printed, strikes us as just plain quaint.

I have been accused of being overly cynical about the processes of law and the courts (ours, not yours) and it's true, it's true. Our legal system, it has long seemed to me, is designed exclusively for the protection of the rich and powerful, to keep Mafia mobsters out of jail rather than to put them into it, for delay and obfuscation and the enrichment of lawyers — rather than any silly nonsense about justice. I truly believe, along with our legendary newspaper columnist, Mr. Dooley, that the United States Supreme Court follows the election returns — which was his way of saying the people are smarter than the judges. The U.S. Supreme Court held (until the Civil War changed their mind) that runaway slaves should be returned to their masters because they were private property, weren't they?

ROOSEVELT
. . . didn't hurt him

The Times has shown itself to be no slouch at investigative journalism and no one applauded louder than I did when it exposed crooked police officers and they were sent to jail. But, lo and behold, some sectors of the British press actually thought the Times had pushed in where it shouldn't, and even the Times sounded almost apologetic about its own superb reporting.

Frankly, I think the British press spends far too much time worrying about what shouldn't be printed and far too little about what should. This is all part of the comforting British illusion that the British public servant can't be bribed, that all is best in this best of all possible worlds, and what is the world coming to if British ministers can't go to bed with whores in peace and quiet as they always have?

Now these clowns in the Younger Committee have cooked up even tighter restrictions on the press that would make it impossible to uncover high crimes and misdemeanors. No wonder biographies of people like Oliver Cromwell are so popular in this country. A man has to be in his grave for 300 years before one is allowed to print the facts.

Two-thirds of the American populace — if you believe the Gallup Poll — now feel that Mr. Nixon either helped to plan Watergate or helped to cover it up. Mr. Rees-Mogg probably believes the press planted these suspicions by its hunting-pack tactics.

I don't. The people are smart enough to make up their own minds on the basis of the facts, to distinguish hearsay from hard evidence and to judge the reliability of witnesses — all things only lawyers are supposed to be smart enough to do.

After all, Franklin D. Roosevelt was reviled, derided and denounced by nine-tenths of the American press for 12 long years, which didn't prevent him from winning four great elections, most of them overwhelmingly.

Pollution Cut Claimed For Port Alice Mill

Figures produced at a Pollution Control Board hearing today predicted a reduction of chemical cellulose at Rayonier's Port Alice pulp mill once a new mill goes into operation at Port Clair in Quebec.

The new mill is scheduled to go into operation in 1974. That year, the Port Alice operation will be reducedby 200,000 tons a year. In 1975, an additional 100,000 tons reduction was predicted and in 1976 another 6,000 tons.

Rayonier is appealing a Dec. 31, 1975, deadline set by William Venables, director of the Pollution Control Branch, to meet pollution restrictions. The company is asking for a six to nine-month extension.

Under questioning today, Edward Button, manager of environmental engineering for Rayonier, said that the installation of a recovery unit at the Port Alice plant would increase the cost of labor by $174,000 during its first year of operation and would cause an increase of $602,000 for additional maintenance.

Button said the recovery unit installation would cost $30.1 million.

Ray Blatchley of West Vancouver, chief financial officer for Rayonier Canada, said the Port Alice mill had madea net profit of $111,000 during the first three months of this year.

He said that once the new anti-pollution unit was installed it could result in a loss of $2.01 per ton of pulp in 1979.

Bull Fight Rocks French Villages

LAVOUX, France (AP) — The farmers of two villages six miles apart in central France are at war over their rival stations for the artificial insemination of cows.

One bull has died and several policemen have been injured so far. The municipal council of Lavoux has resigned and farmers armed with shotguns, scythes and pitchforks are preparing for the next battle.

The artificial insemination centre at nearby Mignaloux has the blessing of the government. Farmers at Lavoux, which has a population of 632, set up a co-operative insemination centre of their own and ignored official orders to close it.

The prefect (governor) of Vienne department (county) sent police to confiscate the Lavoux stock of sperm. The Lavoux farmers responded by marching across the fields to kidnap some of the prize bulls of Mignaloux.

They followed up with a demonstration outside the prefect's office in Poitiers, the administrative capital of the department. Several policemen were hurt breaking up the demonstration.

The prefect ordered the seizure of the bulls owned by the Lavoux farmers. Lavoux attacked the Mignaloux centre last week and a stable was burned down and one bull was killed.

Beaten into retreat by police and Mignaloux farmers, the Lavoux faction again marched on the prefect's office and tried to break down the wrought iron gates. A few more policemen had to receive first aid.

Stampede Sweep Winner 'Excited'

CALGARY (CP) — "I am very nervous and excited," W. D. Cox, 31, of Gravenhurst, Ont., said in a telephone call today upon learning that he won the $100,000 first prize money of the Chuckwagon Sweepstakes in Calgary last weekend.

"Let me think for a while and I'll call you back," he told Charles McLean, sweepstakes manager of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede. "Maybe I'll come to Calgary to pick up the money."

McLean said Cox, who is single and apparently unemployed, bought three tickets for $5 when he visited the Stampede during the weekend of July 7-8 and left Calgary about July 9.

"Mr. Cox apparently only knew that he won the first prize shortly before I called him this morning," McLean said. "He confirmed to me the ticket and said: 'I am very nervous and excited.' He didn't say much. He said he had to calm down and think about it."

McLean said the money Cox won is tax-free.

Second and third prizes, worth $20,000 and $10,000 respectively, went to Vaugh Hammond of Spences Bridge, and John Pope of Calgary.

Grounded Liner Afloat Again

LONDON (UPI) — The British cruise liner Canberra was refloated Sunday off Grenada, where it had been stuck on a sandbank since Thursday.

A spokesman for P and O lines said the 43,975 ton ship was not damaged and would sail later today.

The ship, carrying more than 1,500 passengers, will go to Barbados and St. Thomas, but will skip a scheduled stop at Martinique because of the delay.

The liner is due in New York Friday — two days late, the spokesman said.

Heroin Case Appeal

Notice of appeal has been filed against the conviction of a Sidney man, sentenced July 11 to two years less a day definite and a similar period indeterminate, for possession of heroin for trafficking.

Jody Coward, 21, of 10041 Fifth, was convicted by a Victoria County Court jury June 25.

Coward was approached by RCMP narcotics officer Blaine Froats in the Churchill Hotel pub Feb. 26. A balloon containing 10 caps of heroin was found under the tablecloth where Coward had been sitting.

Coward's lawyer Harold Turnham said, in the notice of appeal, the verdict was unreasonable and not supported by the evidence.

Free Movies Set For Beacon Hill

Six weeks of free movies in Beacon Hill Park start Tuesday at 9 p.m.

The films, all from the National Film Board, will be shown each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 9 p.m. in the Cameron Bandshell.

Two short films will be shown Tuesday, Don't Knock the Ox and Water Water Everywhere, plus an hour-long film on myths and facts about wolves, called Death of a Legend.

Thursday a 50-minute film on Norman Jewison, director of movies like Fiddler on the Roof and Jesus Christ Superstar, will be shown.

Director of the park movie program is James Coey, a student working for the National Film Board under a summer program called Cinepause.

The city of Victoria is sponsoring the six-week program.

Coey began showing films this weekend to people waiting for the ferry at Swartz Bay. He plans to do this each Friday and Sunday evening after 9, using the coffee area at the ferry terminal.

He has also been taking tilms to the Gulf Islands and plans to hold a film workshop on Galiano Island at the end of July.

COBBLE HILL HOME RAZED

A fire early Sunday destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hughes of Killipi Rd. in Cobble Hill.

Hughes received burns on his hands, and his wife Marjorie suffered burns on her arms, back and hair. She is in satisfactory condition in Cowichan District Hospital.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said the fire started about 5:30 a.m. and was probably caused by a short circuit in an old radio.

Value of property destroyed by the fire has not been determined, said RCMP.

Indians to Take Over Cassair, Davis Claims

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Environment Minister Jack Davis predicted Saturday that Japan's Marubeni Corporation will sell its interest in the Cassiar Fish Packing Company and that the North Coast Indians will take over control.

Marubeni recently purchased 49 per cent of Cassiar, bringing strong protests from the British Columbia government which said that, in effect, the Japanese would control many of the fish processing licences involved.

Davis said in an interview he will not allow any such licences to be bought by the Japanese or any other foreigners. He predicted his position will force Marubeni to sell its 49-per-cent interest in Cassiar by next March when licences come up for renewal.

The minister said he believes Indians along the coast in northwestern B.C. should control Cassiar and said he believes federal funds will be made available to the Indians — not only to buy out Marubeni but also the remaining 51 per cent held by other interests.

Davis said new rules are planned to keep fishing licences exclusively for Canadians, and stressed that fishing licences are a federal responsibility and Ottawa grants or denies licences annually.

The minister said it's an industry in which "we're going to have Canadian ownership 100 per cent forever, as far as I'm concerned."

Davis said that next spring, when the Cassiar company applies for licences, federal authorities will be concerned about its pattern of ownership, and how it has changed over the last year.

BANKS BOOST WEST: BRIEF

TORONTO (CP) — Far from draining resources from the western provinces, Canadian chartered banks serve the area disproportionately to western deposits, population and other critieria, the Canadian Bankers' Association says in a brief.

The association says bank loans exceed deposits in each of the four western provinces.

The "positive balance" — the difference between assets and liabilities — were $1.22 billion for the western provinces at the end of the last banking year at Oct. 31, 1972, the brief says.

The brief released today was prepared for a Calgary conference July 24-26 on western economic opportunities.

It appears to draw much the same conclusion as a federal government brief released last week which said the traditional western lament that the region is short-changed by eastern financial interests appears unjustified by facts.

The bank association brief says the positive balance by province was: Manitoba $205 million; Saskatchewan $180 million; Alberta $633 million, and British Columbia $207 million.

On regional banks, the association say the advantages of the present branch-banking system "outweigh conclusively any arguments put forward on behalf of small localized regional institutions."

Kahane Details Bomb Plan

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the Jewish Defence League, said today he proposed to associates in the United States that they blow up the now-empty Iraqi embassy in Washington, D.C., to draw attention to the plight of Iraqi Jewry.

The JDL leader told a news conference that he had sent a letter to unnamed persons "shortly after five Iraqui Jews were killed" several month ago.

"I proposed that a bomb be placed in the empty Iraqi embassy in Washington to help save the other 400 Jews still in Iraq," he said.

Kahane, who faces charges of conspiring to kidnap and murder a foreign diplomat in the United States in a Jerusalem trial beginning Friday, said he had been charged with conspiring to blow up the Iraqi embassy in the same indictment.

He added that he plans to plead guilty to the facts of the indictment, but will deny that he committed any crimes.

Meanwhile, he told newsmen that he would run in this fall's Knesset (Parliament) elections, even if he should be behind prison bars.

"Of course, I'll let my name stand for the election. If I'm in jail, I'll want to get out," he said.

Kahane plans to ask the Jerusalem district court to postpone his forthcoming trial until Nov. 20, nearly a month after the election. If he wins a Knesset seat, he would be free from prosecution, as are all Knesset members.

Kahane spent a month in jail before the supreme court allowed him out on $24,000 bail July 6 in connection with the conspiracy charges.

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (Reuter) — A United States Army Mohawk aircraft crashed near Baumholder in the Rhineland palatinate Friday, killing both crew members. The plane was from the 73rd Aviation Company at Hanau, West Germany.

U.K. Dancers Visit

A group of 30 British square dancers arrived in Victoria Sunday for a four-day visit with members of the Vancouver Island Western Square Dance Association.

The visitors have been billeted with association members who will act as guides for sightseeing tours. Hosts and guests will attend a dinner and square dance tonight at 8:30 at Holyrood House. The square dance is open to other Greater Victoria dancers.

Tuesday's events include a picnic at Cowichan Lake, a tour of the sawmill at Youbou and visit to Butchart Gardens. Daytime Wednesdayy is free for sightseeing with a dance in the evening at Beaver Lake Park.

The group leaves Thursday morning for a four-day visit in Vancouver followed by a trip to Edmonton for Klondike Days.

Seizure Fatal

A 43-year-old Californian who collapsed with a heart attack aboard the Blackball ferry Mv. Coho was pronounced dead at Victoria General Hospital Friday night.

SPCA Demands Rodeo Boycott

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has urged humane societies in Europe to oppose any attempt by the Calgary Stampede to tour their respective countries.

The society's action follows a suggestion the rodeo be taken on a tour. No decision has been made, but the proposal is under consideration.

William Leach, president of the Victoria SPCA and an executive of the provincial body, said the society is opposed to the commercial exploitation of animals.

"We are opposed to using animals in Roman-forum type displays for the amusement of people," he said.

"The Rodeo Cowboys Association calls rodeos a sport. In reality they are nothing more than big-time show business."

He noted that rodeos and similar shows are banned in Britain.

Leach also took issue with Leon Neilson, a Calgary SPCA inspector, who recently defended the Stampede after a Briton described the rodeo as "diabolically cruel."

The Britain, Kevin White of Maidenhead, Berkshire, claimed the cinch strap is tightened around the horse's testicles, producing the bucking spectacle and is "barbaric and abhorrent to all those who care for the welfare of animals."

Neilson replied that 75 per cent of the horses used are mares.

He also said the cinch strap used is lined with sheepskin and fits about where a belt does on a person.

Leach said Neilson's statements were misleading.

"To say that 75 per cent of the bucking horses are mares is meaningless, does he (Neilson) suggest that causing mares to buck, by the use of a tight-bucking straps around their tender parts, is less cruel than using stallions?

"Neilson also talks of cinch straps attached to saddles," Leach added. "Every Alberta school boy knows that saddles are not used in bareback bronc riding.

"I have seen enough rodeos to know that animals suffer," Leach said.

Northair

Northair Mines Ltd. has reported to shareholders it has $400,000 in the treasury as of July 1 to continue exploration on its Brandywine property.

The claims are located 10 miles north of Brandywine Falls, 70 miles north of Vancouver and eight miles outside Garibaldi Park.

Drilling and tunnelling activities continue on the property.

Shell

Shell Oil Ltd. reports that oil and gas has come to the surface from a well in the miles northwest of Inuvik, N.W.T., in a drilling test below the 7,200-foot level.

A statement said that for mechanical reasons it was not possible to determine flow rates and further testing would be required to determine the significance of the discovery.

Trizec

Trizec Corp. Ltd., has announced the formation of Tristar Western Ltd. through which Trizec plans to expand development activity in Western Canada and the United States.

The new company's head office will be in Calgary with additional executive offices to be opened in Los Angeles.

Sam Hashman will be the president of the new subsidiary.

Hidrogas

Canadian Hidrogas Resources Ltd. of Calgary reports net earnings of $324,360 or 18.5 cents a share for the nine-month period ended March 31, 1973, compared with a deficit of $34,328 or a loss of 2.3 cents a share for the comparative period of 1971-72.

Voyager

Voyager Petroleums Ltd. of Calgary reports net earnings of $737,681 or 20.8 cents a share for the year ended March 31, 1973, compared with $451,469 or 14.6 cents a share a year ago.

Voyager operates in Alberta, Eastern Canada and the Arctic as well as in the United States, Britain, the Netherlands, Ethiopia and Australia.

Valley Copper Brass Given Rough Handling

The company holds copper reserves estimated at 800 million tons with an average grade of .48 per cent in the Highland Valley area near Kamloops.

Production feasibility studies were completed in June 1970.

Several shareholders expressed strong disagreement with the explanation of company president R. J. Armstrong that Valley Copper must wait for the B.C. government to announce its tax intentions before making a decision.

Cominco Ltd. holds 69.8 per cent of the outstanding shares of Valley Copper.

Armstrong, who is also a Cominco vice-president, reviewed B.C. government statements about its tax intentions and said "if all the tax changes become effective, and there has been no indication from the provincial government that they will not, we could face a crashing estimated tax load of more than 65 per cent of net profits by 1977."

"This could well make a project like Valley Copper uneconomic, particularly when copper prices drop according to the historical pattern of highs and lows which we have witnessed in past decades.

"In order that mining projects such as Valley Copper production decision.

can go ahead in British Columbia, I am sure you will agree that it is essential that these uncertainties must be eliminated without delay.

In addition, new laws affecting tenure and production planning require clarification before major financing can be arranged."

H. H. Huestis, a prospector who staked a considerable part of the Valley Copper property and previously staked Bethlehem Copper of which he now is honorary vice-chairman, said, "I think the directors of Valley Copper have been hollering taxes year after year."

"Let's get into production and see about the taxes later. Governments change from time to time. If you were in production now you'd be out of debt." (He referred to current copper prices of over 90 cents a pound.)

Student Troubleshooters Offer Consulting Service

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ten University of Manitoba business administration students are spending their summer studying the problems of some 20 to 25 small businesses throughout the province.

For a nominal $100 fee, the students will spend up to one month examining the operations and problems in a particular firm as part of a program designed to benefit smaller businesses normally unable to afford a management consulting service.

As well, the experience is expected to provide a solid background for the students prior to their completing the final year of a two-year university course.

Jock McDonald, one of the students involved in the project, said: "By combining our theoretical knowledge with the businessman's practical experience we try to come up with a solution for the firm's problems that will fit his constraints and personnel."

MUST FIND PROBLEM

Another participant, Robert Dilay, said one of the major objectives is accurately identifying the core problem.

"For example, a client may say his troulbe is poor sales, whereas the real problem is his product," he explained.

In addition to seeking out the root problem, consultants point out minor changes which could improve the firm's operations.

Dilay said the students have found the reaction of businesses they have visited to be one of acceptance.

"They are very receptive and accept us as equals."

Pat Chudley, also a student, said it takes about two weeks for the two-man consulting team to become familiar with the firm and its personnel.

BECOME INVOLVED

"By getting to know the people we are working with, we can not only better understand the problem and suggest a more suitable solution, but keep the doors open for following up our work."

Dale Beckman, chairman of the program funded by the Manitoba industry department and a $35,000 youth secretariat grant, said students also become involved in the implementation of their suggestions.

"Often the firm may agree with the suggestion but does not have the manpower to use it."

He said students often can provide the necessary manpower through their six-month commitment with the firm to continue consulting advice.

McDonald said some of the firms do not necessarily have a problem and are simply looking for direction.

The two most frequent problems facing students concern marketing research and financial planning control systems. Other areas of concern include sales promotion, production, purchasing, inventory control and new ventures.

Spy Buoy?

CAGLIARI, Sardinia (Reuter) — Italian secret police are investigating a buoy containing electronic devices and a transmitter found close to a NATO missile site on Sardinia, informed sources said in Rome. The sources said the buoy had markings in the Cyrillic alphabet, similar to that used in Russia.

Paper Closed

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuter) — Chilean authorities have banned publication for six days of the Santiago newspaper La Tercera de la Hora. They ordered the detention of its publisher for printing a statement by a neo-Fascist organization that took responsibility for last month's unsuccessful coup attempt in Chile.

CAR DESTROYED

A car was destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon at the corner of Fairfield and Irving when wires shorted under the car's dashboard.

An estimated $4,000 damage was done to the new Pontiac driven by Mrs. Yolande Coleman, of 2375 MacNeill.

A Victoria fire department spokesman said Mrs. Coleman was adjusting the ventilation under the dashboard when the fire broke out.

By the time firemen reached the scene it had spread to the entire car and was burning asphalt on the road.

No one was injured.

HE GOT HIS NEWS —WITH A TWANG

VANCOUVER (CP) — Paula Preston, 23, of 1424 Nelson, devised a novel device to trap the person who took her newspaper from outside her apartment on several occasions.

She took an old edition of the paper, attached a length of thread to it and hooked it to a spring-type doorstep inside the suite.

It worked. She told pollee she heard the doorstop "twang" and saw the thief running toward the elevator with the booby-trapped newspaper under his arm.

Police said they plan to summons a man who lives in the same apartment block.

Nolan No-Hits Tigers

—AP Wirephoto

CONGRATULATIONS are offered Nolan Ryan (30) by teammate Bill Singer (48) after former came up with his second no-hitter of American Baseball League season. Ryan struck out 17 in 6-0 win over Detroit.

By The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan shrugged off the fact he had just tossed his second no-hitter of the year Sunday and launched into reasons why he really needed it.

The fireballing California right-hander had struck out 17 while pitching the Angels to a 6-0 victory over Detroit Tigers and insisted he had to work on his pitching.

"I needed this because I wasn't pitching well," Ryan said. A Cap Day crowd of 41,411 sat in at Tiger Stadium.

Around the rest of the American League Sunday, Minnesota Twins topped Cleveland Indians 7-6 in 10 innings, Baltimore Orioles edged Chicago White Sox 3-2, New York Yankees blanked Kansas City Royals 2-0, Oakland A's best Milwaukee Brewers 8-5 and Boston Red Sox defeated Texas Rangers in a game halted by rain after 5⅓ innings.

"I was 'up' more than I have been because of the way we've been losing . . . I wanted to throw a shutout," he said.

Ryan, 26, became only the fifth man in major league baseball history to pitch two no-hitters in one season. Two months ago to the day he no-hit the Royals.

No one has ever had three no-hit games in a single season.

It was the third no-hitter in the American League this year. The other was against Detroit, a 3-0 victory for Steve Busby of the Royals on April 27.

"So I've thrown two good games," Ryan said of his 1973 gems. "But look at my record. I'm 11-11. I can't look back and say 1973 was my best year just because I pitched two no-hitters.

"I haven't pitched as well as last year and I feel I have to improve myself. I feel for this club to stay in the pennant race I have to do the job I'm capable of doing in the second half of the season."

A long delay, due to a five-run Angel eighth inning, caused Ryan's arm to stiffen somewhat. He only struck out one batter he last two innings.

After the first seven innings, Ryan had seemed a cinch to break the league's nine-inning strikeout record of 18, set in 1938 by Bob Feller of Cleveland.

"There'll be another day," Ryan said.

The 17 strikeouts matched Ryan's career high. He had 17 against Minnesota last Sept. 30 which tied the league mark of a nine-inning night game.

He has 220 so far this season in 189 innings. Last year he led the major leagues with 329 strikeouts in 284 innings. It was also the 12th time this season and the 43rd time in his career that he's struck out 10 or more batters in a game.

The closest thing to a hit was a rising line drive by designated hitter Gates Brown with one out in the ninth. Shortstop Rudy Meoli moved back to the edge of the grass when Brown came to bat and made a leaping catch.

The crowd, which seemed complacent until it began cheering every strike in the bottom of the ninth, gave Ryan a standing ovation.

Vada Pinson gave Ryan all the support he needed with a sacrifice fly in the third off loser Jim Perry, 8-9.

In the National League, Juan Marichal came out of the bullpen to toss a four-hitter and Willie McCovey came off the bench to clout two home runs as San Francisco Giants shut out Pittsburgh Pirates 12-0.

Elsewhere in the National, Atlanta Braves hammered Montreal Expos 6-1, Los Angeles Dodgers trounced Chicago Cubs 9-3, St. Louis Cardinals edged San Diego Padres 5-4 in 15 innings, Cincinnati Reds shaded New York Mets 3-1 and Houston Astros blanked Philadelphia Phillies 2-0 in a game cut to 5½ innings by rain. Optimists Sweep Babe Ruth Series

Despite being outhit in every game, Saanich Evening Optimists literally walked into the provincial playoffs by winning the best-of-five 13-year-old Babe Ruth area baseball championship against Victoria-Esquimalt in straight games at the weekend.

Saanich took advantage of 20 walks to win the third game of the series at Reynolds Park 12-5 Sunday afternoon after utilizing 15 bases on balls en route to a 9-5 victory earlier in the day.

On Saturday, Saanich opened the series by blanking Victoria-Esquimalt, 4-0.

Saanich now advances to the B.C. tournament starting Saturday at Royal Athletic Park. Another Victoria team, Cosmopolitans, received a bye into the provincial tourney as the host team.

A Great Day in Golf for Canadian Nationalists

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Dave Mick appreciated a professional's advice while Marilyn Palmer "felt a lot better" playing in Friday's semi-finals than she did in Saturday's final for the Pacific Northwest Golf Association women's championship.

Because of what they did, Saturday's pleasure was much greater than Friday's for the nationalists.

Miss Palmer, a 26-year-old Coquitlam teacher, ended a 40-year wait by defeating Robin Walton of Clarkston, Wash., 4 and 3, in their 36-hole title playoff.

It was the first time the PNGA women's championship returned to Canada since Mrs. V. S. Hutchings of Vancouver won it for a record sixth time back in 1933.

And with Mick defeating Jeff Ellis, 5 and 4, for the men's championship, the nationalists doubled their pleasure.

It is the first time since 1912 that Canada produced both champions for the PNGA. That was the year Victorians R. N. Hincks and Mrs. W. H. Ricardo both triumphed.

Only four over par for the morning 18, but six over for the 15 afternoon holes, Miss Palmer admitted to being worried. She had been favored to defeat the remarkably-cool 17-year-old Walton, but wasn't able to pull away until a late surge put her ahead to stay.

It started on the 26th hole when Marilyn ran down an eight-foot birdie putt to go one up. She also won the next two holes to go three up, and the handwriting appeared on the wall for Miss Walton.

"Yes," said Miss Palmer, "I was worried. I didn't trust myself. It wasn't like yesterday (Friday, when she defeated defending U.S. women's champion Mary Budke in the semi-finals). I was ready for that one.

"The big thing today was that I couldn't save a shot. I didn't chip too well, either."

Mick didn't plan on entering the tournament, but did so at the urging of Cowichan pro Bill Wakeham. As a result, Mick is the first Canadian to snap up the honor since Ron Willey, now a Vancouver pro, accomplished the trick in 1960.

Saturday's scheduled two-round match was Mick's 11th in eight days, but there was no sign of fatigue in his game.

The 22-year-old dentistry student who plays out of Gorge Vale played two rounds in the B.C. invitational tournament the privious weekend to win a spot on the B.C. Willingdon Cup team for a third straight year.

Then he marched into the PNGA event, which included double rounds on each of the final three days.

Against Ellis, Mick scored an approximate two-under-par 68 in the morning round to grab a four-up lead. That included a penalty stroke on the 18th for an unplayable lie when Mick's drive rolled up against a tree.

Mick was one over par for the 14 holes played in the afternoon.

Both Mick and Ellis putted extremely well but the big difference was from tee to green. Mick rarely strayed while the fast-playing Ellis constantly flirted with trouble with erratic drives.

Beman Is All Better And $25,000 Richer

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Deane Beman, noted for his brain rather than his brawn in six years on the PGA tournament tour, says in winning the $125,000 Shrine-Robinson golf open he has completed his convalescence.

Beman, who underwent a delicate arm operation earlier in the year, said that he now feels as if he is playing solid golf again and "that feeling well is really more rewarding to me than winning a tournament."

The former amateur champion, who left a successful insurance business in Washington, D.C., to join the pros at the age of 29, flashed a closing 67 Sunday to take the $25,000 first prize by one stroke.

Beman totalled 271, 13-under par on the Crawford County Country Club course.

Bunky Henry, who went broke after winning only $455 at the Hawaiian Open earlier this year—his entire earnings for the season — and took a month off from the tour to find a sponsor, shared second place with Bob Dickson.

Dickson, winner of the San Diego Open this spring, and Henry pocketed $11,562 each for second place.

Both made a final charge, closing with five-under-par 66s to card tournament totals of 272.

Henry included an eagle three on the 12th and a birdie two on the 18th in his finish. Dickson birdied four out of five holes, starting with the 11th, in his bid.

Chuck Courtney earned fourth place, shooting 69 for 273, Larry Hinson with 67 was fifth at 274, and George Archer, 68, and rookie pro Arch North, 70, shared sixth at 275.

Early in 1973 Beman had ligaments relocated in his left wrist.

"Through a mistake of nature, the muscles of my forearm grew too far down my wrist, forcing them to rub the tendons and causing pain," he explained. "The operation seems to have cured it and I am just getting back into the swing of things

Victorians Miss Out In Provincial Finals

WEST VANCOUVER — Darrell Prezeau of Victoria was edged by one point Sunday in a three-way playoff to decide the B.C. lawn bowling singles championship.

Prezeau, a member of the Lake Hill Lawn Bowling Club, was nipped 15-14 by Manuel Valoma of South Vancouver, who then went on to beat clubmate Harvey Wheanut 15-7 to take the singles title.

The three players had all finished the preliminary section of the round-robin event tied with 4-2 win-loss records.

Prezeau moved into the three-way tie by defeating Wayne Hopwood of South Vancouver 21-17 and Hopwood's clubmate Louie Sousa 21-16 Saturday.

Victorians also lost out in the doubles final when the Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club pair Jim McGregor and John Wright, the former B.C. champions, were shaded 21-17 by Vince Sutherland and Vic Bradley of the South Vancouver club.

The winners of both events go on to the Canadian championships in Regina Aug. 20-22.

Mixer Night At Meadows

Three new tennis courts at the Glen Meadows Golf and Country Club on McTavish Road will be open for visitors' use on Tuesday.

Club officials have arranged a special "mixer evening," starting at 6:30, and are inviting the public to participate in the introductory event.

Boxers Lace Boxla Rivals

CAMPBELL RIVER — London Boxing Club rounded out its regular schedule in the Vancouver Island Senior "C" Lacrosse League Saturday night by pounding out a 24-7 victory over Campbell River Mariners.

Brian Spaven led the Boxers with six goals while Owen Richman scored five times and Murray Muralt had four goals.

Senior "C" playoffs start this Saturday.

Cosmos Face Elimination

NORTH VANCOUVER — Cosmopolitan All-Stars of Victoria must beat North Vancouver at 6:30 tonight in order to keep title hopes alive in the 14-15 year-olds Babe Ruth provincial baseball playoffs.

Cosmopolitans dropped their opening game in the tourney 7-3 to Kelowna on Saturday.

The loss put Cosmos into the losers' bracket of the double-loss elimination tourney.

In Sunday games, Nanaimo topped North Vancouver 7-5 and Kelowna 1-0 while Coquitlam defeated Mt. Seymour 4-2.

Inter-Community dropped Coquitlam 4-3 and Mt. Seymour downed Prince George 13-4 in other Saturday games.

LIONS LAND DAURON

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Dick Dauron, a running back from Yale who was Detroit Lions' fourth-round 1973 draft choice, has signed a contract with the National Football League club.

Shavers, Garden Suffering

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — Ernie Shavers and Madison Square Garden are both in a lot of pain today.

Shavers because he lost the use of his jaw for a while and the Garden because it lost an expected sellout for the Shavers-Jerry Quarry fight for at least as long.

Shavers' jaw was wired at Community General Hospital in Liberty, N.Y., Sunday night after the heavyweight fighter broke it during a sparring session.

Shavers of Warren, Ohio was sparring with New York heavyweight, Jeff Merritt. The six-foot-six, 220-pound Merritt landed a right-handed punch which fractured the mandible bone in two places.

The injury was described by Garden spokesman John Condon as worse than the broken jaw Muhammed Ali suffered in his bout with Ken Norton because Shavers suffered a double fracture, one on the high right cheek bone and the other on the lower left jaw bone.

Shavers, who has a record of 45-2 after his recent first-round knockout of former World Boxing Association champion Jimmy Ellis, was slated to meet Quarry July 25 in the Garden.

Condon said he doesn't know if there would be a replacement fight on the 25th, adding: "We're working to salvage the date and are in the process of seeking opponents for Quarry and having him approve them."

MOTHER OF THREE WINS BY A STROKE

HORSHAM, Pa. (AP) — Carcle Jo Skala, a 35-year-old mother of three young children, scored her first victory on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour Sunday when she won the $30,000 George Washington Classic by one stroke.

Mrs. Skala shot a three-under-par 70 for a 54-hole total of 214, five under, to edge Sandra Haynie and Kathy McMullen, each with 215. Debbie Austin and Judy Rankin tied for fourth with 217s.

Not even a 3½-hour delay because of rain deterred Mrs. Skala from overtaking Miss Haynie, who led by two strokes starting Sunday's final round. Mrs. Skala rallied from a discouraging first-round 76 to post a 68 Saturday that bolted her into contention.

ESQUIMALT GIRLS WIN

PORT ALBERNI — Kathy Wilkinson hurled a two-hitter and Laurie Skinner cracked a home run in the final here Sunday to give Esquimalt Blake's Plumbing and Heating the Vancouver Island juvenile girls' softball title.

Blake's downed View Royal of Victoria 3-2 in the final of the four-team, double-loss elimination championship. The other teams competing were Port Alberni and Comox.

Mike's Sport Shop collected the most wins and Port Angeles Telecable suffered the greatest number of defeats during weekend action in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Playing at home, Telecable dropped 2-1 and 6-3 decisions to Mikes on Sunday after splitting 4-2 and 4-2 with Labatts on Saturday.

In other Sunday games, Six Mile House topped Bell's Men's Wear 7-5 at Heywood Avenue Park and Royal Oak Sporting Goods hammered Sooke Merchants 6-1 at Sooke.

President's Eleven Scores Cricket Win

For some time at Beacon Hill Park Sunday, Mal Shanks thought his team had the measure of Victoria and District Cricket Association president Fred Maurice's XI.

As association vice-president, Shanks selected and captained the Vice-President's XI and his choice of players looked pretty good as Tim Lord of Cowichan hit a fine 69 runs not out.

However, Maurice's bowlers demoralized the other batsmen, with Jim Wenman taking five wickets for 30 runs and Dave Philip getting three for 23. Only castaways captain Dave Auld, who hit 19 runs, stood up to the onslaught.

Shanks' team was soon all out for 133.

Then, with Dave Shaw hitting a crisp 39 runs, Keith Dixon making 37 and Joe Schofield scoring 32 not out, the President's XI raced to 134 for the loss of only four wickets to win by six wickets.

The only bowling performance of note for the Vice-President's team was two wickets for 19 runs taken by Jan Aten.

McCluskey, Foyt Click

Times News Services

Roger McCluskey and A. J. Foyt won twin 200-mile races before a crowd of 43,700 at Michigan International Speedway Sunday. McCluskey drove a Lindsay-Hopkins-owned McLaren to victory in a 100-lapper for Indianapolis-type cars and three hours later finished a close second to Foyt in a race for late-model stock cars. Foyt wheeled his Chevrolet home 6.3 seconds ahead of McCluskey.

One driver was injured in the stock-car event. Irv Janey of Cedar Rapids was taken to hospital after his Dodge caught fire during a spin. He suffered second and third-degree burns.

At Trenton, Sunday, the Northern 300 NASCAR stock race was postponed because of rain and will be run Aug. 5. Bob Allison headed the qualifiers with a time of 131.707 m.p.h.

At Debert, N.S., Allan Lader of Gresham, Ore., took his fourth Players' Challenge series race in five events, winning the Atlantic division for Formula B cars. Top Canadian was second-place finisher Bill Brack of Toronto. Peter Ferguson, a rookie from Toronto, was third.

At Silverstone, Eng., Peter Revson of Redonda Beach became the first American to win a Grand Prix since 1971 and only the second in the last six years by taking the accident-marred British Grand Prix. It was his first victory on the Grand Prix circuit.

Last American winner had been Mario Andretti, who won the South African event two years ago. Revson, driving a Yardley-McLaren, took the lead on the 39th lap of the 67-lap event and held on despite pressure from both Ronnie Peterson of Sweden and Dennis Hulme of New Zealand. He averaged 131.75 m.p.h.

A multi-vehicle pileup after the first lap knocked 10 of the 28 starters out of the race. Andrea De Adamich of Italy suffered a broken leg. Accident occurred when South African Jody Scheckter lost control because of a punctured tire.

Tom's Attitude to Troon Mellows

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, the world's newest golf hero, continues to be puzzled by the Troon course, even after winning the British Open golf championship over the tricky seaside layout along Scotland's western shore.

Following his record-tying 12-under-par 276 Saturday, Weiskopf said: "I don't understand this course at all."

Golfing buffs wondered what he might have shot if he had set up a happy relationship with wind-battered, rain-splahed Troon.

Prior to the tournament over the 7,064-yard, par-72 course, Weiskopf voiced his displeasure with the layout. But his attitude mellowed with a constant stream of birdies.

Despite his original hostility, Weiskopf managed to win convincingly, equalling the bestever score for the 113-year-old event, set on the same Troon course by Arnold Palmer the last time the tourney was played here in 1962.

"I still say it's a tough course," Weiskopf maintained.

"I played my best golf ever. I never three-putted once during the four rounds. But I've never been so confused at the start of a tournament. And I still feel puzzled now."

Weiskopf, who never had won a major tourney before arriving here, had been redhot this year, taking three events on the U.S. PGA circuit in two months.

The prize money for the British Open winner was a modest $14,300. But victory in the prestige-laden event carries a host of endorsements and other fringe benefits which should lift Weiskopf, who a few years ago couldn't afford to play as an amateur, into the select million dollar class.

Miller made a strong bid. So did Britain's Neil Coles and favored Jack Nicklaus.

Island Athletes Sparkle

RICHMOND — Vancouver Island had four double winners and picked up 14 titles in the B.C. open and midget track and field championships held here Saturday and Sunday.

All four double champions, three from the Victoria Mercuries Track Club and one from Nanaimo, were in the midget (15 and 16) age group.

Tim Findlay of Nanaimo won the shot put with a throw of 15.52 metres and the javelin with 47.76 metres while Mercuries' sprinter Kathy Welch took the 100 metres in 12.4 seconds and the 200 metres in 25.6.

Ulla Hansen of the Mercuries actually placed second in the midget girls' 1,500 metres Saturday in 4 minutes, 43.8 seconds but took the B.C. title as winner Laurie DeClerc (4:32.3) came from Calgary and didn't qualify. Miss Mansen won the 800 metres title Sunday in 2:19.8.

The same thing happened in the same midget boys' races where Tom Griffin of the Mercuries finished second in one race but picked up two B.C. titles.

Mike Maudsley of Calgary beat Griffin in the 1,500 metres Saturday with a time of 4:01.3 but Griffin, who ran the 1,500 in 4:10.9, turned the tables on his Calgary rival Sunday, winning the 800 metres in two minutes flat.

Bev Cox of Victoria, who runs for the Vancouver Olympic Club, won the open women's 400 metres in 55.4 seconds Saturday but placed only third in the 800 metres Sunday in 2:13.5.

Ted Roberts of Port Alberni also did better on the first day of the meet. He won the midget boys' 100 metres in 11.5 seconds but could manage only a third-place finish in 23.7 in Sunday's 200 metres.

Reg Effa of the Victoria Track Club and Brenda Staffanson of Nanaimo were the other Island winners Saturday. Effa won the open men's 100-metre hurdles in 15.6 seconds while Miss Staffanson took the women's high jump with five feet, four inches.

On Sunday, Murray Keating of the Victoria Track Club, winner of the gold medal at the recent Pacific International Games in Victoria, took the hammer throw with a toss of 61.78 metres (202 feet, 8 inches), and Brian Hawksworth of the VTC won the open men's 400 metres in 56.3.

Several other Islanders gave good performances Sunday.

In the midget girls' 200-metre hurdles, Wendy Davies of the Victoria Flying Y Track Club was second in 29.9 seconds and clubmate Debbie Stone was third in 30.2.

Paul Estrada of the VTC was second in the midget boys' pole vault with a height of 12 feet, one inch.

In the open women's long jump, Vicki Clarke of the VTC placed second with 5.64 metres while former Victorian Penny May was third with 5.45.

And in the open women's shot put, Lorna McHattie of the VTC was second with a throw of 11.86 metres and Joanne Calverley of Nanaimo was third.

After trials held in conjunction with the championships, Ian Campbell of the Victoria Y was named to compete in the decathlon event for the B.C. team in the Canada Summer Games in Burnaby next month.

Award-Claiming Power In Vancouver's Arms

Frased Arms of Vancouver walked off with most of the glory although three teams finished with identical won-lost records in Bates' invitational softball tournament at Royal Athletic Park.

Run production determined the tourney winner after Fraser Arms, Nanaimo Tally-Ho and the host Bate entry wound up with 3-1 records in the five-team, round-robin.

Vancouver infielder Dick Fraser, who batted .461, was singled out as the most valuable player and teammate Andy Knonopacki, who fired two shutouts and was credited with a save in a third game, was named the leading pitcher.

Vicettes Capture Tourney Honors

Susan Metcalfe pounded out two triples to score three times and drive in two other runs while leading Vicettes to a 13-11 decision over Stockers North Americans in the final of the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League invitational tournament Sunday at Hyacinth Park.

Donna Blackstock picked up the pitching victory by striking out three batters, allowing two bases on balls and yielding 12 hits, including a home run by Stockers' Marilyn Hickman.

Vicettes, who blasted out 16 hits in the final, sent Stockers into the losers bracket of the two-day, double-loss elimination tourney with a 6-4 decision earlier Sunday.

In the Sunday games, Cosmos ousted Esquimalt Combos 13-10 before being eliminated 6-4 by CAV Electronics, who ealier scuttled Port Coquitlam, 19-4.

Marianne Longmore of Vicettes was picked as the top batter of the tourney while Karen Thompson of CAV Electronics and Terry Hill of Stockers tied in voting for the top pitcher.

Diane Savoie of Cosmos was selected as the most valuable player.

Saturday scores:

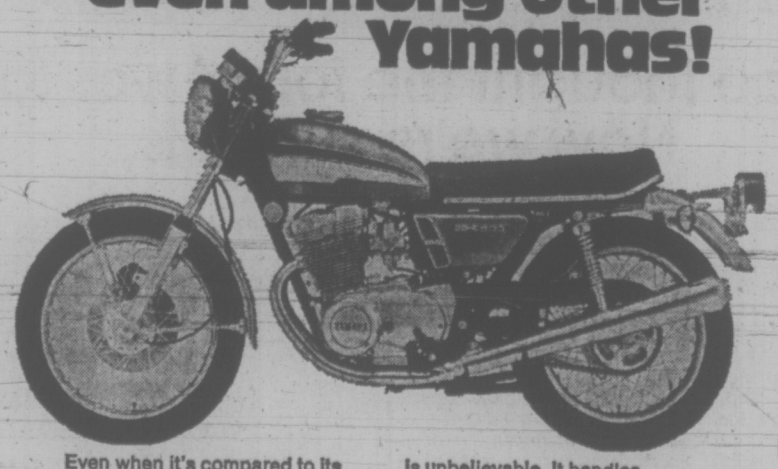
The TX500 stands out-
even among other Yamahas!



Even when it's compared to its own team-mates, the DOHC, 8-valve per cylinder, four-stroke TX 500 still brings comments like: "I've never seen a bike this smooth!" "The acceleration is . . . absolutely fantastic!" "The balance is unbelievable. It handles . . . well, perfectly! There's no other word for it!"
And, if the TX 500 is that outstanding among Yamahas, imagine what it will do to the competition! Better still, try it — and see for yourself.

Floor Temperature Also Shows a Rise

It was too hot to play lacrosse Sunday night but the temperature was just right for a few good fights.

With the barometer still reading in the 70s at game time, the crowd was small, the goals few and the play lethargic as Victoria McDonalds held on to beat Richmond Roadrunners 10-7.

For McDonalds it was the 17th win in 18 games in the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League and the decision didn't look even slightly in doubt until midway through the final period when Roadrunners stormed back with their fists and four straight goals.

Before that, McDonalds, runaway leaders of the league, had held a 4-1 lead after the first period and had stretched that to 8-1 by midway through the second period.

Altrough Roadrunners got two power play goals before the second period ended, McDonalds quickly knocked in two more goals to get their seven-goal margin back at 10-3 early in the third.

Then Rico Bellusci scored his third and fourth goals of the game to spark a four-goal spree by the visitors that, for the first time, had the home team and the fans worried.

Ron Pinder, Ray Durante and Bob Tasker also scored for Richmond.

Jim Lynch led McDonalds with three goals and three assists and Dan Green was the big play-maker with four assists.

Glen Neuman and Jerry Kustaski scored two goals apiece for Victoria and the other scorers were Norm Baker, Rick Baker and Kurt Robb.

And what they saw instead of the usual slick Junior "A" lacrosse was a stream of scuffles and fights and a game ruined by penalties.

Six fighting majors and two game misconducts were handed out.

Burnaby Cablevision stayed 12 points behind Victoria by downing Coquitlam J-Hawks 16-12 in Burnaby Sunday night.

Gorge Pitchers In Shutout Form

Gorge Hotel moved to within a game and a half of leading Farmer Construction by recording two shutouts Sunday over Al's Home Service during Victoria Senior Baseball League action at Lambrick Park.

Gorge won the opener 5-0 and then took the second contest 7-0 with nine hits in each game.

Charmans Powered By Hepburn

Steve Hepburn scored five goals and had five assists Sunday as Saanich Charman Pacific Realty of the Vancouver Island Intermediate Lacrosse League edged Saanich UCT Midgets 28-25.

The game, played at George Pearkes Arena, was the last of four exhibition contests played by Saanich Midgets, who do not play in a league, against Intermediate teams. Midgets are aged 15 and 16 while Intermediate players are 17 and 18.

Wayne Larsen scored five times and assisted on seven goals and Stu Rhodes got seven goals for the Saanich Midgets, who won all of the other three encounters with Intermediate teams.

KEVIN SCORES TWELVE AGAINST 'RUNNERS

After helping Victoria Shamrocks to a 17-12 win over visiting Brantford Warriors with five goals and two assists last Wednesday, Alexander, 17, stepped back Saturday to the Pacific Junior "B" Lacrosse League.

He collected 14 points from 12 goals and two assists as Saanich E. J. Hunter crushed Richmond Roadrunners 22-8 at George Pearkes Arena.

It was the 13th victory in 15 games for E. J. Hunter but Burnaby Lakers stayed in a first-place tie with the Saanich squad by defeating Victoria Island Pacific Oilers 13-11 at Memorial Arena.

Shamrocks Face Important Series

Victoria Shamrocks start the final quarter of their regular Western Lacrosse Association schedule this week with a vital two-game series against the league-leading Vancouver Burrards.

Shamrocks, who hold a four-point edge over fourth-place New Westminster Salmonbellies with six games to go in the battle for the third and final playoff berth, take on the Burrards in Vancouver Tuesday night and meet them again Wednesday at 8 at Memorial Arena.

Burrards, Salmonbellies and Shamrocks all beat the Ontario Lacrosse Association-leading Brantford Warriors last week during their four-game swing through WLA centres.

Warriors' only win came Saturday night in Coquitlam when they scored a 23-21 victory over the Adanacs.

Paul Suggate, Brantford's leading scorer and the second-highest point-getter in the Ontario league, led the visitors with five goals.

For Coquitlam, John Allan scored six times and Gaylord Powless, who scored 60 goals while with the Warriors last season, managed to notch four against his former team.

Backstretch Bumping Smooths It for Ron

Ron Hancock took advantage of a lucky break Saturday night and went on to win the 75-lap super-stock main event and the July Cup before 3,890 fans at Western Speedway.

Hancock was trailing Gary Kershaw and Bob Collins, who were running one-two, when the front-running duo became involved in a minor accident on the backstretch during the 60th lap. Collins spun out, Kershaw's car received a flat tire and Hancock slipped through to take the lead.

Collins got back on the track and managed to regain second place with Larry Pollard was gaining ground in third spot.

The order remained the same until the final straightaway when Collins and Pollard bumped to send the former driver into his second spinout. Pollard went on to finish second and Collins recovered to nip Roy Haslam for third.

Points-leader Rick Cudby collected his sixth main-event victory of the season in the stock car portion of the program after winning the trophy dash and placing fourth in the fast heat.

Tony Johnson, runner-up to Cudby in stock car standings, strengthened his grasp on the position by finishing second in three races:

We once thought the forest was forever. Now we're sure it is.

Ah, the good old days. There was a time when B.C.'s forests were seen as a vast, endless supply of timber. You could log for years and never seem to make a dent in that great green blanket. So, our grandfathers cut and hauled and moved on to the next stand, with little or no thought for the future. Everyone worked toward bringing a provincial economy to its feet, while few realized the dangers of bringing the forest to its knees.

Those "good old days" are long since gone. Today, the indiscriminate practices of yesterday are no longer tolerated. The forest is still seen as a vast resource — but one that must be managed and renewed. Today, the forest industry of B.C. looks ahead to tomorrow — in more ways than one.

Forest Management: waste not, want not.

The ever-developing techniques of forest management involve every aspect of the forest environment. We've learned a lot in the last few years — and we're still learning. Experience has taught us how our actions, and the actions of others, can affect the ecological balance of the forest. We're learning how to think ahead — to predict effects and side effects. Because our prime concern is the proper management of B.C.'s forests we've learned how to work at renewing this precious resource to ensure its continued growth.

We've also discovered how to make the most of the forest's bounty. No longer are small logs left to decay at logging sites. Every economically usable piece of wood is recovered to be processed in the manufacture of lumber, pulp, plywood, shingles and dozens of other forest products. Just as we've learned to make the most of forest management techniques, we've also learned to utilize everything the forest provides — including information about itself.

N.S.R.: the need and the challenge.

Through the combined efforts of the forest service and the forest industry, 415 million new trees have been planted throughout B.C., as of 1972. Yet, about 7% of the total forest land in B.C. is classed as not satisfactorily restocked (N.S.R.). These under-stocked patches of land represent a legacy from the past — the leftovers from ancient forest fires and outmoded logging practices. For various reasons, Nature's reforestation efforts in these areas have failed to produce acceptable results. And even though much of this land pre-dates logging or even the settling of this province, we are determined that it must eventually give birth to a new forest.

That's one of the reasons why we — the forest industry and the B.C. Forest Service — are accelerating our reforestation efforts. In fact, by 1980, we expect to be able to plant 150 million seedlings on 400,000 acres a year — every year. Through a sensible, systematic reforestation program, our N.S.R. acreage will be reduced to a realistic balance point that can be maintained indefinitely.

Because of reforestation, there are more trees growing in British Columbia today than there were 200 years ago. The forest industry of B.C. intends to keep it that way — a perpetual forest to be enjoyed by you and your children — a constantly regenerating forest that continues to provide the strong foundation of our provincial economy.

If you're looking for something permanent, look at the forest. Because we've made it our business to make sure it will always be there. For all of us.

COUNCIL OF FOREST INDUSTRIES OF BRITISH COLUMBIA
1055 West Hastings Street, Vancouver 1, B.C.

We want you to care about the forest as much as we do.

All-Stars Borrow Players and Win

Victoria All-Stars, bolstered by some players from their opposition, blanked the B.C. Canada Games side 2-0 in an exhibition soccer match Sunday at Centennial Stadium.

Sweep for Sally

Only two titles were retained when the Victoria City Open tennis championships ended at the Racquet Club Saturday and Sally Hemeon took both of them.

Mrs. Hemeon, a mother of seven, kept her women's singles title with a 6-4, 6-4 win over 15-year-old Brenda Cameron in the final and then combined with Wendy Cuppage to beat 14-year-old Nina and 12-year-old Jennifer Bland 6-4, 6-3 to retain a share of the women's doubles crown.

Mrs. Hemeon, of the Racquet Club, completed a sweep when she combined with club pro Ray Aldeguer to take the mixed doubles, beating Marty Taylor and Mrs. Cuppage 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

The mixed doubles was one of two finals in which the defending champions were beaten.

The other was in the men's doubles, where top-seeded defending champs Aldeguer and Peter Bousfield went down to third-ranked Ted Davies and Tony Simnett in a 7-6, 6-7, 6-3 thriller.

Defending champion Marty Taylor never made it as far as the men's singles final. He was beaten in the first round.

But second-seeded Davies, the Oak Bay Tennis Club champion, didn't falter in the final, crushing fifth-ranked clubmate John Nichol 6-0, 6-3.

Results of finals:

Zaca Spirit Takes 'Toba Derby

Times News Services

Zaca Spirit took an early lead and hung on to win the $100,000 Manitoba Derby in Winnipeg Sunday, fighting off a late charge from Queen Plate winner Royal Chocolate.

Zaca Spirit, ridden by Richard Grub and owned by the Bo-Teek Farms of Toronto, finished two lengths ahead of Royal Chocolate. Another Toronto horse, Impressive Lady finished third.

A Winnipeg couple also turned out to be big winners as a result of the race. Donna and Ricky Stokes won $100,000 with a Manitoba sweepstakes ticket on Zaca Spirit. Ivan Ungless, a Port Moody, B.C., fireman held the $50,000 ticket on Royal Chocolate and Albert Clouette of Edmonton won $25,000 with a ticket on the third-place finisher.

Eight other ticket-holders will split $15,000.

There was a good payoff at Windsor, Ont., when three $2 ticket-holders each won $10,384.60 from the biggest trifecta payoff of the Windsor Raceway season.

The trifecta combination of 4-2-9 in the 10th race paid off when longshots Almatown, rated at 53-1, and Canetta, at 48-1, led Brisk Knight, a 7-2 choice, to the wire. Almatown paid $109, $31.90 and $18.10.

At Inglewood, Calif., Laffit Pincay Jr. guided Special Goddess ahead of favored Calak in the turn and held on for a one-length triumph in the $101,875 Hollywood Lassie Stakes, the two-year-old filly championship at Hollywood Park. Fleet Peach was third.

The filly sprinted the six furlongs in 1:09 3-5 to win the $53,125 first-place prize money.

On Sunday at Hollywood, French-bred Amen 2nd captured the $150,000 Hollywood Derby beating 10 rivals. Eddie Belmonte rode the first foreign winner of the derby in 33 years in 2.27 4-5 over the 1½-mile marathon grass course. Amen 2nd returned $14.20, $6.20 and $5.

The Hiroshima Miracle —A Maiden Re-Visited

It was a kind of sentimental journey, going back to Hiroshima, but until I met Miyoko it hadn't gone at all as I expected.

Eighteen long years ago, when I'd covered the 10th anniversary of the dropping of the bomb, Hiroshima had been a thrilling experience for me. It was then a kind of festival of world peace. I remember the boats with the Japanese lanterns drifting in the night down one of the seven arms of the Ota River, where it crosses the delta and empties into the Inland Sea. The fireworks over the dark waters. The speeches, not one of them talking of the horrors of that muggy August 6th of 1945, but only of the hope ahead for a world without war, without atom bombs.

Mostly I remembered the dinner party when some of the Hiroshima Maidens had joined me in the small hotel that had been built in the Peace Park for pilgrims who'd come to see for themselves where 200,000 men, women and children died that dreadful morning.

Most of the Maidens had been 12 years of age when the Americans dropped the bomb they called "Little Boy." They were girls who'd had plastic surgery in an attempt to cover the terrible burns to their faces and to their arms and legs, but the scars remained. I was very conscious of them when they joined me the evening of the anniversary.

That hadn't lasted long. They were girls, then in their early twenties, with a tremendous sense of mission, a genuine conviction that their disfigurement and the agonies of Hiroshima would be a warning and a symbol to the world of the stupidity of war. It was an unbelievably gay party we had that night.

Now I was back in Hiroshima 18 years later. The Maidens would be 40 now. I wondered if that shining idealism would be there still or if, indeed, they'd survived the long-term effects of radiation.

Hiroshima, itself, had changed beyond belief in those 18 years, had become another enormous, character-less Japanese industrial city with a population of some 800,000.

The little hotel where I'd entertained the Maidens was now some kind of government office. The atomic landmarks remain, the skeletal dome of what had been the Industrial Promotion Hall, the curious, cement cenotaph, shaped like the canopy of a covered wagon and with the words, "Rest in Peace. Man will not repeat the evil." and the newer museum buildings in the park, thronged now with summertime tourists.

But there's none of that immediacy I felt 18 years ago. Hiroshima, I felt, was now more memory than reality. The Japanese tourists had come as Canadian tourists go to Vimy Ridge, as a historical site but without that involvement that was so real on my last visit.

The administrator at the 170-bed Hiroshima Red Cross A-Bomb Hospital, Koso Sasaki, had confirmed this. "After all," he said, "a baby at that time would now be 28 years of age. The average age now of those patients admitted that we can define as possible atomic casualties is 60 years. We see the day in the future when there will be no more Hiroshima victims."

The surprising thing is that there are still 320,000 men and women survivors who were within the exposed areas of Hiroshima and Nagasaki when the bombs were dropped and medical services are free to them. I asked if any of the Hiroshima Maidens had been among the 58,000-odd who have received treatment here since 1956, when the hospital was opened. The administrator said no, he could not recall that.

I asked the question again when I visited the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission headquarters. This is a joint United States and Japanese investigative group which has been specializing in the study of the long-range effects of radiation exposure. Their findings now are much the same as when I was here 18 years ago: that leukemia and other forms of cancer have taken the lives of those who were exposed to heavy radiation at a mortality rate far greater than normal.

One of the older women at the commission headquarters, overhearing my question about the Maidens, said that she'd been told that some of them had recently opened a boutique. In any event, she said, I would surely find them or those who had survived if I enquired at the director's office of the peace culture centre.

So, at last, I came to meet Miyoko Matubara, who is 40 now and who was 12 when it happened. She was one of 320 girl students who had volunteered to help clean up some mid-town wooden shacks, considered to be vulnerable to fire bombs, on that morning. They were only a mile or so from the place where "Little Boy" went off. More than 250 of her young friends had died. Miyoko wears a heavy powder to cover the burns to her face, arms and legs, but it does not hide the cruel scars of that experience.

I did not expect Miyoko to talk of that morning and she did not. Instead, animatedly, she told me of her trips abroad over the past 10 years to many countries, including Canada, of her appearances at universities, schools, churches, peace groups and women's organizations, taking the message, "No more Hiroshimas" to those who could never know what it meant.

The Hiroshima Maidens were no more, as a group. Some had died. Some had gone to other places in Japan. But always, Miyoko told me, they had continued to preach that message, to show unashamedly their own burned bodies, for the cause of world peace.

I listened to her with much the same awe and delight that I'd remembered from that dinner party 18 years ago, this admirable, gay and courageous woman whose sense of mission had never left her. What had been a sentimental journey suddenly all seemed worthwhile.

Drug Trio Guilty

Three Victorians were found guilty today of conspiracy to traffic heroin, after a two-week trial before county court judge M. L. Drake.

Michael Kincses, 27, Daniel Hadden, 57, and Robert Langer, 30, were remanded in custody to Friday for sentence.

Maximum sentence is life imprisonment.

Kincses and Langer were also convicted of possession of heroin for trafficking which also carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

A fourth person, Wendy Dance, 25, was acquitted of both charges.

In his judgment, Drake said direct evidence of a conspiracy was given by Sharon Dannenberg, 29, and 21-year-old Linda Anderson.

Dannenberg, in the third day of the trial, pleaded guilty to possession of heroin for trafficking. Prosecutor Cecil Branson then entered a stay of proceedings on the conspiracy count.

She will also be sentenced Friday.

Anderson was named in the indictment as a co-conspirator but not charged.

Drake said it is "dangerous although possible" to convict on the basis of testimony given by an accomplice but "concluded that on the whole Dannenberg was a believeable witness."

The woman testified she was supplying Langer with heroin for resale on the street level.

She also testified Hadden was employed by Langer to perform certain functions necessary to keep the operation going.

Linda Anderson was also an accomplice, said Drake, "but she struck me to be entirely believable."

Branson said the evidence of Anderson and the police indicated there was "a connection between Langer and Kincses."

There was "so little evidence" against Dance, said Drake, that it would be "safe to say there was none at all."

The evidence against the others, said the judge, makes it "abundantly clear" that a conspiracy existed.

Outfall Levy 'Legal'

A levy on property taxes covering View Royal's share of construction costs for the Macaulay Point outfall is legal, deputy minister of municipal affairs Bill Smith said today.

According to supplementary letters patent dated Feb. 12, 1971, Smith said, the Capital Regional Board has the authority to undertake provision of trunk sewers and other facilities without the assent of the owner-electors.

Smith was replying to an announcement by a View Royal man who says he will withhold that portion of his taxes covering the Macaulay outfall.

On his tax bill the levy amounts to $45.75, he said.

Previous to the 1971 supplementary letters of patent, the regional board could not allot cost to any electoral area without assent of the owner-electors.

In 1969 a referendum proposing sewers for View Royal was defeated, Sutherland said, so the assent of the ratepayers was not given.

"Now the letters patent have been changed and they are trying to apply them retroactively," Sutherland said.

"A case before the Alberta Supreme Court ruled recently in regards to a farm act that legislation couldn't be applied retrospectively unless the act itself says that," he added.

Smith says, however, it's not a matter of applying the legislation retroactively since the 1969 referendum does not apply to the Macaulay outfall levy.

Smith said he didn't know what would happen to ratepayers who withhold payment of part of their taxes.

"It will have to be a political decision," he said. "From an administrative point of view the levy is legal It will be a political decision whether or not to acknowledge their point of view."

Dowell Plan Sought

City land commissioner A. G. Joyce has recommended the city advertise for proposals for the future use of the Dowell Building, a neglected landmark in the 1100-block Wharf Street.

In a letter to city manager J. H. Bramley, Joyce reported, "I have been negotiating with a group of businessmen from Vancouver through their representative, a local hotel man, for the possible acquisition of the building by sale or lease for the purpose of a large-scale public house site operation to include restaurant, cabaret, etc."

The building is currently used for storage by the city which bought it for $50,000 about 10 years ago.

The building was constructed 110 years ago by pioneer entrepreneur Robert Pattison Rithet.

Joyce said no plans have been made for the possible conversion of the building by the Vancouver group because of "the uncertainty of the Reid development," a hotel-apartment complex proposed for the opposite side of wharf Street.

Victoria builder George Wheaton has been commissioned by the Vancouver group to "look into the possibility of conversion," Joyce said.

"We must bear in mind any group wishing to convert the building would want reasonable assurance the city's intentions are firm," Joyce said in a letter to Bramley.

"I am quite sure the Vancouver group have expended considerable monies in their investigation up to this time," he said.

Meanwhile, Fire Chief Eric Simmons has recommended against giving permission to the Victoria Conservatory of Music women's committee to hold a book sale in the Dowell Building because of possible fire hazard.

City Council to Get Confidential Land-List

A confidential list of properties the city might be interested in buying will be presented to Victoria city council Tuesday.

Along with that will be a request that priorities be set in using the city's land investment fund.

The memo being sent to the council's land development committee by city manager J. H. Bramley and land commissioner A. G. Joyce includes properties the city now owns, properties the parks department has already indicated it would like to acquire, and properties mentioned by members of council.

Bramley says there is $1,165,000 now available in the Land Investment Fund.

Revenue in the fund this year include a $500,000 appropriation from the 1972 operating surplus and $350,000 from the sale of property on McCaskill Street to the province where a co-operative housing project is now underway. A further $500,000 has been appropriated from the current capital budget.

Expenditures this year include $129,000 for the purchase of two lots of Broughton Street and $56,000 for one lot on Crescent Road.

Bramley asks the committee to consider "the priority to be attached to the acquisition of the listed properties, as well as any additional properties recommended for acquisition by the department of community development."

Gordon Gas Low Bidder

I. Gordon Gas Co. Ltd. was the lower bidder at $11,036 for a city contract to install new hot water heating systems at the Maritime Museum and Craigdarroch Castle.

The city's estimate was $14,000 and the high bid was $49,050.

BRIDGE FROM SQUARE IN RESTAURANT PLAN

Plans are being made to build a restaurant in a 19th-century building on Wharf Street that for many years housed the Wilson and Proctor machine shop.

Richard Talbot, president of Anglo Canadian Management Co. Ltd., said in a letter to council the unnamed developer's plan to convert the second floor of the building is dependent on the construction of a bridge to the floor from Bastion Square.

Meetings between Peter Cotton, the architect for the developer, and Willis Cunliffe and Tait, engineers for Bastion Square, are being held to consider the bridge plans.

HALF-TON OF BERRIES

Sunday was also Ald. Les Passmore Day, and the long-time Saanich alderman was honored in an afternoon ceremony at Beaver Lake Park, the festival site.

Passmore was made honorary Saanich fire chief and presented with a gold fire helmet by the department. He also received gifts from the police department and the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Resurrected Garbage Used for Decoration

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The decorations in Joan Butterfield's house include a furnace filter and two pieces of stale bread.

Mrs. Butterfield is an interior decorator who says she encourages customers to express their own family's interests and tastes in their surroundings, and who practises what she preaches.

Tre filter has become part of a light and airy sculpture. The bread has been allowed to curl, sprayed with copper and used as an abstract design.

Mrs. Butterfield was bored working in an office. She studied decorating at night, and now works for Modernage, a furniture firm.

She says she believes a home should reflect its owners' personalities, and does not have to cost a fortune.

"Your home is the setting for yourself and your family, so let it reflect your skills, talents and interests. If it does this, it's bound to be attractive."

She adds:

"If you are not confident that you have the skill and ingenuity to carry out decorating projects successfully, start with a small project.

"For instance, carpet your stairs with carpet remnants, samples or small throw rugs, in different colors, big enough to fit one step. Keep the collection about the same weight, texture and blend of fibres to assure uniform wearability. Cut pieces to fit a step and use tacks or staples to hold each piece securely."

She says you can brighten the bathroom with old newspapers.

"Paper a basement bathroom with what ads clipped from newspapers. Cut off all the white margins and apply whole pages in vertical strips. Cover the waste basket to match, then give them a coat or two of varnish.

"If you feel really artistic, you can hand-letter your favorite recipes on part of your kitchen wall. Use a very thin brush and different colored enamels. Embellish the first letter of each recipe with a decorative flourish, and then give them a coat of varnish."

Hungarian Ties Based on People

elizabeth forbes

Victoria's symphony conductor, Laszlo Gati, was named in the Senate in a very complimentary way, earlier this month.

It happened when Senator Muriel Fergusson, first woman Speaker of that house, was reporting on a trip to Hungary made by a Canadian parliamentary group, at the request of the Hungarian Parliament.

Remarking on the importance of such a visit, the Senator said (as recorded in Hansard): "There is no doubt that personal contact between representatives of different nations makes for smoother relations . . .

"When people of different countries do not know each other, and do not understand or really cannot understand each other, we do not have trade or commerce . . . indeed, we do not have any human progress at all."

Then she went on "while trade relations between our two countries are important to both sides, I think it fair to say that the flow of people is equally important, if not more important, and in this regard Canada has enjoyed much the better of the exchange."

As an example she pointed to those Hungarians who entered Canada about 1956 almost all of whom were "possessed of professional qualifictations . . . as a consequence they were rapidly absorbed into the Canadian community."

Canadian cultural life is studded with the names of former Hungarians, she reminded her colleagues.

Among them: in music, Bartok and Laszlo Gati, who founded the Montreal Chamber orchestra; in art, Nicholas Hornyansky, the painter and printer; in sculpture, Dora DePedery-Hunt; in architecture, George Eber of Expo fame, who designed the "Sermon of Science" pavilion and the aquarium; in the drama, John Hirsh, a co-founder of the Manitoba Theatre Centre

This was the first Canadian parliamentary delegation ever to visit Hungary, and only the third parliamentary delegation to Hungary from a non-socialist country.

The group, headed by Senator Fergusson, was small in numbers — another senator, a representative of each of the federal parties, the director and administrator of personnel of the Senate and the executive assistant to the Speaker of the House of Commons, with their wives.

Senator Fergusson's report, given in full in Hansard of July 5, describes the parliament of Hungary as a single-chamber legislative body called the National Assembly. There are 349 deputies, of which 84 are women.

. . . named in Senate

The deputies elect a 21-member Presidential Council from their ranks. This council is headed (at present) by Pal Losonczi, who has two deputies.

Speaker of the Parliament, Antal Apro, was official host to the delegation. In his work he has the assistance of two deputies—one a woman, Mrs. Gabor Varga

An outstanding experience was a visit to one of the giant industrial bases of Hungary — Csepel Iron and Metal Works, on an island in the Danube.

It takes raw materials through complete processing to turn out a variety of products from transformers to bicycles and sewing machines.

What was particularly interesting to Senator Fergusson and her Canadian party, was Csepel's activities on behalf of its workers.

She reported they have now housing on the factory island. They have nurseries, kindergartens, technical schools and skilled worker training schools "in addition there is factory sponsorship of amateur artistic groups, special clubs, a theatre, a library, and even a modern audio-visual language laboratory."

There are also sports fields and recreation grounds. The Csepel works sports club competes in national and international events and the Canadians were told it had won Olympic gold medals.

"Show place it may be — and I am old enough to know what I am looking at, and to be able to assess what is being told to me," Muriel Fergusson informed the Senate.

"But it may be that our own industrialists should take a look at Csepel to discover whether all that might be done in our own plants and factories is in fact being done to increase both productivity and worker benefits."

There is a shortage of labor in Hungary, she said, and 60 per cent of the women work in industry of some kind

"But I did not find that the workers seemed to be downtrodden with noses to the grindstone, as we in the West often think they are

"Rather I found that workers seem to do well and consideration of worker welfare holds a surprsingly high priority, as I have also found it often does in Japan."

The Canadian delegation was "a serious hard working group, interested and anxious to learn about the history, culture and economics of the country.

"And we found our hosts more than willing to give us information about anything that interested us."

Varied Grains Deserve Attention

By HILDA BEASTALL

The director-general of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization early in June warned that wheat stocks of exporting countries are already at their lowest for over 20 years. Isn't it just plain common sense for some of us Canadians to become familiar with other grains?

Though most of us have been brought up on wheat, we shall find rye in its many forms, oats and oatmeal, and rice equally adaptable and palatable.

I have given a Rye Bread recipe, and the use of Rolled Rye in a Crunchy Grain Breakfast or Hiking Mix, now we shall see how to use Dark Rye Flour in a sort of pastry base for fruit slices.

These Rye Fruit Slices have little sugar, just what is in the dates and currants, and one tablespoon of grated Chinese hard sugar in the cake batter used as topping.

RYE FLOUR FRUIT SLICES

(In three parts but well worth the time.)

Lower Crust:
1 cup dark rye flour
½ cup unbleached flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
½ cup soft margarine
¼ cup water.

Mix all together, then line a glass baking dish 12x7 inches, bringing the mixture up around the sides of the dish with the fingers.

Have ready, and cooled, the filling:

1 cup currants (raisins can be used)
1 cup chopped dates
½ cup water (I used left-over coffee)
1 tsp. margarine.

Simmer all together for five minutes, stirring to prevent burning. Cool to thicken. Then spoon into the lower crust.

Cake Batter for Top:
1 cup dark rye flour
¼ cup unbleached flour
1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt.
1 tbsp. (loose) grated Chinese hard sugar
1 tsp. brewers yeast
1 tbsp. wheat germ
¼ cup soft maragarine
½ cup skim milk (made with powder)
1 egg (small).

Measure and sift first six ingredients. Add wheat germ and soft margarine, mixing with a large fork until crumbly. Measure skim milk (made with powdered skim), lightly beat in the egg and pour the two into the dry mixture, stirring with fork until mixed.

Spoon mixture over the fruit layer in crust, spreading evenly to the edges.

Bake at 350 deg. until well browned. Under crust must be well cooked, too, so don't hurry it. Allow from 35 to 45 minutes.

Cut into slices or squares while still warm.

Give Kids Credit

DEAR ABBY: We have two grandchildren whose other grandparents have taught them that grandparents always bring presents!

When we go to visit them, they run to greet us with open hands, asking, "What did you bring us?"

And when they come to our home, they keep waiting for us to bring out some special gifts for them because their other grandparents always have something for them. When they came here last Sunday, before they were inside the door they asked: "What do you have for us?"

I replied: "What did you bring for us?" That stopped them cold!

Abby, we don't want to buy their love, but now that they have been spoiled by their other grandparents we don't want to suffer by comparison. I spoke to the other grandmother about this, and she said: "Giving presents is a grandparent's pleasure."

So what's the answer? Frustrated.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Children are smarter than you think they are. Spending time with them, and showing honest affection and genuine interest will net you more love in return than a carload of presents. Continue to follow your own philosophy, and let the other grandparents follow theirs.

DEAR ABBY: "Grandma's" letter struck a familiar chord with me. It isn't thanks we want from our grandchildren when we buy them gifts, it's an expression of love. To be totally ignored is to be deeply hurt.

Our children try to make excuses for their children. They say: "The grandchilren are too busy to write or call."

We notice however, they are never too busy to cash our cheque as soon as it arrives.

Grandma in the Same Boat.

DEAR GRANDMA: Judging from my mail, that's a large boat you're in.

DEAR ABBY: The other morning while doing the dishes, my wedding ring came off. The water was running, and I didn't realize the ring was gone until it had already gone down the drain.

I called a plumber right away. He said the ring was already in the sewer and it couldn't be retrieved.

Abby, that was my husband's grandmother's wedding ring, and if he knew I was doing the dishes in it he would kill me. I bandaged up my hand and told him I had burned it. I can't go on wearing this bandage forever. Please tell me what to do. Butterfingers

Dear Butterfingers: Remove the bandage and tell your husband the truth. It's an unfortunate loss, but if that's the worst thing that ever happens to either one of you, you'll be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: My grandson is a nice-looking likable fellow, but he exaggerates so much people are beginning to wonder about him.

Junior was overseas with the army and from some of the stories he tells you would think he won the war alone. Everybody knows he saw some action, but he brags so much folks nudge each other and wink behind his back when he tells some of those outlandish tales.

How can I tell him to quit blowing everything up so much without hurting his feelings? I love this kid a lot. Grandma.

DEAR GRANDMA: Maybe he's not exaggerating as much as you think. But when you get him alone, tell him that because you love him a lot you think some of his tales are a little far out.

If you want to get acquainted with one of Europe's smallest and most picturesque countries Your Companion in Portugal is for you. This 44-page publication tells you much about the country and its overseas possessions. Also included is a map of Portugal and a street-map of Lisbon, the country's capital.

Portugal — 530 Miles of Beaches describes the variety of Portugal's shore lines. It also stresses that the country provides some of the finest deep sea fishing in the world and that there are many places where you can hire boats and equipment.

You will also be delighted with the folder Alfama-Lisbon-Portugal. Alfama is Lisbon's oldest quarter and at the time of the Saracens it was the capital's most elegant suburb. Now, its picturesque narrow streets, its labyrinth of laneways, kissing eaves, archways and the hundreds of small taverns have become a major tourist attraction. When you have looked at this publication, you will want to see Alfama for yourself!

Locks Off Men—Sassoon Has Spoken

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gentlemen, you may start trimming off your sideburns now. Vidal Sassoon has spoken. It's all right to keep your beards and moustaches if they make you look better, but hair is getting shorter, and with it the sideburns.

Sassoon, 45, probably is the supreme authority on men's hair styling — and women's too — and has haircutting salons for men in such diverse places as New York, Beverly Hills, San Francisco, Toronto, London and Manchester, England.

They aren't called barber shops, of course, and aren't really called salons. The cards merely say "Vidal Sassoon for men" and the great and near great, the rich and near rich, flock in. Clients range anywhere from Hugh Downs of television fame to British designer Hardy Amies and actors Peter Lawford and David Hemmings.

Sassoon has nothing against long hair, really, but finds that the trend is to somewhat shorter hair with locks sort of swept down over where the sideburns would be if they had not been trimmed off. But Sassoon cuts hair to the individual look so there is no set rule.

Sassoon, in the midst of packing for one of his frequent trips to London and other places, chatted in the drawing room of his East Side Manhattan apartment while his actress-wife, Beverly, radiantly beautiful and eight months pregnant, listened in.

His own hair was slightly shorter on top but well over the nape of his neck and about half over his ears. He was ideally dressed for packing for a trip to London — bare feet, velvet slacks and a flowered sports shirt open at the throat. In the background was the noise of a couple of his kids banging some toys about.

"We're taking away sideburns now and hair is being worn shorter," he said. "But not as short as some of my Canadian relatives who really cut theirs off and I must say it does look rather odd to see someone with such short hair.

"I was in Bonwit Tellers a couple of days ago and the first three men I saw were wearing short hair but they had beards and moustaches. The beards and moustaches are being worn, not so much to compensate for a lack of hair but to give balance to their appearance.

"Hair, or a lack of it, can suit almost anyone. If a man is going bald he can compensate with a moustache or beard. And if his head is shaped like Yul Brynner's he will look quite handsome bald. The worst is if a man is going bald and tries to cover it up by parting his hair lower or trying to curl it around to cover the bald spot.

"Hair originally was worn long to express some feeling of dissent, to show one's feeling of anti-authority. Fortunately it doesn't mean anything any more. Hair is making a social statement, but from a point of fashion. We have come a long way from the youths who wore so much long hair it became a uniform."

He laughed at a report he had just read of football coach, Tony Simpson, of Galena Park, Texas, Junior High School, who had ordered his football players to cut off their long hair on grounds it made them look effeminate and sapped their strength.

"Isn't that wild?" he asked. "Well, there goes the story of Samson and Delilah."

Sassoon said there is not only a trend toward shorter hair among athletes but they are shaving their arms and legs to lessen the drag as they rip through the water. "All except Mark Spitz, of course, with his moustache."

Sassoon cautioned that with men's hair becoming shorter there was no return to the GI crewcut of World War II and said that cut was a deliberate attempt to eradicate individuality — "the easiest way to control people is to have them all looking alike; that crewcut was also a way to de-sex people, castrate them in a sense."

"The ridiculous cut with the short back and sides and little hairs sticking out looked like a disease of the scalp. Men will still be having length but at the sides, and hair at the back, but it will be cut shorter, to the shape of the head. I think the era of scalping and cookie jar cuts is gone forever in men's styling . . ."

Eye Doctors Leery Of New Sunglasses

CHICAGO (AP) — The popular summer fashion of tinted and "wraparound" sunglasses may actually be harmful to the eyes, a number of eye specialists say.

The pastel pinks, purples and blue tints, while they may go well with clothing and bathing suit, are too weak to filter out infra-red and ultra-violet rays of sunlight.

The result, the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness says, is eye strain, fatigue and inability to see clearly in bright sunlight.

"There is no single best type," of sunglasses, Dr. Jay Enoch, research professor of ophthalmology at Washington University medical school in St. Louis, said in a telephone interview.

But there are certain things to avoid, he added, noting for example that blue-tinted lenses cut out red and can create a problem for the wearer. A red warning flag, for example, might not catch the eye.

Dr. Manual Stillerman, a Chicago opthalmologist, cautions against the fashionable "wraparound" sunglasses as well as "ridiculous pastel pinks and purples and blues."

Lenses in the "wraparounds," which curve around the face to the temple, have some distortions because of the way they must be made, he said, but added that some wearers are not bothered by this distortion.

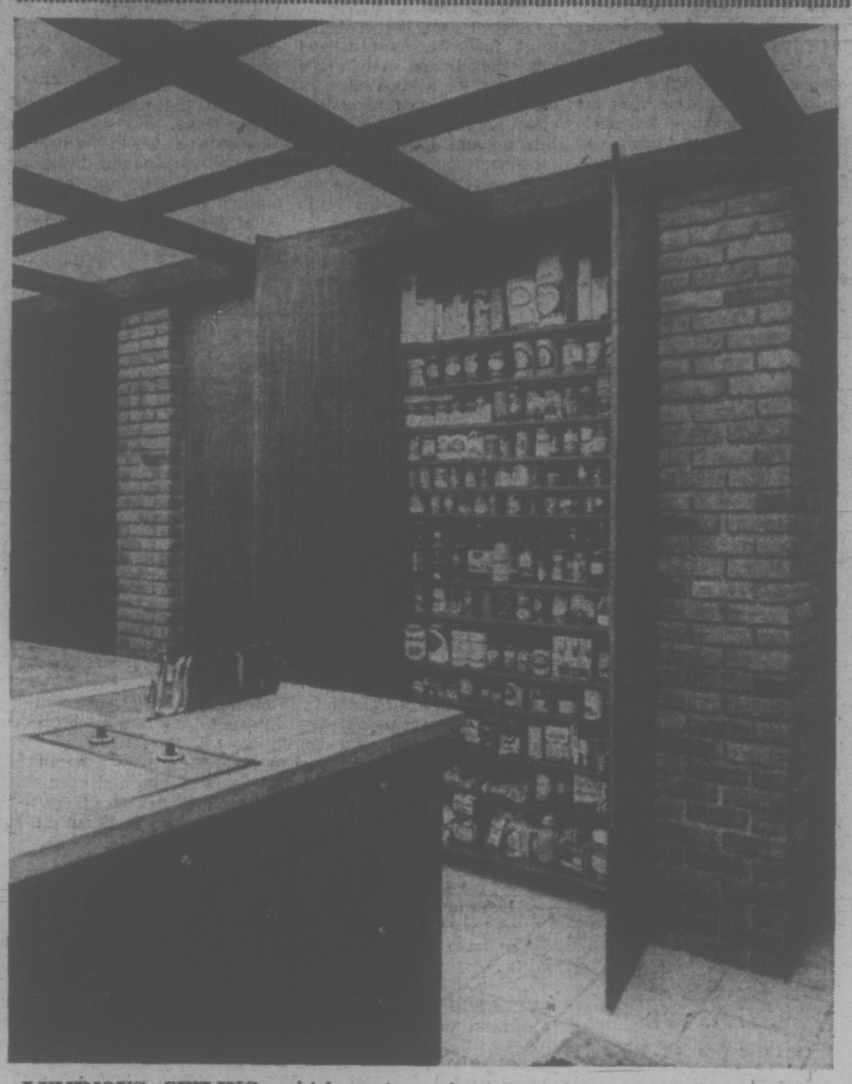
Stillerman advised that sunglass wearers who do not get them by prescription from an ophthalmologist or optometrist should be careful that there are no blemishes in the lens. These cause eye irritation. Cheap sunglasses won't cause any serious eye problem, but the wearer will get headache and eye fatigue, he said.

Sunglasses in "soothing or restful" tints are the ones to buy, Stillerman said. He has found certain shades of green and gray particularly satisfactory.

Dr. Gerald Fonda, a Short Hills, N.J. ophthalmologist, recommends that sunglasses be bought from an optician—someone trained in fitting glasses—rather than from a department or drug store.

While sunglasses have no therapeutic effect, they may have an unexpected benefit, says Dr. Frederick Jung of the American Medical Association's health education department.

They prevent wrinkles because people who wear them don't have to squint, he said.



LUMINOUS CEILING, which casts no shadows, is given a warm look through the use of oak and cedar beams as supports, instead of the more commonly used aluminum grids used in this lighting.

A Storage Story

When you plan a kitchen, you are talking about something that you will remodel, or will want to, in about 10 years. Appliance manufacturers improve their products and develop new ones, so that if you possibly can replace yours, you will as repair costs mount with use. Basic storage ideas, however, because they spring from a need, usually remain current.

Such ideas are shown here, in a handsome kitchen by William Bray and designer Jeanne Cilley. Although obviously this is an expensive kitchen, the ideas will fit into any home. The canned goods storage, for example, in a four foot wide area, keeps every can within good viewing and within easy reach, because of its shallowness. This cabinet is but 12-inches deep. This allows for only a few rows or jars, and even those in the back can be seen and reached. Sizing the cans according to height takes advantage of the vertical space, and the adjustable shelves are placed just an inch or two above the tallest can in each row.

Even a four inch deep wall space can be well utilized for one row of cans. This is the depth of the 2"x4"s that are the framework of your house. If your local building code will permit it, you can break through a portion of your kitchen wall, finish off the interior and install shelves.

Kitchen knives pose a storage problem also. Here, a row of slits in the top of the laminated wood work-island holds the knives. The two-inch space is between the end of the base drawer and an appliance installation.

General Store Revived

LORETTO, Ont. (CP) — Buy an old house that has a store in it that has never been out of business and the thing to do is open a business of your own to keep the tradition going.

That's the way the seven members of a commune saw it when they bought a 101-year-old house-with-store that was once the largest general store in the area.

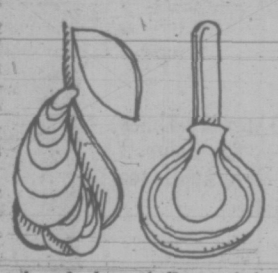
It now is the Loretto Gallery, a show place and sales room for arts and crafts taken on consignment from across Canada.

Barry Kirkness says they do not even care whether the business is a roaring success. They are interested in carrying on the tradition and in offering a new outlet to artists.

• the leisure craftsman

by Phyllis Fiarotta

Those of us who are lucky to live near the coast have a storehouse of craft materials at our fingertips—such items as driftwood, polishd stones and sea glass and, of course, shells. I know many of your readers may live inland but they certainly can locate mussel and clam shells at their food market. Here are two of my favorite shell crafts.



Clam rattlers are a favorite with my children. Place small pebbles inside one of two matching shells. Place an ice cream stick ½ inch into the base of the shell. Place the matching shell over the first and glue together. There will be a sight open space on the underside that you can seal with glue, tape, or fill with play clay.

Mussel tulips can create a dramatic flower arrangement for a table or a shelf. Glue a pliable wire to the base of well-washed mussel shells. Gather three small shells together, overlapping each to form a tight bud. Wire three larger shells over the bud, fanning outward. Cover the stem with florist tape.

Wedge a chunk of foam into a vase and arrange the tulips in varying heights. To bring out the full beauty of the shells, paint each tulip with varnish.

SPECIAL LETTERING

I just received a handmade birth announcement and the lettering seemed to be a decal or something very similar. There have been many occasions when I needed some special lettering but did not attempt it because of my unsteady hand.

There is a whole world of transfer lettering that would stagger your mind. Commercial artists know this form of instant type by may brand names. The principle is that a heavy letterface is printed on waxed sheets of paper. By rubbing a pencil or other firm object over the letter on the unwaxed side, the letter transfers iteself from the waxed surface to the more adhering surface of paper. There are hundreds of letter sizes and type styles from which to choose at art supply centres.

CHEESE WAX ROSES

I first spotted this idea in Europe and I brought it back to my home.

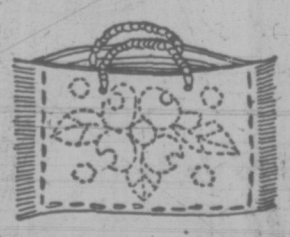
When opening round, wax covered table cheeses, be careful to remove the wax in large enough pieces. Ideally, you should cut around the top edge of the wax so the entire top wax can be lifted from the cheese. Score four slits into the side wax and pull away, freeing the cheese from its casing.

This wax comes in red and yellow and can be used to make roses. The petal shapes resemble triangles with one rounded side. Cut triangles in several sizes using a knife or scissors. Gather three small petals and form a tight core. Slightly melt the bottom tips of the petals and press together with your fingers. Add larger petals fanning outward. Melt and free petals at their base as you work.

These sturdy roses can garnish hors d'oeuvres, salads or cakes. Store in egg cartons when not in use.

PLACEMAT TOTE

My mother surprised me when she dreamed up this very clever idea. She took two straw place mats and sewed them together on three sides with yarn. On one place mat she embroidered a simple flower design with scrap wool. She made handles with two sections of heavy cord tied to the top of each place mat, then covered with a crochet stitch.



New Sanctuary To Raise Geese

An area of 25 acres near Mud Bay north of White Rock has been declared a wildlife sanctuary under the Wildlife Act.

Recreational Minister Jack Radford said the Fish and Wildlife Branch, Ducks Unlimited (Canada), Canadian Wildlife Service and Douglas College are co-operating in a project to raise Canada geese in the sanctuary for release at various sites throughout the Fraser Valley.

BIG BEEF HIKE FORECAST

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The head of the British Columbia Cattlemen's Association says a substantial increase in beef prices will hit B.C. about January as a result of a bad hay crop this summer.

Henry Blazowski, secretary-manager of the association, said bad weather has resulted in hay yields which range from "almost disastrous to-so-so."

"Usually in a shortage we import from Washington and Oregon and neighboring states, but they are in just as bad straits as we are. We might have to bring grain in but grain prices are very high because of a world shortage.

Elderly Couple Causing Big Westcoast Woes

HIXON, B.C. (CP) — The next stage in a dispute between a retired couple and Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. takes place today in the hills, about 40 miles south of Prince George.

Nicholas and Margaret Sekora staked an 80-acre placer lease in Hixon last October, but didn't receive the lease until June 12.

By that time, a construction company under contract with Westcoast had begun work in the lease area. Westcoast wants to build a "loop," a second pipeline, across the Sekoras' newly-acquired lease.

The couple moved here a year ago after Sekora, 61, retired as a telegraph operator with CNR and found a publication telling of gold in the surrounding area.

Westcoast's construction on the lease land has been held up for three weeks while the company attempted to obtain permission from the Sekoras to proceed.

Westcoast said, however, that it would proceed Monday.

B. F. G. Sulchon of Vancouver, Westcoast's supervisor of lands and rights-of-way, said the federal Energy Board Act gives the company the right to proceed without permission from the leaseholder, although it is responsible for damage to the value of the claim.

The Sekoras want a deal before the line is built, and have suggested at least a $30,000 payment.

Guichon said the company must maintain its construction schedule and would settle later. "If we acknowledge indiscriminately that there is a claim here we'll be faced with this up and down the entire pipeline."

The pipeline runs from the Peace River to the U.S. border.

Mrs. Sekora said spot checks by her husband show a value of gold at about $6 a cubic yard in the area where the company wants to build, and the couple wants a minimum of $1 a cubic yard for the approximate 30,000 cubic yards that would be affected by the construction.

"In 20 years of pipelining, I have never run into this problem before," said Guichon.

When the couple received their lease, they went to the company and with the help of a provincial mining inspector and the RCMP got the construction stopped on the basis that permission had not been obtained under the provincial Placer Act.

Guichon said the inspector was "overzealous" and that the company stopped work as a courtesy, retaining the right under the federal statute to proceed.

Mrs. Sekora said sluicing operations prove gold can be extracted economically and "besides, we just want to give my husband something to do."

24-Hour Picket Closes Mill

Workers at the Rayonier mill board a ferry at Darrel Bay to cross Howe Sound to reach Woodfibre. A picket line went up there at 6 p.m. Saturday and 500 men were soon off the job.

The line was removed Sunday afternoon and the mill was expected to be back in operation today. Union officials were unavailable for comment.

GALLUP POLL

Most in Demand Is a Good GP

Fifty-four per cent of Canadians want a family doctor who can treat most illnesses but who calls in a specialist when needed. Another important consideration for a large number is his availability on short notice.

Other factors, mentioned slightly less frequently, are his willingness to make housecalls, his knowledge of the patient's personal and family circumstances and his awareness of the latest medical developments.

A majority of Canadians in all regions but Quebec would choose a general practitioner. In Quebec, the largest proportion would choose their doctor on the basis of availability.

The study was conducted in early May, with a national random sample of 727 adults, 18 years of age and over, in personal, at-home interviews. A sample of this size is accurate within a 4 percentage point margin of error, 19 out of 20 times.

The question:

"Which items on this card do you feel are most important when it comes to choosing a doctor for you and your family?"

The table below shows the response nationally, and by four regions.

SELECTED ITEMS	National	Atlantic	Quebec	Ontario	West
Can treat most illnesses but calls in a specialist when needed	54%	58%	44%	56%	63%
Available on short notice	41	33	47	47	43
Will make house calls	35	32	36	41	27
Knows patient's personal and family circumstances	31	23	23	34	37
Aware of latest medical developments	30	32	20	37	34
Will treat patient regardless of ability to pay	20	14	22	19	23
Interested in preventitive care	19	17	13	23	22
Has own good equipment	7	4	5	12	6

FORCES REGATTA

Ship and shore personnel of CFB Esquimalt will take part in the base's third annual regatta Thursday beginning at 10 a.m.

There will be a full program of sailing, pulling and speed boat racing, augmented by displays and other activities related to traditional naval competitions.

100 Riders In Show

More than 100 contestants have registered for the Victoria Premier All Quarter Horse how, to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Saanichton fair grounds.

More are expected to enter on the day of the show.

Events start at 9 a.m. There will be a beer garden on the grounds Saturday. A dance will be held that evening.

Jack Rydberg of Eads, Colo., will judge the events. Horses are coming from across the province as well as Alberta and California.

Planes Used To Spot Fire Starters

Planes are helping to spot people setting forest fires, W. C. Phillips, head of the B.C. Forest Service's protection division, said today.

Already this year several persons have been observed setting fires and were apprehended by police.

Two young men in the central interior are now facing charges involving fires, he said. They were spotted by a forest service plane which kept them under surveillance until police reached them.

Phillips said the patrol aircraft augment the mountaintop forest service lookout towers and "they can cover a tremendous area in a relatively short time."

As the need increases, he said, additional patrol planes are brought into service.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A Victoria youth who said he broke two windows because he was in a bad mood after a fight with his girlfriend was fined $100 in Victoria provincial court Saturday.

James Rozon, 19, of 998 McCaskill, was charged with causing mischief after he broke two windows, worth $280, in a building on Craigflower Road early Saturday morning.

Judge Edmond St. Jorre told Rozon he hoped the fine would keep him from losing his temper again. The accused was also ordered to pay for the damage.

William Wintemute, 37, of 959 Balmoral, was fined $75 for possession of hashish.

Police picked up Wintemute when he was lying in a parking lot on Government Street early Saturday morning and found a small amount of hashish in his pocket.

Wintemute told St. Jorre he was on parole from William Head where he had served 16 months for theft.

Sweet-Scented Stocks True Flower Fragrance

If you are one gardener who has lost faith in the fragrance of flowers, do search out a planting of a dozen or so stocks and revel in their strong rich perfume. The double 10-week stocks will give you the most returns.

We are fortunate in having such a planting in a neighbor's garden 50 feet from a constantly-open window. Though we cannot see the flowers the perfume comes in whenever the breeze is from the southwest.

The true garden fragrance devotee knows that the effect of flower perfume is in proportion to the number of flowers. A couple of stocks will smell good at close range but the volume is not sufficient to carry any distance.

Double stocks do not set seeds. The seed from which the plants are grown are taken from single flowered plants of the same strain. The fewer the single plants the better the strain.

With stocks near an outdoor living area, a groundcover of mignonette and heliotrope will emphasize the perfume, reinforcing the effect as some of the stocks fade.

All annuals like a sunny situation so that most will grow happily together. Heliotrope is difficult to get started here on the coast. It needs early sowing in a heated greenhouse to have individually potted small plants already budded when put outdoors at the end of May.

Beacon Hill Park has a large border of heliotrope giving away its haunting scent to anyone who cares to notice.

Ornamental tobacco, or nicotines, are known for their evening perfume. Adding this to stocks is like adding honey to maple syrup.

If you want both, put the nicotines with a planting of petunias in another sunny garden spot where their more subtle evening perfumes will not be smothered.

For a semi shady place pansies may be thought of as an annual if you sow the seeds early enough in coldframe flats. Their scent is rich, particularly in the yellow and gold range, making you think of honey.

To keep the plants blooming until late fall pick off faded flowers daily, for once they start seeding pansies refuse to produce more flowers.

We look for perfume in trees and shrubs, in herbaceous perennials and in annuals. By careful choice it is possible to enjoy something of nature's bonus in every season of the year here, but in summer there's enough to share with the neighbors when these most fragrant of the annuals are growing in your garden.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In Act IV of Macbeth, the three witches chant: "Double, double toil and trouble. Fire, burn and caldron, bubble."

Of course this Shakespearean passage has nothing to do with the game of bridge, but whenever I come across it, it conjures up a picture of a boiling caldron being prepared for bridge players who make bad penalty doubles.

Especially when the opponents are in a slam contract can a penalty double be calamitous, for it will warn the opponents that they are in bad shape. In this circumstance, the double gives the doubled side the option of escaping to some other contract where hope might exist. When the doubled side judiciously exercises its option of escaping, the doubler is frequently sorry that he doubled originally.

Today's deal is a case in point. The hand came up in the Reisinger Team-of-Four Championships of 1972.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Sitting North was one of Canada's top players, Joe Silver, of Montreal. When he bid six notrump, he was, of course, worried about the diamond suit, but he felt that it was a justifiable gamble in view of West's failure to have doubled South's five-diamond Blackwood response (thereby minimizing the danger of a diamond lead). However, when East doubled six notrump, North was quite certain that East, who was on lead, would cash a couple (or, perhaps, a half dozen) diamond tricks.

So North retreated to seven clubs, his partner's rebid suit, in order to transfer the opening lead to West, and have the latter guess as to what he should lead. East, probably now quite unhappy with his original double, doubled again.

West, on lead, thought for quite a while before leading. He finally came to the conclusion that East's double called for a spade lead, the dummy's first-bid suit. So he opened the jack of spades — and that was that. South won the trick with dummy's ace, drew trumps in 3 rounds, and claimed his contract.

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"How's the new job?" asked Elsie. "It must be quite a change after a big city school."

"It sure is, with only 348 pupils in all," replied John. "There are 231 below Grade 5, but 165 above Grade 3."

How many in Grade 4?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Total, $24.74.

St. John Award

Coreen Burkholder, 16, has received the Grand Prior's badge, the highest award presented by St. John Ambulance Brigade.

The brigade's provincial commissioner, Maj.-Gen. A. J. Pedlie, presented the award at a garden party Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Barnes, 3724 Tillicum.

Miss Burkholder, 1536 Bank, has been chosen to represent B.C. at a Crusader camp at Mychett, England, Aug. 6 to 18.

$3 MILLION PROFIT IN SMUGGLING ALIENS

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The largest alien-smuggling ring ever discovered in the United States made $3 million a year by bringing up to 50 Mexicans a day into the United States illegally.

Two of the alleged leaders of the ring, women who listed their occupations as waitresses, deposited more than $250,000 apiece in their bank accounts last year, authorities said.

The ring — operating in Tijuana, San Diego and Los Angeles — may have smuggled as many as 15,000 illegal aliens into the United States, said assistant district attorney Thomas Coffin.

HIS DELIVERY WAS SPECIAL

It was a bad weekend for British mailmen and car owners, but a good one for thieves from Thailand and Brazil and a convicted forger from Philadelphia.

In Lightcliffe, England, mailman Bernard Corton was fined 25 pounds ($62.50) when Mrs. Olive Saxby charged him with indecent assault after he delivered a passionate kiss along with a posted parcel. The postie couldn't understand it, he told police, since this was the first time any woman had complained about his services.

In Knaresborough, England, meanwhile, police gave chase to a post office van after a caller reported it was being driven by a masked man. It was. When police forced the truck to stop, postman ..Vic Venables stepped out wearing a white handkerchief to fight off an attack of hay fever.

As for the car owners, cricket batsman Richard Banks smacked a solid hit during a match in Sandy, England, and watched the ball sail beyond the playing field and smash the rear window of his own car.

In Folkestone, England, Gwynne Davis parked his shiny new mini car on the beach. When he returned, it was completely submerged by the incoming tide. The month-old car must be completely rebuilt.

There was good news among the underworld in Bangkok, however, where police are looking for a thief who stole an elephant from tribesmen, then demanded $1,000 ransom for its return. So far the thief — and the elephant — are in hiding.

Thieves are having a field day in Rio de Janiero, too, where Adilson Ribeiro Troca reports has been held up 42 times while driving to the bank with his company's earnings.

Finally, red-faced deputies and FBI agents in Alexandria, Va., are searching for Joseph Dunham, a 41-year-old convicted forger who slipped out of the city jail by posing as another inmate scheduled to be released on bail. Dunham, also wanted on a homicide change in Philadelphia, was released into the custody of a woman claiming to be another inmate's sister.

Fire Destroys Sinatra's Yacht

AVALON, Calif. — Frank Sinatra's $250,000 yacht caught fire at sea during the weekend and the coast guard said the boat was "a total loss." Sinatra was not aboard the boat, the 85-foot Christina, when flames broke out in the port Engine off Catalina Island. Four members of the Irving Weiss family, friends of the singer, were using the yacht. They and two crewmen took to a lifeboat and were picked up by the coast guard.

NYACK, N.Y.—Actress Helen Hayes has given more than $13,000 to restore a 140-year-old church in Cold Springs, N.Y. A Nyack restoration group has purchased the Tuscan-styled Chapel of Our Lady from the New York archdiocese. The church has been abandoned since 1906.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — National American Legion Commander Joe Matthews has proposed formation of closer ties with veterans groups in Eastern Europe, while maintaining his organization "is not going soft on communism." Matthews, Ft. Worth, Tex., told the 55th annual commander's banquet for West Virginia formal links with foreign war veterans could further "the spirit of detente."

HONOLULU — A British couple who drifted 117 days in a raft in the Pacific after a whale sank their yacht arrived in Honolulu Friday, vowing to "do it all again."

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bailey, wearing shorts and looking fit, were on the bridge of the 200-foot South Korean fishing vessel that picked them up off Guatemala June 30. They had been floating on a small life raft.

They were en route to New Zealand when a whale struck their boat and it sank.

"We are going on to Korea, then to England to build a boat and start all over again," said Bailey, 42.

BUTCHART GARDENS. Known throughout the world for their incredible beauty. Romantic Night Lighting . . . spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars" . . . Smashing Stage Shows . . . Floral Restaurant . . . Begonia Bower . . . Show Greenhouse . . . Fascinating Seed and Gift Shop. Open every day 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

BUTCHART GARDENS — EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY. Skilful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired gardens. Embracing over 30 acres, actually six gardens in one, fabulous Sunken Garden, Lake Garden, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, the great Stage Show Garden (now in full swing) and the English Rose Garden, especially gorgeous right now!

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful buffet suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar service.

BUTCHART GARDENS SPARKLING ENTERTAINMENT. Staged in the midst of incredible beauty it's the highlight of Victoria's summer entertainment season.

MONDAYS, 8:30 p.m. "NICE 'N EASY" — Variety entertainment featuring Marge Bridgeman, Maura Hall, Murray McAlpine, Christopher Ross, Norm Watson, Betty Winter, Woody Woodland, and the "Butchart Buskers". Also the "Butchart Gardeners" 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m.

TUESDAYS, 8:30 p.m. "NICE 'N EASY" — Variety entertainment musical featuring Marge Bridgeman, John Dunbar, Maura Hall, Christopher Ross, Norm Watson, Betty Winter, Woody Woodland, and the "Butchart Buskers." Also the "Butchart Gardeners" 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. and the "Zingari" Puppets 7:00 and 7:45 p.m.

WEDNESDAYS. Same as Monday listing.

THURSDAYS, 8:30 p.m. SCOTTISH AND VARIETY NIGHT. Colourful Scottish Stage Show and Tattoo. Thrill to the Pipes and Drums of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) as they march on our stage and parade in the great Stage Show Garden. Plus other entertainment starring baritone John Dunbar (M.C.), the Adeline Duncan dancers, June Dupuis and Lawrence Tuttle with Grace Timp and Dave Ferne. Also "The Butchart Gardeners" 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m., and the "Zingari" Puppets 7:00 and 7:45 p.m.

FRIDAYS. Same as Monday listing.

SATURDAYS, "The Butchart Buskers" 1 to 3 p.m. The Heron Family (humanettes) 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. "Zingari" Puppets 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. Special Feature Saturday, July 7 at 9 p.m. Scandinavian Dancers From Junction City Oregon. Young, talented and colourful. Well worth seeing. Colour film "Helicopter Canada" or "Mountains to the Sea" approximately 9 to 10 p.m.

SUNDAYS. "The Butchart Buskers" 1 to 3 p.m. "Grace Tuckey" Puppets 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. The Heron Family (humanettes) 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. Colour film "Helicopter Canada" or "Mountains to the Sea" approximately 9 to 10 p.m.

BUTCHART GARDENS SUGGESTS: Combine it all into one grand, thrifty outing — the Gardens by daylight . . . stage entertainment . . . romantic night lighting . . . and the Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars". Regular admission covers it all. For added pleasure, dine in the Floral Restaurant.

CENTRAL CITY, Colo. (AP) — The beer garden at the Gory Hole tavern was more or less back to normal after an exhibition of unparallelled inelegance known as the Third International Spittin', Belchin' and Cussin' Triathlon.

Harold Fielden, 23, a university student, spat 34 feet to break a world record and outcussed 11 other contestants to win a chrome Rolls-Royce radiator cover.

Taking top honors in the belchin' competition was Paul Woodhams, 26, of Denver. He won a free restaurant dinner.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BRITTON — In treasured memory of my beloved husband Frank who passed away July 16, 1969.
Only God knows of the constant longing
In my heart for you;
And be it by day or night,
I feel your presence near.
—Forever in my thoughts, deeply missed. Ever loving wife Gertrude.

SUTHERLAND — In loving memory of Dennis Sutherland who passed away three years ago.
We do not forget you, nor do we intend;
We think of you often and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be;
But dear to our memory and ever will be.
—Always remembered by the R. Johnson family.

TO BE ANNOUNCED
VIRGIN, Mrs. Edith

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Monday Movies and Specials

Movies

The Cool Ones (x), on 12 at 7. A 1967 musical about a show biz manager who tries to get two of his clients, a rock singer and a dancer, to the top. The romantic aspects of the plot are silly and the music is loud and undistinguished. Roddy McDowall, Debbie Watson and Gil Peterson star.

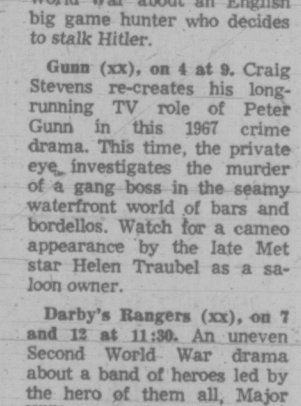
The Seventh Seal (xxxx), on 9 at 8. Second of twenty Ingmar Bergman films to be shown each week on this Bergman Film Festival. The Seventh Seal, made in 1957, is Bergman's medieval allegory weaving together the eternal question of god and morality. Max von Sydow and Bibi Andersson star.

Man Hunt (xxx), on 13 at 8. Walter Pidgeon, Joan Bennett and George Saunders star in this exciting 1941 melodrama set just before the Second World War about an English big game hunter who decides to stalk Hitler.

Gunn (xx), on 4 at 9. Craig Stevens re-creates his long-running TV role of Peter Gunn in this 1967 crime drama. This time, the private eye investigates the murder of a gang boss in the seamy waterfront world of bars and bordellos. Watch for a cameo appearance by the late Met star Helen Traubel as a saloon owner.

Darby's Rangers (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. An uneven Second World War drama about a band of heroes led by the hero of them all, Major William Darby, played by James Garner. The supporting cast includes the entire Warner Brothers TV talent roster at that time — 1958.

Tombstone (xxx), on 2 at 11:30. The well-known tale of Wyatt Earp and the infamous duel with outlaws at Tombstone, Arizona, rises well above average in this 1942 movie than too good direction and an excellent cast that includes Richard Dix, Frances Gifford and Kent Taylor.



BURT LANCASTER
. . . Tonight on 8 at midnight

Assignment — Outer Space (x), on 6 at midnight. A routine English-dubbed, German-made 1952 sci-fi drama about a spaceship out of control that threatens to destroy earth.

A Child is Waiting (xxx), on 8 at midnight. A gripping 1963 story of a music teacher and a psychologist on the staff of a school for retarded children starring Burt Lancaster and Judy Garland. It's strong stuff, not for the sensitive as the film uses actual retarded youngsters in the cast.

Dirty Heroes (xx), on 13 at midnight. Italian-made Second World War drama about a group of escaped Allied POWs who join forces with a band of Dutch partisans. Filmed in 1969 and starring John Ireland and Curt Jurgens.

The Amazing Transparent Man (xx), on 6 at 1:30. A fair 1960 sci-fi yarn coupled with a crime story about a scientist who invents a serum that makes a man transparent and then tries it out on a bank robber.

Specials

Inside Canada, on 2 at 7:30. Debut of a CBC summer variety series featuring songs and comedy sketches about Canada. (30 mins.)

Hollywood Television Theatre, on 9 at 10. Nudity and obscenity are the elements in "Steambath," a comedy about life after death. The setting is a steam room, temporary rest stop for wandering souls that's run by a Puerto Rican attendant who says he is God. Cast includes Bill Bixby and Valerie Perrine. (90 mins.)

Marjoe's Country, on 4 at 11:30. A grand tour of the country-western scene with former evangelist Marjoe Gortner. (90 mins.)

Early Tuesday Movies

Dangerous When Wet (xx), on 4 at 9:30. A lightweight 1953 comedy about a farm family who agrees to a promotion scheme to swim the English Channel starring Esther Williams and Fernando Lamas.

The Magic Carpet (xx), on 13 at 10:30. A corny Arabian Nights farce starring Lucille Ball, Raymond Burr and John Agar.

Caught (xxx), on 13 at noon. A well-acted 1949 melodrama about a young model who marries for money only to find that her husband is a sadist. An excellent cast includes James Mason, Barbara Bel Geddes and Robert Ryan.

The Defiant Ones (xxxx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. An honest racial drama about two escaping chain-gang convicts, white and black, whose differences make their flight more difficult because they are literally chained together. Stanley Kramer directed this 1958 movie and Sidney Poitier and Tony Curtis turn in excellent performances.

Above Us the Waves (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A British-made 1956 high tension Second World War drama about midget submarines stalking German battleships. Good cast with John Gregson and John Mills.

Torpedo Bay (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A different sort of war drama about the problems faced by an Italian submarine that surfaces in neutral waters and finds its path blocked by anti-sub craft. Filmed in 1962 and starring James Mason and Lilli Palmer.

CBC Radio Highlights

Monday, July 16

Part 2 — Shakespeare and the Director: Peter Brook in conversation with Moelwyn Merchant, following a Paris production of A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Part 3: Instrumental Music of the Renaissance: With the Accademia Monteverdiana and Philip Jones Brass Ensemble.

8:03 (AM) Mosiac — The music of Latvia: Richard Seaborn conducts the orchestra and choir with soloists Alicja Kietta Seaborn and Bruce Linney.

8:30 (AM) Identities — Sunday, Italian Style: A day for visiting, cooking, eating, drinking, families. Cindy Bissaillon visits with a Toronto family to find out how it is done. Etcho: A young company of artists of Ukrainian origin in Winnipeg design posters and sweat shirts, among other things, with a Ukrainian reference.

10:03 (FM) Ideas — Strategy and Tactics of War: The Clash of Ignorant Armies in the Night: Strategy and tactics of war, 1648 to the present.

10:30 (AM) CBC Playhouse — Third of five new comedy adventures featuring Henry Ramer as the Montreal sleuth, Jordan Mayday, written by James G. Harris of Montreal.

11:03 (AM) Ideas — The Rhine: A river where myth meets rampant industrialization. Eulogized by Wagner and German nationalists as the birth-waters of the earth, the Rhine now rivals the Hudson for its pollution-counts.

Marchand Pushes Rail Link

VANCOUVER (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand says he will soon seek final Cabinet approval for a provincial-federal program to provide northwestern British Columbia with a new railway, road improvements and port development.

Interviewed during the Western Liberal conference which ended here Sunday, Marchand said announcement of approval is expected soon.

Other conference sources said they expect an announcement July 23, the day before the opening of the Western Economic Opportunities Conference in Calgary.

Marchand said the deal would relate to ports, freight rates, rail spur lines and "things like that."

B.C. Resources Minister Bob Williams estimated in May that the program could mean an investment of $500 million by governments and private industries.

B.C. is anxious to develop its sawmilling capacity in the region to provide cheaper wood supplies for three pulp mills at Prince Rupert and Kitimat.

When the total railway program is completed, Canadian National Railway would have a jumping off point for extension into the Yukon.

The development package is expected to include the present construction of the B.C. Rail line from Fort St. James to Dease Lake, further extension of the line to Lower Post, near the B.C.-Yukon border, from Dease Lake, construction of a B.C. Rail line from Klappan, on the Fort St. John-Dease Lake link to Telegraph Creek, about 40 miles, and a new staged CPR link from Terrace, to join the Fort St. John-Dease Lake line.

FOREIGN FISHERMEN REPRISALS SOUGHT

SEATTLE (AP) — Economic reprisals against foreign countries whose fishermen repeatedly violate international covenants were urged Sunday by Alaska Gov. William Egan.

Egan said in a telegram to President Nixon the issue should "be raised as a top-priority matter during secretary of state William Rogers' current round of visits to Japan and Korea and then be pursued in continuing diplomatic discussions with those countries until resolved."

He called on the president to establish "a timetable . . . for economic sanctions against any nation whose fishermen continue to transgress upon North America's north Pacific salmon resources."

Resolution Raft Clear Sailing For Delegates

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the Liberal conference on Western Objectives Sunday cleaned up the business of their three-day meeting with a raft of resolutions.

One of the most vital concerns the sale of agricultural and recreational land to non-citizens.

The resolution was considerably amended and finally included a provision covering landed immigrants after delegates objected that restriction on the sale of Canadian land would prevent immigrants from settling in Canada.

Also approved was a resolution saying no Canadian tax money should be made available in the form of outright grants or low-interest loans to foreign-owned corporations which wish to commence or expand operations in Canada.

The convention approved a broad resolution calling for focus of Western economic strategy upon secondary manufacturing growth.

They also voted for a more specific statement calling for world competitive market forces to be allowed to set the price for oil and gas in Canada.

Among several resolutions calling for decentralization of the federal bureaucracy, was a resolution asking the government to affirm its decision that the head office of the Canada Development Corporation be set up in Vancouver by November.

Another resolution asked the federal government to establish a program of western regional priorities which will include location of specific operations of Air Canada and the CBC as well as relocation of the national energy board and its staff in Western Canada.

A statement on Mackenzie Valley transportation, which in effect was a declaration against the moving of oil through the Strait of Juan de Fuca, was approved after lengthy discussion.

Delegates voted for "autonomous senior federal administrators who reside in B.C. and who have the power to make the necessary decisions" to bring all British Columbia ports under a single jurisdiction.

A Manitoba resolution was approved which called for the federal government to make a "firm and final commitment" to the development of the Hudson's Bay route, including Churchill, as Canada's Arctic port, Arctic resupply centre and transport centre.

Delegates supported a resolution calling for equal competition between CP Air and Air Canada, saying that CP Air is presently limited to 25 per cent of the trans-Canada traffic of Air Canada.

The resolution added that "top priority" must be given to improving the inadequate air connections to the U.S.

On Saturday, delegates approved a resolution calling for the Commons to continue to be elected on the basis of representation by population, for the Senate to be reformed to give each province equal representation in the senate, and for senators to be elected rather than appointed.

They also called for the Yukon and the Northwest territories to immediately have senate representation.

Delegates also passed a motion on the controversial issue of off-shore mineral rights which said the Canadian nation should have proprietary rights over the seabed off shore and Parliament should have full legislative jurisdiction.

Arctic Dogwood Christened

The 53-foot schooner Arctic Dogwood, which will attempt a west-to-east sailing of the Northwest Passage, was christened Sunday by Mrs. Walter Owen, wife of British Columbia's Lieutenant-Governor.

The Arctic Dogwood, which has a specially-designed ferro-cement hull, is expected to sail Wednesday on the first leg of her voyage, to the Aleutians.

She carries a five-man crew under Captain Robert Masters, along with the captain's wife, a trained nurse.

The voyage, first attempt at the Northwest Passage from the west by a sailing vessel, could take anywhere from 100 days, if the weather is good, to two years. The special design of the hull is aimed at having the Arctic Dogwood lifted up by ice pressure rather than being crushed if she is caught in the Arctic ice pack.

Her destination is Halifax. The vessel would return to the West Coast through the Panama Canal. A spokesman for the Arctic Dogwood society, George Baker, said as much British Columbia materials and equipment as possible were used in constructing the vessel.

If her voyage is successful, Baker said the society plans a round-the-world tour to promote B.C.'s shipbuilding industry.

Beaches Closed

VENTIMIGLIA, Italy (AP) — City officials ordered the closure Friday of seven of the nine beaches of this community on the Italian Riviera. Health authorities cited acute pollution of the sea as the reason.

Bristol Bay Disaster Forecast Comes True

Biologists had predicted a disaster, and they got it — a return of about 1.5 million fish, less than 25 per cent of the projected run. United States fishermen have hauled in 569,000 of the prized table fish and now are going into drydock.

In 1970, the total catch in Bristol Bay was 38 million salmon, 21 million of them reds. The figures for 1972 were 3.1 million — 2.5 million reds.

This was expected to be a bad year in the fishery's five-year pattern of up-and-down runs, and it turned out to be the worst. The Alaska department of fish and game blames Japanese fishermen and mother nature, in that order.

The Japanese fishery agency in Tokyo, when queried last week, said it was not permitting new Japanese boats to move into North Pacific water covered by a treaty with the United States and Canada.

However, in waters next to the treaty line, which extends about 500 miles from the mouth of Bristol Bay and down the West Coast, the coast guard reported sharp increases in the number of Japanese fishing vessels, particularly those hunting salmon.

Near "waters of Alaska interest" — the state has 26,000 miles of coastline, much of it closely knit islands in the Aleutian chain — the coast guard counted about 500 foreign fishing vessels June 25, more than 450 of them Japanese. Of that total, 244 are out for salmon, most of them south of the Aleutians.

By July 2, the foreign fleet had grown to 602 and the Japanese contingent to 565, of which 352 were salmon netters.

Following the normal salmon run patterns, 105 Japanese boats were reported in waters north of the Aleutians.

The latest tally, July 9, showed 180 Japanese and 27 Russian salmon boats operating between Norton Sound and the Aleutians, about the same as a year ago. That date fell close to the peak catches of the year by American fishermen in Bristol Bay.

RUSH HOUR TAXES SEEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some cities may have to levy a special tax on cars using freeways during rush hours to help ease their traffic problems, transportation secretary Claude Brinegar says.

Brinegar said Sunday no city is known to have resorted yet to special stickers and taxes for auto commuters. But he said some are providing outlying parking sites served by express buses with exclusive lanes on the expressways.

"It's starting to work well at the nation's capital, carrying workers between the suburbs in Northern Virginia and the District of Columbia in morning and evening rush hours," Brinegar said. "Other cities are also starting it."

He said the use of buses in such a manner "can be a low cost operation" compared to alternatives.

The best solution to growing urban traffic, Brinegar said, is "to offer people a better alternative to driving their own cars."

Rail systems are too costly for all but perhaps a dozen of the largest cities, Brinegar said. He said rail systems do not solve traffic problems "unless something is done to control the way a city grows."

"And cities will not be reshaped overnight," the secretary said, "that takes decades."

Whalers Make River Trip

EDMONTON (CP) — Twelve naval reservists, representing seven of Canada's 16 naval reserve units, gathered here Sunday to prepare for a month-long 930-mile trip down the Mackenzie River in 27-foot whalers.

Headed by Lt.-Cmdr. Bruce Waterfield of HMCS Scotian at Halifax, the group will sail their whalers from Fort Providence on the Mackenzie to Inuvik, N.W.T. The men were selected from volunteers in the 3,000-member naval reserve, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

The whalers are rigged with two masts and three sails, and can also be propelled by oars or outboard motor. They are equipped with a drop keel for sailing in deep or shallow waters.

The crews were to leave here today after picking up the necessary northern gear needed from the Canadian Forces base in Edmonton, and fly to Yellowknife, N.W.T., for a five-day familiarization period in the Arctic. Then they will be transported to Fort Providence for the official launching next Monday.

At the top of their shopping lists, the crew members have placed insect repellent and mosquito netting.

Their whalers were shipped earlier from Halifax.

NO KNIVES: ALLMAND

VANCOUVER (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand says he has walked the streets of Vancouver and been unable to find the knife-carrying panhandlers he has been getting complaints about.

He said knife-carrying has never been part of the Criminal Code of Canada but he has received requests to put the anti-knife law back in the code.

Interviewed while he was in Vancouver attending the liberal conference on western objectives, Allmand said there is a "misconception that the carrying of knives, especially hunting knives, by some young people on the streets, is something new."

He said apparently a lot of British Columbians thought that an anti-knife law was removed when the vagrancy section was dropped from the code.

He said the knife-carrying which is causing so much concern has never been part of the code.

QUICK-DRAW BOB STANFIELD was a little slow in slapping leather Sunday afternoon when the Tory leader matched gunsmanship with Carol Van Weerdenburg at a Toronto Island picnic. The blonde beauty had Stanfield dead in her sights before his six-shooter even cleared its holster, so it's back to verbal shootouts for Stanfield.

Cong Labelled Us Spies —Canadians

Times News Services

SAIGON — Two Canadian officers freed after 18 days as captives of the Viet Cong said today they were captured because the Communists thought they were American spies.

Capt. Ian Patten, 31, of Toronto, and Fletcher Thomson, 25, of Ottawa, were released Sunday along with two captured South Vietnamese drivers. They appeared healthy and fit.

They were flown by helicopter to Saigon and described their experiences at a news conference today.

"We were told we were recognized as Americans on an intelligence mission," Patten said. "They could not distinguish us from Americans.

"Upon my approach a pistol was put to my head and the adventure really began," said Patten.

Patten and Thomson told of trekking jungle trails while bound and of being hit by rifle butts on more than one occasion. They were in the Xuan Loc area, 45 miles northeast of Saigon.

They told of daily "conversations," one five hours long after an eight-hour trek, and sleepless nights as the the Viet Cong sought to make them confess they were not connected with the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

The Canadians said they were on a trip to show the ICCS presence and get to know the countryside when they were taken.

They said they were visiting an area where they had been before and where they were convinced it was safe to travel.

They said their captors had orders to "apprehend" ICCS personnel and told of secret signals designed to keep their morale up when they were separated.

Patten said he was not only "rifle butted" and pushed around occasionally, but also kept bound for 1½ days when he refused to co-operate.

However, through the whole news conference, the men declined to condemn the Viet Cong or its Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG).

Patten mentioned only "certain personalities" and both said they were fed as well as the Viet Cong themselves and were treated humanely by most of the men.

"We were bound on a number of occasions, particularly on the march," Patten said. "On other occasions we bid without a great deal of sleep — in other words we had no sleep. After an eight-hour march on one occasion we spent over five hours going through what I will call a conversation.

"Whenever we travelled through the jungle, we were bound with our arms behind our back and a noose around out neck so when we moved our arms the noose would tightens around our necks."

The two said they handed over Canadian citizenship papers and Canadian Armed Forces identity tags immediately. They did not have ICCS identity cards because these were not issued until after June 28.

Ambassador Michel Gauvin, chairman of the Caadia ICCS delegation, said Thomson and

IRA-BOUND ARMS SEIZED

DUBLIN (AP) — Police and troops swooped on a British freighter today and seized eight cases of arms and ammunition bound from Montreal to embattled Northern Ireland.

Police said the "fairly large" consignment of weapons was destined for the Irish Republican Army, which is fighting to oust Britain from Northern Ireland and to unite it with the republic.

The weapons were seized aboard the freighter Manchester Vigour which docked Sunday night. The owners said the ship made no other stops en route from Montreal.

One man was arrested. His identity was not made public.

Police said they acted on a tip. When they went aboard the ship they went straight to one of the 51 containers to be unloaded here. It contained the 11 cases of arms.

Pact Ratified, Fishing On

The B.C. net salmon fleet resumed fishing Sunday night as a nine-day strike ended.

Fishermen, shoreworkers and tendermen, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, voted Saturday by more than 80 per cent to approve new contracts and fish prices with the Fisheries Association of B.C.

The three groups, with a combined membership of 7,000, went on strike July 6.

Tendermen were also back at sea but union secretary-treasurer Jack Nichol said it would be later in the week before fish plants are in full operation when the first catches of salmon are brought in.

The shoreworkers agreement calls for a basic wage increase of $1.50 an hour in two stages of a two-year contract. Previous wages ranged from $2.82 to $3.87 an hour.

On top of the $1.50 wage increase, women will receive adjustments of 37 to 51 cents an hour to eliminate pay discrimination and some job categories will receive adjustments of 10 to 37 cents an hour.

Nichol said washers in cannery operations will get a total raise of $1.94 an hour, or a 68.8-per cent increase. Filleters, predominantly women, will get an extra $2 an hour, or 63.3 per cent above their former wage.

The new contract also provides for double time for Sunday work and overtime beyond three hours Monday to Friday.

Tendermen will receive a basic wage increase of $140 a month this year and $120 a month next year. Their old pay rates ranged from $583 a month to $785. They also obtained increased leave time and assurance that days off will be in home ports.

Fishermen will receive 50 cents a pound for sockeye this year and 52 cents next year; 40 cents a pound for coho this year and 42 cents next year; 20 cents and 22 cents respectively for pinks and 26 cents and 27 cents respectively for chums.

Paint Blaze Frees Chemical Poisons

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tests were being conducted today to determine both the cause of a fire at a Canadian Industries Ltd. paint warehouse and the exact penetration of chemicals released into False Creek during the blaze.

Residents of about 40 blocks in Vancouver's East End had an evacuation scare Sunday as a five-alarm blaze ripped through the CIL plant.

The six-hour fire was brought under control without the necessity of moving people, although firemen had to stay on duty through the night to douse occasional flare-ups that reappeared in the smoldering building.

Residents were warned to be ready to evacuate in case cyanide or other toxic substances were released into the air by the fire.

Federal environment officials called to the scene expressed fears that large quantities of phenols — chemicals used in the manufacture of paints and other substances — might enter tidewater with the runoff from the firehoses and result in a fish kill.

There were no serious injuries in the blaze, although four firemen — three suffering smoke inhalation and one who fell from the one-storey building — were sent briefly to hospital.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started with an explosion, but they couldn't pinpoint immediately the cause or location of the blast.

Chris Hatfield, environmental emergency co-ordinator with the federal environmental service, said his service was notified soon after the fire broke out.

"We were concerned at the possibility of air toxicity in the beginning," he said. "Once we were sure there was no people danger, we could start thinking of marine life."

Hatfield said undetermined quantities of phenols, estimated to be considerable, apparently entered the storm sewers and were washed into False Creek.

"These chemicals are soluble in water and quite persistant — they might last a number of days," he said.

"They are quite toxic to marine life and they could be dispersed over a wide area."

Hatfield said he expected the federal labs to determine today the extent of contamination in the immediate area, but it would be some time before the effect on sea life would be known.

"When it flushed out into English Bay, we are hoping that the chemical will be diluted enough that it won't cause much harm."

Company officials estimated damage at about $1 million to the building and an equal loss to tons of inflammable liquids and chemicals stored there.

U.S. Lied Over Cambodia Bombs

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. defence department acknowledged today that B52 strikes were made in Cambodia prior to 1970 despite public assertions at the time of U.S. respect for the neutrality of Cambodia.

Defence Secretary James Schlesinger, in a letter to the Senate armed services committee, said raids "had been conducted for some period of time and were fully authorized" before the United States publicly announced attacks in May, 1970, into so-called sanctuaries areas of Cambodia near the South Vietnamese border.

"At this period of time, you will remember, over one half million men were stationed in South Vietnam," Schlesinger said.

"Because of the sensitive operational and diplomatic situation, special security precautions were taken to ensure that the operations would not be compromised."

Schlesinger sent the letter to the Senate panel as former air force Maj. Hal Knight testified under oath that he falsified records of B52 strikes in early 1970.

He said he acted under orders from superiors that he burn all documents, computer tapes and other materials that would expose the strikes in Cambodia.

Knight was asked if he ever questioned the procedure. "I asked who authorized this procedure," he replied.

"I was told not to ask."

He said there always was a cover target with "a strike order in Vietnam" to account for the actual mission in Cambodia.

Nixon Office Bugged

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — On President Nixon's orders, sophisticated electronic listening devices—or bugs—have been in operation on his own telephones and in his offices since 1970, testified an ex-presidential aide today.

Alexander Butterfield testified that the devices were installed "for historical purposes, to record the president's business. . . ."

He said there were such devices in the Oval office of the president and in Nixon's office in the Executive Office building.

Butterfield said the tape recording equipment was installed between April or May of 1970 and the end of that summer or early in the fall.

Butterfield, who said he took the witness stand with only three hours' notice, was called to testify before the scheduled appearance of Herbert Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer.

Butterfield is a former White House aide. He now serves as administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency.

Kalmbach acknowledged today he raised funds to pay the original seven Watergate defendants but denied any prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in or its later cover-up.

Kalmbach is to follow him to the witness table.

Kalmbach said:

"My actions in the period immediately following the break-in which involved the raising of funds to provide for the legal defence of the Watergate defendants and for the support of their families were prompted in the belief that it was proper and necessary to discharge what I assumed to be a moral obligation that had arisen in some manner unknown to me by reason of earlier events.

"The fact that I had been directed to undertake these actions by the No. 2 and No. 3

2 Die in Shootout

GIBSONS (CP) — Two men are dead following a Sunday shootout between neighboring in-laws near here.

Dead are Donald Parke, 33, and Rudolph Shcrenko, 70, both of Harvey Road at Grantham's Landing.

RCMP said Parke and his father, Warden, were repairing their roof when Schrenko, the younger Parke's father-in-law, began shooting with a rifle, killing Donald.

The elder Parke jumped from the roof and ran inside with his wife, grabbing another rifle, said police. Schrenko was killed while pointing his rifle at the elder Parke, RCMP said.

RCMP said no charges have been laid.

CP Air Strike Looms

VANCOUVER (CP) — A union spokesman says about 1,300 members of the International Association of Machinists employed by CP Air will be ready to strike in about 10 days.

Tony Steele, chief negotiator for IAM Local 764, said a meeting with the company here Sunday was unsuccessful and "there is no reason to delay the strike date."

Both parties in the dispute are free to strike or lock-out seven days after a conciliation board report reaches federal Labor Minister John Munro in Ottawa.

Steele said it is hoped Munro will indicate he has received the report early this week and then a strike date will be set.

The CP Air workers, he said, are determined not to settle for less than the 19.6 per cent wage hike over two years that company negotiators tentatively offered several months ago, but then withdrew.

In the meantime 6,500 members of the union working for Air Canada voted to accept a 16 per cent increase following a series of rotating strikes last month.

Restful Night For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon spent a restful night and the chest pains caused by his bout with pneumonia are now down to a minimum, his doctor reported today.

Nixon awoke at 8 a.m. after a good night's sleep, Dr. Walter Tkach said. The president was given four chest therapy treatments Sunday.

The treatment resulted in "considerable improvement in his chest congestion and chest discomfort is now at a minimum," Tkach said in his morning medical bulletin.

Cherry War Court Bound Following Sale of 50 Tons

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia cherry war is expected to move into court this week following the sale of more than 50 tons of outlaw cherries Sunday.

A convoy of 23 trucks brought the fruit down from the Okanagan to Vancouver Saturday, following the seizure of two truckloads of cherries by B.C. Fruit Board inspectors and RCMP.

Taylor, who came here to watch part of the sale in the Gastown district, said the board is taking further steps to bring the dispute into court, following an exchange of injunctions last week with Okanagan Growers Ltd. of Okanagan Centre, B.C.

"We knew it would bring legal action," said Allied chairman Bert Hume. "For the first time we will be able to get this into the courts and get it decided in proper ways.

"We are challenging the validity of the very foundation of the Fruit Board's marketing scheme and we can only do that in the Supreme Court, and this we are prepared to do."

Hans Rhenisch, president of United Fruit Growers Ltd., the second breakaway group to organize illegal sales here, said the rebel growers want a new fruit marketing association.

Hume and Rhenisch said they want to replace the Fruit Board's control of the production and sale of B.C. fruit with a fruit marketing association made up of growers, wholesalers, consumers, the B.C. Government and Union representatives.

Under current B.C. legislation, the Fruit Board, the sole agent for the B.C. Fruit Growers Association, controls all cherry sales through its marketing arm, B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd.

The legislation empowers the board to seize and dispose of any fruit sold outside its marketing structure.

DOLLAR WEAK

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar opened weak in Frankfurt and Zurich today, and there was virtually no demand.

The price of gold also eased to $119.75 an ounce in London from Friday's $121 and to $119.25 in Zurich from $120.75 on Friday.

The dollar opened at 2.3750 marks in Frankfurt down half a pfennig from Friday, and then eased further to 2.3720 marks. In Zurich, there was a similar pattern with the dollar opening at 2.8487 Swiss francs, nearly two centimes below Friday's close, and then sliding to 2.8475 francs.

The dollar showed some strength in Paris and London, however. It opened in Paris at 4.0875 francs, down from 4.10, then soon moved up to 4.0950.

Mortgage Rates Up One-Quarter

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Conventional mortgage rates for homes jumped a quarter point over the weekend to 9.75-10 per cent, with 9.75 per cent being the more common figure in Victoria.

One Victoria bank manager said anybody getting a mortgage at less than 9.75 per cent this week would "be getting a bargain."

A Times survey of 14 Victoria financial institutions this morning showed 13 of them putting out money at 9.75-10. The 14th, a trust company, was up to 10.5 per cent but had been at 10 per cent for at least a month.

Other banks and the trust companies quoted 9.75 to 10 with the higher figure applying to less desirable homes and to houses in outlying areas.

Demand was brisk for money at 9.5 per cent and bank managers expected demand to continue to be strong at 9.75 per cent.

"When the prime rate hits 10 per cent, it may be a different matter," one bank manager said this morning.

"There is something psychological about 10 per cent that acts as a barrier. At that level, people do the arithmetic and discover that they will be paying almost nothing on the principal in the first five years of a 25-year mortgage at 10 per cent."

Another banker agreed that 10 per cent money might cool the demand for mortgage loans.

But in the tight-money squeeze of 1969, interest rates soared to an all-time high of 10.75 per cent for prime mortgages. First sign of resistance then was 10.5 per cent.

Most trust companies were able to meet the new prime mortgage rate of the banks at 9.75 per cent as long as they were taking money in at 8.5 per cent for five-year term deposits. Trust companies offering 8.75 per cent on five-year term deposits, however, would be under a cost-squeeze pressure to charge 10 per cent for prime mortgages.

The B.C. Teachers Federation Co-operative Association, which had not altered its rates with fluctuations in past months, had to move its rates up as well.

It had set a long-term rate of 9.5 per cent for residences anywhere in B.C., when conventional rates were 9 per cent.

However, at last it was forced to alter its rates to 9.75 per cent and would continue upwards with the fluctuations in the prime rate.

The upward pressure on mortgages was pushing commercial and industrial rates up to levels one financier called "scary."

Conventional rates for commercial and industrial mortgages have jumped half a point in six weeks and now are in the range of 10.25 to 10.75 per cent.

One trust company official said 11 per cent would act as a psychological barrier to the outflow of money in commercial and industrial mortgages.

At present levels, demand was still brisk.

The Hiroshima Miracle —A Maiden Re-Visited

It was a kind of sentimental journey, going back to Hiroshima, but until I met Miyoko it hadn't gone at all as I expected.

Eighteen long years ago, when I'd covered the 10th anniversary of the dropping of the bomb, Hiroshima had been a thrilling experience for me. It was then a kind of festival of world peace. I remember the boats with the Japanese lanterns drifting in the night down one of the seven arms of the Ota River where it crosses the delta and empties into the Inland Sea. The fireworks over the dark waters. The speeches, not one of them talking of the horrors of that muggy August 6th of 1945, but only of the hope ahead for a world without war, without atom bombs.

Mostly I remembered the dinner party when some of the Hiroshima Maidens had joined me in the small hotel that had been built in the Peace Park for pilgrims who'd come to see for themselves where 200,000 men, women and children died that dreadful morning.

Most of the Maidens had been 12 years of age when the Americans dropped the bomb they called "Little Boy." They were girls who'd had plastic surgery in an attempt to cover the terrible burns to their faces and to their arms and legs, but the scars remained. I was very conscious of them when they joined me the evening of the anniversary.

That hadn't lasted long. They were girls, then in their early twenties, with a tremendous sense of mission, a genuine conviction that their disfigurement and the agonies of Hiroshima would be a warning and a symbol to the world of the stupidity of war. It was an unbelievably gay party we had that night.

Now I was back in Hiroshima 18 years later. The Maidens would be 40 now. I wondered if that shining idealism would be there still or if, indeed, they'd survived the long-term effects of radiation.

Hiroshima, itself, had changed beyond belief in those 18 years, had become another enormous, character-less Japanese industrial city with a population of some 800,000.

The little hotel where I'd entertained the Maidens was now some kind of government office. The atomic landmarks remain, the skeletal dome of what had been the Industrial Promotion Hall, the curious, cement cenotaph, shaped like the canopy of a covered wagon and with the words, "Rest in Peace. Man will not repeat the evil." and the newer museum buildings in the park, thronged now with summertime tourists.

But there's none of that immediacy I felt 18 years ago. Hiroshima, I felt, was now more memory than reality. The Japanese tourists had come as Canadian tourists go to Vimy Ridge, as a historical site but without that involvement that was so real on my last visit.

The administrator at the 170-bed Hiroshima Red Cross A-Bomb Hospital, Koso Sasaki, had confirmed this. "After all," he said, "a baby at that time would now be 28 years of age. The average age now of those patients admitted that we can define as possible atomic casualties is 60 years. We see the day in the future when there will be no more Hiroshima victims."

The surprising thing is that there are still 320,000 men and women survivors who were within the exposed areas of Hiroshima and Nagasaki when the bombs were dropped and medical services are free to them. I asked if any of the Hiroshima Maidens had been among the 59,000-odd who have received treatment here since 1956, when the hospital was opened. The administrator said no, he could not recall that.

I asked the question again when I visited the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission headquarters. This is a joint United States and Japanese investigative group which has been specializing in the study of the long-range effects of radiation exposure. Their findings now are much the same as when I was here 18 years ago: that leukemia and other forms of cancer have taken the lives of those who were exposed to heavy radiation at a mortality rate far greater than normal.

One of the older women at the commission headquarters, overhearing my question about the Maidens, said that she'd been told that some of them had recently opened a boutique. In any event, she said, I would surely find them or those who had survived if I enquired at the director's office of the peace culture centre.

So, at last, I came to meet Miyoko Matubara, who is 40 now and who was 12 when it happened. She was one of 320 girl students who had volunteered to help clean up some mid-town wooden shacks, considered to be vulnerable to fire bombs, on that morning. They were only a mile or so from the place where "Little Boy" went off. More than 250 of her young friends had died. Miyoko wears a heavy powder to cover the burns to her face, arms and legs, but it does not hide the cruel scars of that experience.

I did not expect Miyoko to talk of that morning and she did not. Instead, animatedly, she told me of her trips abroad over the past 10 years to many countries, including Canada, of her appearances at universities, schools, churches, peace groups and women's organizations, taking the message, "No more Hiroshimas" to those who could never know what it meant.

The Hiroshima Maidens were no more, as a group. Some had died. Some had gone to other places in Japan. But always, Miyoko told me, they had continued to preach that message, to show unashamedly their own burned bodies, for the cause of world peace.

I listened to her with much the same awe and delight that I'd remembered from that dinner party 18 years ago, this admirable, gay and courageous woman whose sense of mission had never left her. What had been a sentimental journey suddenly all seemed worthwhile.

Drug Trio Guilty

Three Victorians were found guilty today of conspiracy to traffic heroin, after a two-week trial before county court judge M. L. Drake.

Michael Kincses, 27, Daniel Hadden, 57, and Robert Langer, 30, were remanded in custody to Friday for sentence.

Maximum sentence is life imprisonment.

Kincses and Langer were also convicted of possession of heroin for trafficking which also carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

A fourth person Wendy Dance, 25, was acquitted of both charges.

In his judgment, Drake said direct evidence of a conspiracy was given by Sharon Dannenberg, 29, and 21-year-old Linda Anderson.

Dannenberg, in the third day of the trial pleaded guilty to possession of heroin for trafficking. Prosecutor Cecil Branson then entered a stay of proceedings on the conspiracy count.

She will also be sentenced Friday.

Anderson was named in the indictment as a co-conspirator but not charged.

Drake said it is "dangerous although possible" to convict on the basis of testimony given by an accomplice but "concluded that on the whole Dannenberg was a believeable witness."

The woman testified she was supplying Langer with heroin for resale on the street level.

She also testified Hadden was employed by Langer to perform certain functions necessary to keep the operation going.

Linda Anderson was also an accomplice, said Drake, "but she struck me to be entirely believable."

Branson said the evidence of Anderson and the police indicated there was "a connection between Langer and Kincses."

There was "so little evidence" against Dance, said Drake, that it would be "safe to say there was none at all."

The evidence against the others, said the judge, makes it "abundantly clear" that a conspiracy existed.

Outfall Levy 'Legal'

A levy on property taxes covering View Royal's share of construction costs for the Macaulay Point outfall is legal, deputy minister of municipal affairs Bill Smith said today.

According to supplementary letters patent dated Feb. 12, 1971, Smith said, the Capital Regional Board has the authority to undertake provision of trunk sewers and other facilities without the assent of the owner-electors.

Smith was replying to an announcement by a View Royal man who says he will withhold that portion of his taxes covering the Macaulay outfall.

On his tax bill the levy amounts to $45.75, he said.

Previous to the 1971 supplementary letters of patent, the regional board could not allot cost to any electoral area without assent of the owner-electors.

In 1969 a referendum proposing sewers for View Royal was defeated, Sutherland said, so the assent of the ratepayers was not given.

"Now the letters patent have been changed and they are trying to apply them retroactively," Sutherland said.

"A case before the Alberta Supreme Court ruled recently in regards to a farm act that legislation couldn't be applied retrospectively unless the act itself says that," he added.

Smith says, however, it's not a matter of applying the legislation retroactively since the 1969 referendum does not apply to the Macaulay outfall levy.

Smith said he didn't know what would happen to ratepayers who withhold payment of part of their taxes.

"It will have to be a political decision," he said. "From an administrative point of view the levy is legal It will be a political decision whether or not to acknowledge their point of view."

Dowell Plan Sought

City land commissioner A. G. Joyce has recommended the city advertise for proposals for the future use of the Dowell Building, a neglected landmark in the 1100-block Wharf Street.

In a letter to city manager J. H. Bramley, Joyce reported, "I have been negotiatiny with a group of businessmen from Vancouver through their representative, a local hotel man, for the possible acquisition of the building by sale or lease for the purpose of a large-scale public house site operation to include restaurant, cabaret, etc."

The building is currently used for storage by the city which bought it for $30,000 about 10 years ago.

The building was constructed 110 years ago by pioneer entrepreneur Robert Pattison Rithet.

Joyce said no plans have been made for the possible conversion of the building by the Vancouver group because of "the uncertainty of the Reid development," a hotel-apartment complex proposed for the opposite side of wharf Street.

Victoria builder George Wheaton has been commissioned by the Vancouver group to "look into the possibility of conversion," Joyce said.

"We must bear in mind any group wishing to convert the building would want reasonable assurance the city's intentions are firm," Joyce said in a letter to Bramley.

"I am quite sure the Vancouver group have expended considerable monies in their investigation up to this time," he said.

Meanwhile, Fire Chief Eric Simmons has recommended against giving permission to the Victoria Conservatory of Music women's committee to hold a book sale in the Dowell building because of possible fire hazard.

City Council to Get Confidential Land-List

A confidential list of properties the city might be interested in buying will be presented to Victoria city council Tuesday.

Along with that will be a request that priorities be set in using the city's land investment fund.

The memo being sent to the council's land development committee by city manager J. H. Bramley and land commissioner A. G. Joyce includes properties the city now owns, properties the parks department has already indicated it would like to acquire, and properties mentioned by members of council.

Bramley says there is $1,165,000 now available in the Land Investment Fund.

Revenue in the fund this year include a $500,000 appropriation from the 1972 operating surplus and $350,000 from the sale of property on McCaskill Street to the province where a co-operative housing project is now underway. A further $500,000 has been appropriated from the current capital budget.

Expenditures this year include $129,900 for the purchase of two lots of Broughton Street and $56,000 for one lot on Crescent Road.

Bramley asks the committee to consider "the priority to be attached to the acquisition of the listed properties, as well as any additional properties recommended for acquisition by the department of community development."

Gordon Gas Low Bidder

I. Gordon Gas Co. Ltd. was the lower bidder at $11,036 for a city contract to install new hot water heating systems at the Maritime Museum and Craigdarroch Castle.

The city's estimate was $14,000 and the high bid was $49,050.

BRIDGE FROM SQUARE IN RESTAURANT PLAN

Plans are being made to build a restaurant in a 19th-century building on Wharf Street that for many years housed the Wilson and Proctor machine shop.

Richard Talbot, president of Anglo Canadian Management Co. Ltd., said in a letter to council the unnamed developer's plan to convert the second floor of the building is dependent on the construction of a bridge to the floor from Bastion Square.

Meetings between Peter Cotton, the architect for the developer, and Willis Cunliffe and Tait, engineers for Bastion Square, are being held to consider the bridge plans.

HALF-TON OF BERRIES

Sunday was also Ald. Les Passmore Day, and the long-time Saanich alderman was honored in an afternoon ceremony at Beaver Lake Park, the festival site.

Passmore was made honorary Saanich fire chief and presented with a gold fire helmet by the department. He also received gifts from the police department and the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Indians to Take Over Cassiar, Davis Claims

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Environment Minister Jack Davis predicted Saturday that Japan's Marubeni Corporation will sell its interest in the Cassiar Fish Packing Company and that the North Coast Indians will take over control.

Marubeni recently purchased 49 per cent of Cassiar, bringing strong protests from the British Columbia government which said that, in effect, the Japanese would control many of the fish processing licences involved.

Davis said in an interview he will not allow any such licences to be bought by the Japanese or any other foreigners. He predicted his position will force Marubeni to sell its 49-per-cent interest in Cassiar by next March when licences come up for renewal.

The minister said he believes Indians along the coast in northwestern B.C. should control Cassiar and said he believes federal funds will be made available to the Indians — not only to buy out Marubeni but also the remaining 51 per cent held by other interests.

Davis said new rules are planned to keep fishing licences exclusively for Canadians, and stressed that fishing licences are a federal responsibility and Ottawa grants or denies licences annually.

The minister said it's an industry in which "we're going to have Canadian ownership 100 per cent forever, as far as I'm concerned."

Davis said that next spring, when the Cassiar company applies for licences, federal authorities will be concerned about its pattern of ownership, and how it has changed over the last year.

BANKS BOOST WEST: BRIEF

TORONTO (CP) — Far from draining resources from the western provinces, Canadian chartered banks serve the area disproportionately to western deposits, population and other critieria, the Canadian Bankers' Association says in a brief.

The association says bank loans exceed deposits in each of the four western provinces.

The "positive balance" — the difference between assets and liabilities — were $1.22 billion for the western provinces at the end of the last banking year at Oct. 31, 1972, the brief says.

The brief released today was prepared for a Calgary conference July 24-26 on western economic opportunities.

It appears to draw much the same conclusion as a federal government brief released last week which said the traditional western lament that the region is short-changed by eastern financial interests appears unjustified by facts.

The bank association brief says the positive balance by province was: Manitoba $205 million; Saskatchewan $180 million; Alberta $633 million, and British Columbia $207 million.

On regional banks, the association say the advantages of the present branch-banking system "outweigh conclusively any arguments put forward on behalf of small localized regional institutions."

Kahane Details Bomb Plan

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the Jewish Defence League, said today he proposed to associates in the United States that they blow up the now-empty Iraqi embassy in Washington, D.C., to draw attention to the plight of Iraqi Jewry.

The JDL leader told a news conference that he had sent a letter to unnamed persons "shortly after five Iraqui Jews were killed" several month ago.

"I proposed that a bomb be placed in the empty Iraqi embassy in Washington to help save the other 400 Jews still in Iraq," he said.

Kahane, who faces charges of conspiring to kidnap and murder a foreign diplomat in the United States in a Jerusalem trial beginning Friday, said he had been charged with conspiring to blow up the Iraqi embassy in the same indictment.

He added that he plans to plead guilty to the facts of the indictment, but will deny that he committed any crimes.

Meanwhile, he told newsmen that he would run in this fall's Knesset (Parliament) elections, even if he should be behind prison bars.

"Of course, I'll let my name stand for the election. If I'm in jail, I'll want to get out," he said.

Kahane plans to ask the Jerusalem district court to postpone his forthcoming trial until Nov. 20, nearly a month after the election. If he wins a Knesset seat, he would be free from prosecution, as are all Knesset members.

Kahane spent a month in jail before the supreme court allowed him out on $24,000 bail July 6 in connection with the conspiracy charges.

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (Reuter) — A United States Army Mohawk aircraft crashed near Baumholder in the Rhineland palatinate Friday, killing both crew members. The plane was from the 73rd Aviation Company at Hanau, West Germany.

U.K. Dancers Visit

A group of 30 British square dancers arrived in Victoria Sunday for a four-day visit with members of the Vancouver Island Western Square Dance Association.

The visitors have been billeted with association members who will act as guides for sightseeing tours. Hosts and guests will attend a dinner and square dance tonight at 8:30 at Holyrood House. The square dance is open to other Greater Victoria dancers.

Tuesday's events include a picnic at Cowichan Lake, a tour of the sawmill at Youbou and visit to Butchart Gardens. Daytime Wednesdayy is free for sightseeing with a dance in the evening at Beaver Lake Park.

The group leaves Thursday morning for a four-day visit in Vancouver followed by a trip to Edmonton for Klondike Days.

Seizure Fatal

A 43-year-old Californian who collapsed with a heart attack aboard the Blackball ferry Mv. Coho was pronounced dead at Victoria General Hospital Friday night.

SPCA Demands Rodeo Boycott

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has urged humane societies in Europe to oppose any attempt by the Calgary Stampede to tour their respective countries.

The society's action follows a suggestion the rodeo be taken on a tour. No decision has been made, but the proposal is under consideration.

William Leach, president of the Victoria SPCA and an executive of the provincial body, said the society is opposed to the commercial exploitation of animals.

"We are opposed to using animals in Roman-forum type displays for the amusement of people," he said.

"The Rodeo Cowboys Association calls rodeos a sport. In reality they are nothing more than big-time show-business."

He noted that rodeos and similar shows are banned in Britain.

Leach also took issue with Leon Neilson, a Calgary SPCA inspector, who recently defended the Stampede after a Briton described the rodeo as "diabolically cruel."

The Britain, Kevin White of Maidenhead, Berkshire, claimed the cinch strap is tightened around the horse's testicles, producing the bucking spectacle and is "barbaric and abhorrent to all those who care for the welfare of animals."

Neilson replied that 75 per cent of the horses used are mares.

He also said the cinch strap used is lined with sheepskin and fits about where a belt does on a person.

Leach said Neilson's statements were misleading.

"To say that 75 per cent of the bucking horses are mares is meaningless, does he (Neilson) suggest that causing mares to buck, by the use of a tight-bucking straps around their tender parts, is less cruel than using stallions?

"Neilson also talks of cinch straps attached to saddles," Leach added. "Every Alberta school boy knows that saddles are not used in bareback bronc riding.

"I have seen enough rodeos to know that animals suffer," Leach said.

NO KNIVES: ALLMAND

VANCOUVER (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand says he has walked the streets of Vancouver and been unable to find the knife-carrying panhandlers he has been getting complaints about.

He said knife-carrying has never been part of the Criminal Code of Canada but he has received requests to put the anti-knife law back in the code.

Interviewed while he was in Vancouver attending the liberal conference on western objectives, Allmand said there is a "misconception that the carrying of knives, especially hunting knives, by some young people on the streets, is something new."

He said apparently a lot of British Columbians thought that an anti-knife law was removed when the vagrancy section was dropped from the code.

He said the knife-carrying which is causing so much concern has never been part of the code.

QUICK-DRAW BOB STANFIELD was a little slow in slapping leather Sunday afternoon when the Tory leader matched gunsmanship with Carol Van Weerdenburg at a Toronto Island picnic. The blonde beauty had Stanfield dead in her sights before his six-shooter even cleared its holster, so it's back to verbal shootouts for Stanfield.

VC Thought 2 Canadians Spies for U.S.

Times News Services

SAIGON — Two Canadian officers freed after 18 days as captives of the Viet Cong said today they were captured because the Communists thought they were American spies.

Capt. Ian Patten, 31, of Toronto, and Fletcher Thomson, 25, of Ottawa, were released Sunday along with two captured South Vietnamese drivers. They appeared healthy and fit.

They were flown by helicopter to Saigon and described their experiences at a news conference today.

"We were told we were recognized as Americans on an intelligence mission," Patten said. "They could not distinguish us from Americans.

"Upon my approach a pistol was put to my head and the adventure really began," said Patten.

Patten and Thomson told of trekking jungle trails while bound and of being hit by rifle butts on more than one occasion. They were in the Xuan Loc area, 45 miles northeast of Saigon.

They told of daily "conversations," one five hours long after an eight-hour trek, and sleepless nights as the the Viet Cong sought to make them confess they were not connected with the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

The Canadians said they were on a trip to show the ICCS presence and get to know the countryside when they were taken.

They said they were visiting an area where they had been before and where they were convinced it was safe to travel.

They said their captors had orders to "apprehend" ICCS personnel and told of secret signals designed to keep their morale up when they were separated.

Patten said he was not only "rifle butted" and pushed around occasionally, but also kept bound for 1½ days when he refused to co-operate.

However, through the whole news conference, the men declined to condemn the Viet Cong or its Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG).

Patten mentioned only "certain personalities" and both said they were fed as well as the Viet Cong themselves and were treated humanely by most of the men.

"We were bound on a number of occasions, particularly on the march," Patten said. "On other occasions we did without a great deal of sleep — in other words we had no sleep. After an eight-hour march on one occasion we spent over five hours going through what I will call a conversation.

"Whenever we travelled through the jungle, we were bound with our arms behind our back and a noose around our neck so when we moved our arms the noose would tightens around our necks."

The two said they handed over Canadian citizenship papers and Canadian Armed Forces identity tags immediately. They did not have ICCS identity cards because these were not issued until after June 28.

Ambassador Michel Gauvin, chairman of the Canadian ICCS delegation, said Thomson and

IRA-BOUND ARMS SEIZED

DUBLIN (AP) — Police and troops swooped on a British freighter today and seized eight cases of arms and ammunition bound from Montreal to embattled Northern Ireland.

Police said the "fairly large" consignment of weapons was destined for the Irish Republican Army, which is fighting to oust Britain from Northern Ireland and to unite it with the republic.

The weapons were seized aboard the freighter Manchester Vigour which docked Sunday night. The owners said the ship made no other stops en route from Montreal.

One man was arrested. His identity was not made public.

Police said they acted on a tip. When they went aboard the ship they went straight to one of the 51 containers to be unloaded here. It contained the 11 cases of arms.

U.S. Lied Over Cambodia Bombs

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. defence department acknowledged today that B-52 strikes were made in Cambodia prior to 1970 despite public assertions at the time of U.S. respect for the neutrality of Cambodia.

Defence Secretary James Schlesinger, in a letter to the Senate armed services committee, said raids "had been conducted for some period of time and were fully authorized" before the United States publicly announced attacks in May, 1970, into so-called sanctuary areas of Cambodia near the South Vietnamese border.

"At this period of time, you will remember, over one half million men were stationed in South Vietnam," Schlesinger said.

"Because of the sensitive operational and diplomatic situation, special security precautions were taken to ensure that the operations would not be compromised."

Schlesinger sent the letter to the Senate panel as former air force Maj. Hal Knight testified under oath that he falsified records of B-52 strikes in early 1970.

He said he acted under orders from superiors that he burn all documents, computer tapes and other materials that would expose the strikes in Cambodia.

Knight was asked if he ever questioned the procedure. "I asked who authorized this procedure," he replied.

"I was told not to ask."

He said there always was a cover target with "a strike order in Vietnam" to account for the actual mission in Cambodia.

CP Air Strike Looms

VANCOUVER (CP) — A union spokesman says about 1,300 members of the International Association of Machinists employed by CP Air will be ready to strike in about 10 days.

Tony Steele, chief negotiator for IAM Local 764, said a meeting with the company here Sunday was unsuccessful and "there is no reason to delay the strike date."

Both parties in the dispute are free to strike or lock-out seven days after a conciliation board report reaches federal Labor Minister John Munro in Ottawa.

Steele said it is hoped Munro will indicate he has received the report early this week and then a strike date will be set.

The CP Air workers, he said, are determined not to settle for less than the 19.6 per cent wage hike over two years that company negotiators tentatively offered several months ago, but then withdrew.

In the meantime 6,500 members of the union working for Air Canada voted to accept a 16 per cent increase following a series of rotating strikes last month.

Pact Ratified, Fishing On

The B.C. net salmon fleet resumed fishing Sunday night as a nine-day strike ended.

Fishermen, shoreworkers and tendermen, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, voted Saturday by more than 80 per cent to approve new contracts and fish prices with the Fisheries Association of B.C.

The three groups, with a combined membership of 7,000, went on strike July 6.

Tendermen were also back at sea but union secretary-treasurer Jack Nichol said it would be later in the week before fish plants are in full operation when the first catches of salmon are brought in.

The shoreworkers agreement calls for a basic wage increase of $1.50 an hour in two stages of a two-year contract. Previous wages ranged from $2.82 to $3.87 an hour.

On top of the $1.50 wage increase, women will receive adjustments of 37 to 51 cents an hour to eliminate pay discrimination and some job categories will receive adjustments of 10 to 37 cents an hour.

Nichol said washers in cannery operations will get a total raise of $1.94 an hour, or a 68.8-per cent increase. Filleters, predominantly women, will get an extra $2 an hour, or 63.3 per cent above their former wage.

The new contract also provides for double time for Sunday work and overtime beyond three hours Monday to Friday.

Tendermen will receive a basic wage increase of $140 a month this year and $120 a month next year. Their old pay rates ranged from $583 a month to $785. They also obtained increased leave time and assurance that days off will be in home ports.

Fishermen will receive 50 cents a pound for sockeye this year and 52 cents next year; 40 cents a pound for coho this year and 42 cents next year; 20 cents and 22 cents respectively for pinks and 26 cents and 27 cents respectively for chums.

Paint Blaze Frees Chemical Poisons

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tests were being conducted today to determine both the cause of a fire at a Canadian Industries Ltd. paint warehouse and the exact penetration of chemicals released into False Creek during the blaze.

Residents of about 40 blocks in Vancouver's East End had an evacuation scare Sunday as a five-alarm blaze ripped through the CIL plant.

The six-hour fire was brought under control without the necessity of moving people, although firemen had to stay on duty through the night to douse occasional flare-ups that reappeared in the smoldering building.

Residents were warned to be ready to evacuate in case cyanide or other toxic substances were released into the air by the fire.

Federal environment officials called to the scene expressed fears that large quantities of phenols — chemicals used in the manufacture of paints and other substances — might enter tidewater with the runoff from the firehoses and result in a fish kill.

There were no serious injuries in the blaze, although four firemen — three suffering smoke inhalation and one who fell from the one-storey building — were sent briefly to hospital.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started with an explosion, but they couldn't pinpoint immediately the cause or location of the blast.

Chris Hatfield, environmental emergency co-ordinator with the federal environmental service, said his service was notified soon after the fire broke out.

"We were concerned at the possibility of air toxicity in the beginning," he said. "Once we were sure there was no people danger, we could start thinking of marine life."

Hatfield said undetermined quantities of phenols, estimated to be considerable, apparently entered the storm sewers and were washed into False Creek.

"These chemicals are soluble in water and quite persistant — they might last a number of days," he said.

"They are quite toxic to marine life and they could be dispersed over a wide area."

Hatfield said he expected the federal labs to determine today the extent of contamination in the immediate area, but it would be some time before the effect on sea life would be known.

"When it flushes out into English Bay, we are hoping that the chemical will be diluted enough that it won't cause much harm."

Company officials estimated damage at about $1 million to the building and an equal loss to tons of inflammable liquids and chemicals stored there.

2 Die in Shootout

GIBSONS (CP) — Two men are dead following a Sunday shootout between neighboring in-laws near here.

Dead are Donald Parke, 33, and Rudolph Shcrenko, 70, both of Harvey Road at Grantham's Landing.

RCMP said Parke and his father, Warden, were repairing their roof when Schrenko, the younger Parke's father-in-law, began shooting with a rifle, killing Donald.

The elder Parke jumped from the roof and ran inside with his wife, grabbing another rifle, said police. Schrenko was killed while pointing his rifle at the elder Parke, RCMP said.

RCMP said no charges have been laid.

An inquest has been ordered.

Nixon Office Bugged

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — On President Nixon's orders, sophisticated electronic listening devices—or bugs—have been in operation on his own telephones and in his offices since 1970, testified an ex-presidential aide today.

Alexander Butterfield testified that the devices were installed "for historical purposes, to record the president's business. . . ."

He said there were such devices in the Oval office of the president and in Nixon's office in the Executive Office building.

Butterfield said the tape recording equipment was installed between April or May of 1970 and the end of that summer or early in the fall.

Butterfield, who said he took the witness stand with only three hours' notice, was called to testify before the scheduled appearance of Herbert Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer.

Butterfield is a former White House aide. He now serves as administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency.

Kalmbach acknowledged today he raised funds to pay the original seven Watergate defendants but denied any prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in or its later cover-up.

Kalmbach is to follow him to the witness table.

Kalmbach said:

"My actions in the period immediately following the break-in which involved the raising of funds to provide for the legal defence of the Watergate defendants and for the support of their families were prompted in the belief that it was proper and necessary to discharge what I assumed to be a moral obligation that had arisen in some manner unknown to me by reason of earlier events.

"The fact that I had been directed to undertake these actions by the No. 2 and No. 3

Restful Night For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon spent a restful night and the chest pains caused by his bout with pneumonia are now down to a minimum, his doctor reported today.

Nixon awoke at 8 a.m. after a good night's sleep, Dr. Walter Tkach said. The president was given four chest therapy treatments Sunday.

The treatment resulted in "considerable improvement in his chest congestion and chest discomfort is now at a minimum," Tkach said in his morning medical bulletin.

DOLLAR WEAK

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar opened weak in Frankfurt and Zurich today, and there was virtually no demand.

The price of gold also eased to $119.75 an ounce in London from Friday's $121 and to $119.25 in Zurich from $120.75 on Friday.

The dollar opened at 2.3750 marks in Frankfurt down half a pfennig from Friday, and then eased further to 2.3720 marks. In Zurich, there was a similar pattern with the dollar opening at 2.8487 Swiss francs, nearly two centimes below Friday's close, and then sliding to 2.8475 francs.

The dollar showed some strength in Paris and London, however. It opened in Paris at 4.0875 francs, down from 4.10, then soon moved up to 4.0950.

Cherry War Court Bound Following Sale of 50 Tons

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia cherry war is expected to move into court this week following the sale of more than 50 tons of outlaw cherries Sunday.

A convoy of 23 trucks brought the fruit down from the Okanagan to Vancouver Saturday, following the seizure of two truckloads of cherries by B.C. Fruit Board inspectors and RCMP.

Taylor, who came here to watch part of the sale in the Gastown district, said the board is taking further steps to bring the dispute into court, following an exchange of injunctions last week with Okanagan Growers Ltd. of Okahagan Centre, B.C.

"We knew it would bring legal action," said Allied chairman Bert Hume. "For the first time we will be able to get this into the courts and get it decided in proper ways.

"We are challenging the validity of the very foundation of the Fruit Board's marketing scheme and we can only do that in the Supreme Court, and this we are prepared to do."

Hans Rhenisch, president of United Fruit Growers Ltd., the second breakaway group to organize illegal sales here, said the rebel growers want a new fruit marketing association.

Hume and Rhenisch said they want to replace the Fruit Board's control of the production and sale of B.C. fruit with a fruit marketing association made up of growers, wholesalers, consumers, the B.C. Government and Union representatives.

Under current B.C. legislation, the Fruit Board, the sole agent for the B.C. Fruit Growers Association, controls all cherry sales through its marketing arm, B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd.

The legislation empowers the board to seize and dispose of any fruit sold outside its marketing structure.

Mortgage Rates Up One-Quarter

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Conventional mortgage rates for homes jumped a quarter point over the weekend to 9.75-10 per cent, with 9.75 per cent being the more common figure in Victoria.

One Victoria bank manager said anybody getting a mortgage at less than 9.75 per cent this week would "be getting a bargain."

A Times survey of 14 Victoria financial institutions this morning showed 13 of them putting out money at 9.75-10. The 14th, a trust company, was up to 10.5 per cent but had been at 10 per cent for at least a month.

Other banks and the trust companies quoted 9.75 to 10 with the higher figure applying to less desirable homes and to houses in outlying areas.

Demand was brisk for money at 9.5 per cent and bank managers expected demand to continue to be strong at 9.75 per cent.

"When the prime rate hits 10 per cent, it may be a different matter," one bank manager said this morning.

"There is something psychological about 10 per cent that acts as a barrier. At that level, people do the arithmetic and discover that they will be paying almost nothing on the principal in the first five years of a 25-year mortgage at 10 per cent."

Another banker agreed that 10 per cent money might cool the demand for mortgage loans.

But in the tight-money squeeze of 1969, interest rates soared to an all-time high of 10.75 per cent for prime mortgages. First sign of resistance then was 10.5 per cent.

Most trust companies were able to meet the new prime mortgage rate of the banks at 9.75 per cent as long as they were taking money in at 8.5 per cent for five-year term deposits. Trust companies offering 8.75 per cent on five-year term deposits, however, would be under a cost-squeeze pressure to charge 10 per cent for prime mortgages.

The B.C. Teachers Federation Co-operative Association, which had not altered its rates with fluctuations in past months, had to move its rates up as well.

It had set a long-term rate of 9.5 per cent for residences anywhere in B.C., when conventional rates were 9 per cent.

However, at last it was forced to alter its rates to 9.75 per cent and would continue upwards with the fluctuations in the prime rate.

The upward pressure on mortgages was pushing commercial and industrial rates up to levels one financier called "scary."

Conventional rates for commercial and industrial mortgages have jumped half a point in six weeks and now are in the range of 10.25 to 10.75 per cent.

One trust company official said 11 per cent would act as a psychological barrier to the outflow of money in commercial and industrial mortgages.

At present levels, demand was still brisk.
